- 1 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, }
Territory of Arizona, } ss :

Be it remembered that heretofore, to wit, on the third day of December, A. D. 1891, Juan Pedro Camou, by his attorney, William Herring, Esq., filed in the office of the clerk of the court of private land claims, at Santa Fé, in the Territory of New Mexico, a petition; which said petition is in the words and figures following, to wit:

- 2 United States Court of Private Land Claims, December Term, 1891, Santa Fé, New Mexico.

JUAN PEDRO CAMOU, Plaintiff, }
vs. }
UNITED STATES, Defendant. }

The above-named plaintiff, petitioner herein, appearing by his attorney, William Herring, alleges:

I.

That he is a citizen of the Republic of Mexico, and that his place of residence is at the city of Guaymas, in the State of Sonora.

II.

That petitioner claims the lands hereinafter described and referred to under a title derived from the Mexican government that was complete and perfect at the date when the United States acquired sovereignty in the Territory of Arizona, within which said lands are situate.

III.

That petitioner is the owner in fee of that certain tract or parcel of land situate, lying, and being in the county of Cochise, in the Territory of Arizona, known and designated as the San Rafael del Valle grant, which is hereinafter more particularly described; that petitioner became such owner by purchase and claims title to the lands embraced within said grant through various mesne conveyances from the original grantee thereof, who derived his

3 title by grant and conveyance from the Mexican government.

IV.

That the grant herein described and referred to was duly made to Rafael Elias, a citizen of the State of Sonora, of the Republic of Mexico, by Jose Maria Mendoza, treasurer general of the State of Sonora, on the twenty-first day of April, of the year one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight, and the title to said grant was thereafter issued to said Rafael Elias on the twenty-fifth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two.

That the same was duly made and issued pursuant to the laws of the State of Sonora under and by authority of the laws of the Republic of Mexico in such respect made and provided.

That the form of the grant issued under the authority aforesaid is a written title or patent reciting all the steps or proceedings that had been had in the matter of the lands sold and granted as aforesaid.

That said grant is situate in the San Pedro valley, in the county of Cochise, Territory of Arizona. It lies between the range known as the Huachuca mountains and the range known as the Mule mountains. Its southern line is about six miles north of the southern boundary of the Territory of Arizona. Its northern boundary is about ten miles southwesterly from the city of Tombstone, in the county of Cochise, and about three miles southerly from the old town of Charleston, in said county.

Said land is more particularly bounded and described as follows, according to the calls of the survey of said ranch or grant as made by the government of Mexico, as set forth in the expediente or title issued to Rafael Elias, the original grantee:

Taking as a center a fixed point where there were some small hills and taking the route to the south, there were measured
4 and counted two hundred Spanish cords to the line of the survey of the ranch of San Pedro granted to Don Jesus Perez, the monument standing upon said survey lines being then and there taken as the limit of the San Pedro grant on the north and the limit of the San Rafael del Valle grant on the south. Returning to the center, the route to the part of the north was taken, measuring and counting two hundred Spanish cords, which ended on the same valley where there is a little calcarious or limy knoll or hill, at which place a monument was erected. Returning to the center, there were measured and counted towards the east fifty Spanish cords, which ended on the valley in front of the Mule mountains, at which place a monument of stone was erected. Returning from said point to the center, the measuring was continued from said center on the west side, measuring and counting fifty Spanish cords, which ended on the same valley fronting the Huachuca mountains, where there was also erected a monument of stones. One hundred Spanish cords were measured on the one and the other extreme of the end of the line running south and north, thus squaring up the ends and placing at the ends of said north and south line monuments of stone.

The grant in question, according to the survey and map thereof by George J. Roskrige, C. E., June 1st, 1891, contains twenty thousand and thirty-four acres and sixty-two one-hundredths.

Said map is herewith filed with the clerk of this court, and reference is hereby made thereto for a more particular description of said grant, its boundaries and dimensions.

V.

The following are the names of persons in possession of portions of said grant, having the portions so possessed otherwise than by lease or permission of this petitioner, to wit :

Cornelius Harrington, Stark Suydam, H. W. Hasselgren, Charles G. Johnson, R. B. Clark, James Wolf, A. M. Hamm, J. E. Hamm, William F. Banning, Frank Valenzuela, Levi Scranton, Ramon Escalante, Simon P. Gallen, Hilaria Gomez, W. C. Green, Packard Cattle Company, Charles Anchutz, and Joseph Hoefler.

Petitioner alleges that the possessions and claims of the above-named persons to said portions are without any right whatever.

VI.

Petitioner further alleges that the validity of said claim and grant herein described and referred to has heretofore been considered and acted upon by the authorities of the United States, to wit, by John Wasson, surveyor general of Arizona, pursuant to an act of Congress approved July 15th, 1870, and departmental instructions of January 5th, 1877.

That the aforesaid act of Congress made it the duty of the surveyor general of Arizona to "ascertain and report upon the origin, nature, character, and extent of the claims to lands in said Territory under the laws, usages, and customs of Spain and Mexico."

That under said authority the said surveyor general examined into the validity of the San Rafael del Valle grant, herein referred to, and authorized a survey thereof and reported thereon favorably and recommended the confirmation of the said grant by Congress, which said report is on file in the U. S. Land Office.

Petitioner refers to the documents herewith filed for a more particular deraignment of petitioner's title and prays that the validity of his title and claim may be inquired into and decided by this honorable court.

Dated November 24th, 1891.

United States Court of Private Land Claims, March Term, 1892,
 Santa Fé, New Mexico.

JUAN PEDRO CAMOU, Plaintiff, }
 vs. } No. 3.
 UNITED STATES, Defendant. }

Demurrer.

Comes now the United States and demurs to the petition filed in this court by Juan Pedro Camou seeking a decree of confirmation of a private land claim commonly called and designated therein as the "San Rafael del Valle grant," situate in the Territory of Arizona, and for grounds of demurrer assigns the following, viz :

First. The petition does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action against the United States.

Second. That said petition does not state, either in form or substance, under and by virtue of what decree of law — the Republic of Mexico the State of Sonora acquired the title to said property, nor does it state under and by virtue of what laws or decrees of the State of Sonora said Jose Maria Mendoza, treasurer general of the State of Sonora, derived his authority to convey said land to Rafael Elias.

10 Third. That said petition does not state what conditions, if any, were imposed upon the grantees, and, if so, whether they have been complied with or waived.

Respectfully submitted.

MATT. G. REYNOLDS,
U. S. Attorney.

11 And be it further remembered that thereafter, to wit, on the 21st day of February, 1893, at the February term of said court, held at Tucson, in the Territory of Arizona, the following proceedings were had:

Comes William Herring, Esq., attorney for the petitioner, and confesses the demurrer filed herein and by leave of the court amends the petition herein and files amended petition as follows, to wit:

12 United States Court of Private Land Claims.

JUAN PEDRO CAMOU, Plaintiff, }
 vs.
 UNITED STATES, Defendant. }

The above-named plaintiff, by leave of the court, hereby amends the complaint and petition filed herein and by said amended complaint and petition alleges as follows:

I.

That he is a citizen of the Republic of Mexico, and that his place of residence is at the city of Guaymas, in the State of Sonora, Mexico.

II.

That petitioner is the owner in fee of that certain tract or parcel of land situate, lying, and being in the county of Cochise, Territory of Arizona, in the San Pedro valley, on both sides of the San Pedro river, between the range of mountains known as the Huachuca mountains and the range known as the Mule mountains.

Its southern boundary line is about six miles north of the southern boundary line of the Territory of Arizona. Its northern boundary line is about ten miles southwesterly from the city of Tombstone, in said county, and about three miles southerly from the old town of Charleston, in said county; that the tract or parcel of land is known and designated as the San Rafael del Valle grant and is more particularly described as follows:

13 Commencing at a post marked S. R. G. No. 8, set in a mound of rocks on the summit of a "limy hill," said monument being the north center monument of the San Rafael del Valle private land grant, and was located as such north center monument by Solon M. Allis, U. S. deputy surveyor, December 15th, 1879, from said post on "Limy hill" the Bronkow hill bears N. 12° 21' W.; Mount Wrightson, in the Santa Rita mountains, bears N. 80° 49' W.

The dwelling-house of Cornelius Harrington bears S. 3° 10' E., 3,900 feet dist.

The highest peak in the Huachuca mountains bears S. 34° 50' W. Thence run N. 85° E. 6,204 feet to the northeast corner of grant. Thence S. 13° 45' E. 68,050 feet to the southeast corner of grant. Thence west 6,875 feet to the south center of grant.

Thence west 6,875 feet to the southwest corner of grant.

Thence N. 12° 50' W. 66,250 feet to the northwest corner of grant.

Thence N. 81° E. 6,600 feet to the post marked S. R. G. No. 8. erected on the "Limy hill," the place of beginning of the survey of the exterior boundaries of the San Rafael del Valle private land claim, containing 20,034.62 acres.

III.

That petitioner became the owner of said land by purchase and claims title to said lands and premises embraced within said grant through various mesne conveyances from the original grantee thereof, Rafael Elias, who duly acquired his ownership and derived his title thereto by grant and conveyance from the duly constituted and authorized authorities of the State of Sonora, Mexico, under and by the authorization and sanction of the laws of the State of Sonora and of the Republic of Mexico.

That the title to said lands and premises so derived and acquired as aforesaid was complete and perfect at the date when the 14 United States acquired sovereignty in the Territory of Arizona, within which said lands are situate.

IV.

That said grant was made and a patent issued therefor to said Rafael Elias under and by virtue of article 11 of the sovereign decree No. 70 of the general congress of the Republic of Mexico of the 4th of August, 1824, and the said patent was issued to said Rafael Elias on the 25th day of December, 1832, by Jose Maria Mendoza, treasurer general of the State of Sonora, in accordance with the above decree and under and by virtue of law No. 30 of the 20th of May, 1825, of the State of Sonora and Sinaloa (the constituent congress of the free, independent, and sovereign State of the West), regulating the system of selling the public lands.

That the condition imposed upon the grantee, his children, heirs, and successors, was that they must keep, settle, and protect the said lands without their being depopulated, deserted, or abandoned for any time, with the understanding that if their total abandonment took place for the space of three consecutive years and there should be any person who petitioned for them in such event, such fact being previously proven, they will be declared public property and will be granted anew in favor of the highest bidder, excepting those cases in which the abandonment be on account of notorious invasion of public enemies and the period of such happening.

V.

That the grantors and predecessors in interest of petitioner upon the issuing of said patent duly entered into the possession of said granted lands and premises and settled and protected the same and kept the same according to said conditions, and have complied with said conditions, except in cases when they have been compelled to leave said land in consequence of the invasion and 15 hostility of the Apache Indians.

That no breach of the conditions of said grant was ever claimed by the Republic of Mexico or the State of Sonora; that said grant had been duly located and duly recorded in the archives of Mexico prior to the twenty-fifth day of September, referred to in article VI of the Gadsden treaty; that the grantors and predecessors in interest of petitioner, who were the owners of said grant at the time of the adoption of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo and of the Gadsden treaty, were Mexicans—citizens of the Republic of Mexico.

That said lands and premises except as aforesaid have remained in the uninterrupted and peaceable possession of petitioner and his grantors and predecessors in interest.

VI.

That the grant in question, according to the survey and map thereof by George J. Roskrige, C. E., June 1st, 1891, contains twenty thousand and thirty-four acres and sixty-two hundredths.

Said map is herewith filed with the clerk of this court and reference is hereby made thereto for a more particular description of said grant, its boundaries and dimensions.

VII.

The following are the names of persons in possession of portions of said grant having the portions so possessed otherwise than by lease or permission of this petitioner, to wit: Cornelius Harrington, Stark Suydam, H. W. Hasselgren, Charles G. Johnson, R. B. Clark, James Wolf, A. M. Hamm, J. E. Hamm, William F. Banning, Frank Valenzuela, Levi Scranton, Ramon Escalante, Simon P. Gallen, Hilaria Gomez, W. C. Green, Packard Cattle Company, Charles Anchutz, and Joseph Hoefler.

16 Petitioner alleges that the possessions and claims of the above-named persons to said portions are without any right whatever.

VIII.

Petitioner further alleges that the validity of said claim and grant herein described and referred to has heretofore been considered and acted upon by the authorities of the United States, to wit, by John Wasson, surveyor general of Arizona, pursuant to an act of Congress approved July 15th, 1870, and departmental instructions of January 5th, 1877.

That the aforesaid act of Congress made it the duty of the surveyor general of Arizona to "ascertain and report upon the origin, nature, character, and extent of the claims to lands in said Territory under the laws, usages, and customs of Spain and Mexico."

That under said authority the said surveyor general examined into the validity of the San Rafael del Valle grant herein referred to and authorized a survey thereof and reported thereon favorably and recommended the confirmation of the said grant by Congress, which said report is on file in the U. S. Land Office.

IX.

Petitioner alleges that in the examination of the "origin, nature, character, and extent" of the San Rafael del Valle grant by the surveyor general of Arizona petitioner and his then co-owners presented their claim of title and filed the same in the U. S. surveyor general's office at Tucson; that annexed to said claim or petition and filed therewith as exhibits were the original documents and title papers, which show petitioner's title to said grant to be valid; that in his report upon said grant to the U. S. General Land Office, dated October 29th, 1879, the U. S. surveyor general filed in the U. S. General Land Office, at Washington, the aforesaid exhibits were included and filed therewith.

17 Petitioner therefore refers to said exhibits, papers, and documents now in the custody of the United States Government in connection with other papers and documents filed herewith showing the deraignment of his title to said grant, and petitioner prays that the U. S. surveyor general of Arizona and the authorities of the U. S. General Land Office, at Washington, may be required to transmit to this court all original documents and papers in their possession or official custody in relation to petitioner's title to said grant, or that otherwise the official report of U. S. Surveyor General John Wasson for Arizona, dated October 29th, 1879, in relation to the origin, nature, and character of the San Rafael del Valle grant, a certified copy of which is hereto annexed, may be received and accepted by this court in relation to the contents of said exhibits and in relation to the title of petitioner to the aforesaid grant.

Wherefore plaintiff prays that the validity of his title and claim may be inquired into and decided and determined by this honorable court.

San Rafael del Valle.

"Report of the Surveyor General."

The original title papers filed as exhibits to the petition of claimants in this case show that on the 12th day of March, 1827, Rafael Elias petitioned the treasurer general of Sonora for a grant of vacant lands bounding with the Rancho San Pedro, in the jurisdiction of Santa Cruz, as far as the point of "Tres Alamos," stating that he needed the same for the pasturage of his stock.

Original title papers also show that on the 25th of December, 1832, the government of the State of Sonora granted and sold to the petitioner, Rafael Elias, the rancho or tract of land called "San Rafael del Valle," containing four square leagues, situated within the jurisdiction of the presidio of Santa Cruz and now within the limits of the Territory of Arizona under the boundaries as set forth in the field-notes of the survey which preceded the grant.

This grant was made under and by virtue of article 11 of the sovereign decree No. 70 of the general congress of the Republic of Mexico of the fourth of August, 1824, and in accordance with law No. 30 of the twentieth of May, 1825. (See Exhibit "A" annexed to the petition.)

Petitioners claim title from the legal heirs of the original grantee, Rafael Elias, as is set forth in the following exhibits:

1st. Conditional sale or mortgage executed on the twenty-fifth day of July, 1862, by Jose Juan, Jose Maria, Manuel Elias, and Guadalupe Perez de Elias, heirs of Rafael Elias, the grantee, to Camou Brothers (Exhibit "B").

19 2nd. Judicial enquiry before the judge of the district court of Guaymas in relation to the family of the original grantee, Rafael Elias, together with the power of attorney from Dona Guadalupe Perez (widow of Rafael Elias) and of her son, Manuel Elias, to Jose Maria Elias, authorizing him to confirm the sale made by the heirs of the grantee jointly with Jose Juan Elias, deceased, and Jose Maria Elias, children of Guadalupe Perez de Elias (Exhibit "C"). This exhibit shows that on the seventeenth day of March, 1869, J. P. Camou, one of the firm of "Camou Brothers," made a petition to the judge of the district court of Guaymas, accompanying the same with a set of interrogatories which he asked to be propounded to Jose Ma. Elias in his own behalf and that of his mother, Guadalupe Perez, and his brother, Manuel Elias, and that the same interrogatories be propounded to Bernardina Lucero, widow of the deceased Jose Juan Elias. The court granted the order and the witnesses were summoned; whereupon Jose Ma. Elias, in answer to the interrogatories propounded, testified as follows: It is true that a sale was made of the lands mentioned in the interrogatories to the house of "Camou Brothers," represented by Juan P. Camou, and which sale he, the witness, confirmed in his own behalf and in behalf of his mother, Guadalupe Perez, and of his brother, Manuel Elias, in accordance with the especial power of attorney which he now produced; that all of these lands were acquired by right of inheritance from their deceased parents, they being the only heirs and entitled to the same; that it was true that his grandfather and his father, Rafael Elias, had the same name; that sometimes they would sign adding the name of "Jose" and the surname of Gonzales, but notwithstanding these variations it meant the same person. The other witnesses summoned testified to the 20 same effect. Julian Escalante, collector of the custom-house at Guaymas, and Jose Bustamente, judge of the first instance, also certified from their own knowledge to the facts stated by the witnesses summoned. The foregoing proceedings were referred to District Attorney Jose Montenerde, who declared that they were in accordance with law and that full faith and credit should be given to the testimony of the persons examined for their social standing and for the positions which they occupy in public stations. To these proceedings is annexed the power of attorney given by Guadalupe Perez, the widow of Rafael Elias, and her son, Manuel Elias, to Jose Maria Elias, authorizing him in their name to confirm the sale made to the house of Camou Brothers by deed dated July 25th, 1862, of the lands of the ranchos of "San Rafael del Valle," "Agua de Baltazar," "El Gato," "Tomas Romero," and "Mestenos," and also the rancho of "Naidenibacachi," "Agua Prieta," and "Santa Barbara."

3rd. Absolute deed of conveyance executed on the 23d day of March, 1869, by Jose Ma. Elias, for himself and as attorney of Guadalupe Perez de Elias, his mother and widow of Rafael Elias, the original grantee, and for his brother, Manuel Elias, and by Bernardina L. de Elias, wife of Juan Elias, deceased (Exhibit "C").

From all of which it appears that on the 25th day of July, 1862, the Elias heirs executed a conditional sale or mortgage to the Camou Brothers on certain lands belonging to them, among which was the rancho of "San Rafael del Valle." The conditions of this sale or mortgage were that if the mortgageors should pay within three years the amount of twelve thousand dollars ($12,000) received by them on the property, with interest thereon at the rate of one per cent. per month, and all costs, then the sale or mortgage should be cancelled, and failing in this the sale was to become absolute, either party in the meantime having the right to sell the land at an advance upon the sum for which it was mortgaged, and in case it should be sold by either the profits were to be divided equally between the mortgageors and mortgagees.

At the expiration of three years the property remained unsold. On the 17th of March, 1869, the Camou Brothers caused proceedings to be taken before the district court of Guaymas confirmatory of the conditional sale or mortgage made in 1862 by the heirs of Rafael Elias, and on the 23rd of March, 1869, the Camou Brothers obtained a second and absolute deed of the property executed by duly authorized attorney of the heirs of the original grantee and by one of the heirs (Bernardina L. de Elias) in person. This clearly places the title to the property in the Camou Brothers, accepting as true the sworn statement of witnesses taken before the district judge of Guaymas, the opinion of the district attorney, and the certificates of responsible officers of the government, which cannot be called in question.

The testimonio of the original expediente is now before me. It is prima facie genuine, being written on stamped paper of the "bieno" of 1831 and 1832. There is nothing in its general appearance calculated in any degree to cast suspicion on its bona fide. It contains the original grant, which is signed by the treasurer general, Jose Ma. Mendozé, and bears his official seal. Mr. R. C. Hopkins, especial agent of the government in relation to the original expediente or matrix of this grant, as found in the government archives of Sonora, reports as follows: "The original expediente or matrix of this grant, containing 40 pages, is found in its proper place in the archives. It is written on the corresponding stamped paper, and the proceedings of survey, valuation, publication, and sale are all regular. No corrador or draft of the title is found in the expediente, but there is attached thereto a certificate that on the 25th day of December, 1832, the title was issued. The certificate is signed by Treasurer General Mendoza. There is also a certificate that Rafael Elias had paid into the treasury the sum of $240.00, the amount at which the land had been valued and sold. There is nothing in the original title papers calculated to cast suspicion on the same. The title is duly registered in the book of 'Tomà de Razon.' "

After a careful examination of the title papers and papers showing deraignment of title from the original grantee, as filed in this case, together with the report of Special Agent R. C. Hopkins thereon, and of the laws, usages, and customs of Spain and Mexico relating thereto, as just cited, I find—

First. That the original title papers filed by the claimants in this case are genuine; that the title was issued in good faith at the time of its date, in accordance with the laws of the State of Sonora and under the sanction and authority of the laws of the Mexican Republic.

2nd. That the tract of land described was granted for grazing purposes, and that the same is located in a region adapted to stock-raising.

3rd. That the deraignment of title clearly shows that the rancho of San Rafael del Valle now justly and legally belongs to Jean Pierre Camou, Joseph Camou, Pierre Andre Camou, and Pascual Camou, partners composing the firm of Camou Brothers, by purchase from the heirs of the original grantee, Rafael Elias. I

23 therefore recommend that the title thereto be confirmed to them to the extent of four square leagues and no more, that being the quantity originally petitioned for, appraised, and sold by the State to the said Rafael Elias.

Mines and minerals.

In accordance with Interior Department instructions I have collected from authentic sources information in reference to the laws of Spain and Mexico respecting minerals and what conditions attach to grants embracing mines. From the earliest European settlement of the country, mining for the precious metals constituted the principal branch of industry in Spanish America, and, being the one that yielded the largest revenue to the government, laws and royal ordinances were from time to time passed for the encouragement of the adventurous prospectors and for the protection of the fortunate discoverer of mines of the precious metals; yet although these laws and ordinances dignified the mining profession by attaching thereto the privileges of nobility, still the government went no further in its liberality than to grant the miner the exclusive privilege of working the mine he might have discovered in the manner required and under the conditions imposed by the laws and ordinances in relation thereto; and when these conditions were disregarded or violated, the ownership of the mines, or, rather, the exclusive right to work it, was lost, and the same reverted to the government to be acquired by any one else who might undertake to comply with the conditions under which it had been granted to the former owner, the absolute ownership of the mine ever remaining in the government.

Joaquin Escriche, in his Diccionario Razonado de Legislacion y Jurisprudencia (a standard authority), under the head of minas, says: "According to ancient Roman law, mines of gold, silver, 24 copper, iron, and other metals pertain to the owner of the land on which they were discovered," "Grant privati juris, et in libero privatorum usa commercio," because they are benefits bestowed by nature to be enjoyed by the owners of the land producing the same. Subsequently the Roman emperor appropriated one-tenth of the products of the mines of every character. Under the Spanish law a different rule was adopted; mines of gold, silver, lead, and other metals could not be worked without royal permission, since they (and also salt pits) belong to the King. Any one was permitted to dig in search of minerals or stones on his own lands or on the lands of others, with the consent of the owner, under the condition that the discoverer should receive one-third of the net proceeds of the discovery, the other two-thirds part to be given to the government.

Every Spaniard or foreigner was permitted to "dig" in search of minerals on public or private lands under the obligation of compensating for the damages occasioned.

In Mexico, Venezuela, and Chili the matter of mines is governed by the ordinances of the 22d of May, 1783. (Escriche, new edition, printed 1869; mina.)

As early as the year 1383 Don Alonzo the XI issued "Pragmatica," in which it is declared that all the mines of silver and gold and lead and of any other metal whatever, of whatsoever kind it may be, in our royal seignior, shall belong to us; therefore no one shall presume to work them without our special license and command; and also the salt springs, basins, and wells, which are for making salt, shall belong to us, wherefore we command that they revert to us with the produce of the whole thereof, and that no one presume to intermeddle therein except those to whom former kings, 25 our predecessors, or we, ourselves, may give them as a privilege, or who may have held them from time immemorial. (Vide Book VI, title XIII, law 2, recopilacion de Castille; Book IX, title XVIII, Novissima recopilacion.)

The law of Philip 11, 1559, declares that inasmuch as the discoverers of mines, after having discovered and registered them, pretend, by that act alone, they have acquired such a right to them that no other person can, within the limits and space of such mines, enter or try or work, and that they can thus keep them encumbered without working them themselves or permitting others to do so, by which they prevent the principal, produce, and profit, which belongs as well to us as to our subjects and to the public welfare, since that principally consists in the working and reduction of mines and metals, and not merely in their discovery, we declare and command that such discoverer of the mine or mines of silver, after having made registry in the manner prescribed, shall be obliged within six months to sink and excavate to the depth of three estados (a measure of about six feet), and not sinking and excavating his mine to the depth of three estados it may be denounced before the judge and registry made thereof as of a vacant or undiscovered mine.

Also, that we reclaim, resume, and incorporate in ourself, in our Crown and patrimony, all the mines of gold and silver and quick-silver of these kingdoms, in whatsoever part and places they may be and are found, whether in royal lands or in those of lordships or of the clergy and whether in public, municipal, or vacant lands or in inheritances, places, and soils of individuals, notwithstanding the grants which by us and by the kings, our predecessors, have been made to any person of whatsoever condition, rank, and dignity they may be. (Book VI, title XIII, law IV, recapilacion de 26 Castilla; also Book IX, title XVIII, law III, Novisima R.)

Royal ordinances for the direction, regulation, and government of the important body of mining of New Spain and of its royal tribunals general, May 22nd, 1783.

Article first, title fifth, declares that mines are the property of the royal Crown, as well by their origin and by their reunion declared in law four, title 13th, Book VI, Nueva recapilacion.

Article 1, same title, declares that, without separating them from the royal patrimony, they are granted to the subjects of the King in property and possession in such manner that they may sell, rent, donate, and pass them by will, either in the way of inheritance or legacy, or in any other manner alienate the right which in the mines belong- to them on the same terms which they themselves possess it and to persons capable of acquiring the same.

Article 111, same title, declares that this grant is understood to be with the conditions that the grantees contribute to the royal treasury the prescribed portion of the metals, and that they shall work the mines in the manner prescribed by the ordinances, so they shall be considered forfeited whenever a failure shall occur in complying with the ordinances in which it is provided, and that they may be granted to any person who may for that cause denounce them.

Article 1, title VI, declares that the discoverers of one or more mineral hills, absolutely new, may acquire on the principal vein, which they may select, as many as three pertenencias, continued or interrupted, according to the measurements which shall be prescribed, and if they have discovered more veins they may have 27 one pertenencia on each vein, said pertenencia being determined and marked out within ten days.

(A pertenencia was in extent two hundred varas, measured on the vein, the width being determined by the dip or angle thereof being sufficiently wide to prevent the vein from being cut by a shaft sunk on a side claim at a depth of less than two hundred varas, this being the depth beyond which in those times was considered unprofitable to work a mine.)

Article 10, same title, declares that if the denouncer does not put his working shaft in order nor take possession within sixty days, he shall lose his right, and the mine may be denounced by another.

Article 14, same title, declares that any one may discover and denounce a vein or mine, not only in common land, but also in the private land of any individual, provided he pays for the land of which he occupies the surface and the damage which immediately ensues therefrom, according to the valuation of the experts appointed by both parties and a third in case of a disagreement.

Article 11, title IX, provides that no one shall be permitted to work mines without the direction and continual assistance of one of the intelligent and practical experts, who in New Spain are called mineros or guardia minas, who must be examined, licensed, and affirmed by one of the professors of mining, which each real or asiento must have.

Article XIII, same title, declares that as mines require to be worked continually and incessantly in order to procure their metals, and as they require in them works and operations which can be executed only in a long time, and as their re-establishment, if 28 their working be suspended and interrupted, will cost as much as in their original undertaking, therefore to obviate this inconvenience, and also to prevent any owners of mines who cannot or will not work them from keeping them without use and for a long time impeding by pretended working the real and effective labor which others might bestow upon them, I order and command that any one who shall for five consecutive months fail to work a mine with four operatives regularly employed and occupied in some interior or exterior work of real utility and advantage shall thereby forfeit the right which he may have to the mine, and it shall belong to the denouncer who proves its desertion.

Article 10, same title, declares that no mine shall be abandoned without first informing the deputation of the district, in order that it may be published by fixing notices on the doors of the churches and other accustomed places, so that all may have notice thereof.

Article 11, title XIX, grants in favor of scientific professors of mining the privileges of nobility, in order that all persons who devote themselves to this important profession and occupation may be considered and treated with all the distinction due to so noble a profession.

According to Escriche, the laws of Spain passed prior to 1821 and the laws of Mexico passed since that date have not changed the fundamental principles laid down in the ordinances of the 22d of May, 1783, in relation to the ownership of mines and the manner of acquiring title thereto, hence these audiencias have been in force in Mexico since the date of their passage in 1783, the Mexican mining laws passed since the year 1821 not 29 having essentially changed the spirit thereof.

From the foregoing it is manifest that under the laws and royal ordinances of Spain from very early times down to the date of the independence of Mexico, and under the mining laws of Mexico down to the publication of the new edition of Escriche (1869), the miner could acquire no absolute title of fee in any mine discovered by him in any part of the Mexican territory, the usufruct thereof being all that was granted him by the government, and this under such regulation, instructions, and conditions as were imposed by law, and when these conditions were not complied with the right to work the mine is lost and could be acquired by any one else who might undertake to comply with the conditions and regulations inseparable from the privilege of working mines.

The Spanish and Mexican governments in granting lands in Mexico never in terms reserved the minerals contained therein, for the reason that under the constitutional laws they were reserved by and for the government. For this reason in the many grants of land made by Spanish and Mexican authorities in Sonora, as well as in California, no mention is made of minerals. Pastoral and mining pursuits were separate branches of industry, and in a certain sense independent of each other. Both were cherished and protected by the government. To the grazier and agriculturist was granted so much of the soil as he had means to occupy and improve, together with such appurtenances thereto as was necessary to make the occupation of the soil possible and the use thereof valuable, and to the miner were granted the minerals he might discover in the soil and the usufruct of the mine in which they were found; but to neither of these parties was the grant unconditional.

30 To the grazier were granted lands on condition that he occupy them usefully to himself and to the government, and the abandonment thereof was followed by a forfeiture of title, in which case the land reverted to the government, to be regranted to a more industrious applicant.

To the miner was granted the exclusive right to work the mine he might have discovered on condition that he observe certain rules and regulations established by law and pay to the government a certain portion of the products of the mine. A violation of these conditions was also followed by a forfeiture of such title as he possessed, the usufruct of the mine reverting to the government, to be regranted to a more vigilant and honest miner.

The objects of the government in granting lands for settlement were the increase of the wealth and population of the country, the spread of the Holy Catholic faith, and the extension of the powers of the Spanish monarchy, and the motive that induced the granting of privileges to miners was that the royal treasury might be supplied with American gold. No grants of lands or mines were ever made by the governments of Spain or Mexico for speculative purposes. It is true that lands were sometimes granted as a reward for distinguished services, but in all other cases on condition of occupation. From a careful consideration of the foregoing laws and ordinances, as well as of the usages and customs of Spain and Mexico, I am forced to the conclusion:

First. That the grantee of land under the Spanish and Mexican governments acquired no title to the minerals contained in the granted lands.

31 Second. That the title to the minerals contained in the tract granted remained in the government, notwithstanding the grant of lands.

Third. That under the Spanish and Mexican laws and ordinances any one had a right to dig in search of minerals under certain conditions on his own lands or on those belonging to individuals or private persons.

Fourth. That the Government of the United States, under the treaty of 1853 for the purchase of a portion of the territory of Sonora, succeeded to all the rights and obligations of the Mexican governments in relations to the ceded territory at the date of the treaty. The result of these conclusions necessarily is that since our Government succeeded to all the rights and obligations of the Mexican government in relation to the ceded territory it is bound by the treaty to recognize and confirm all rights, titles, and privileges which had been granted by that government to private individuals prior to the cession of the territory and to carry out the intentions of the Mexican government towards those having ownership in lands and mines precisely as if there had been no change of sovereignty. It is therefore clear to my mind that any one has at present a right to prospect for minerals on such portions of the ceded territory as may have been granted by the Mexican government to private individuals and a right to work any mines that may be found on said lands under no more onerous conditions than the reasonable ones imposed by the mining laws of Mexico.

See article XIV, title 11, Ordinances, May 22nd, 1783, heretofore cited.

32 Grants of land by Spain and Mexico in the ultramarine possessions of the Spanish Crown.

The ancient laws of Spain declare that the ownership and full dominion of conquered kingdoms belong to the monarch. (Law 11, title I, partida 11.)

Wherefore, the West Indies having been conquered by the arms of the Catholic King and Queen, Fernando and Isabel, in the XVI century, in consideration of the facts that no person can live without the means of subsistence and no city exist without the rents necessary for its support, their majesties thought proper to cede to the towns (poblaciones) of America and to the councils of the same certain portions of lands from which to derive their support, using the same for pasturage and cultivation or in the manner that may be directed by the municipal ordinances; these lands were denominated consejiles or de propios.

Another portion of the (conquered) lands were distributed by concession of the King to those who assisted in conquering the country as rewards for their services, and lands were also sold to individuals (particulares) for the purpose of obtaining means to supply the necessities of the Crown. These lands, donated or sold, were denominated de domina particular (of private property), as in fact they are, because the full ownership thereof was transferred to the donees or purchasers, and hence they are truly private property.

The usufruct of the remaining lands were ceded by the kings to all their vassals that they might make use of their pastures, woods, waters, and other natural productions for the support of their 33 flocks and herds, which lands are called "common lands" because they are for common use. They are also called valdios (vacant lands) because nothing is paid for the use of pasturage or firewood that may be cut thereon. They are also realengos (royal lands) because the dominion and property thereof are reserved to the King by the right of conquest, although he ceded the usufruct of the same to his vassals.

(Law 111, title VIII, Book VII del Ordenamiento.)

(Law X, title XV, Book 11, recapilacion.)

(Law 11, title I, Book III del Ordenamiento.)

(Law I, title V, Book VII, recapilacion.)

For the disposition and settlement of the realengo lands of Spanish America royal decrees were from time to time issued and laws and ordinances passed, changed, or modified to suit the circumstances of the times, having for their end a proper disposition of the realengo lands and the encouragement of the occupation of the country by the actual settler. The royal decree of the 24th of the month of November, 1735, required petitioners for realengo lands to apply to the royal person of the King for a confirmation of their titles. This decree, however, was found to be prejudicial to the settlement of the realengo lands, the expenses attending such applications being so great as to prevent many persons from applying for these lands; wherefore to remedy this difficulty were issued the royal instructions of the 15th of October, 1754.

34 Article 1st of these instructions provides that from the date thereof the power to appoint subdelegate judges to sell and compromise for vacant lands of the royal domain shall belong exclusively to the viceroys and presidents of the royal audiencias of the kingdom, who are required to notify the subdelegate judges of their appointments and furnish them with a copy of the instructions, the viceroys and presidents being required to give immediate notice to the secretary of state and universal dispatch of the Indies of the ministers whom they might appoint as subdelegate judges of their respective districts.

Article 30 provides that all persons who shall have possessed royal lands, whether settled or cultivated or not, from the year 1700 till the year of the publication of this order may prove before the subdelegate the titles and patents in virtue of which they hold their lands.

Article 4th provides that persons in possession of royal lands by virtue of sales or compositions made by subdelegates before the year 1700, although the same may not be confirmed by the royal person of the King, shall not be disturbed in the possession thereof.

Article 5th provides that the possessors of lands sold or compromised for from the year 1700 till the present time shall not be disturbed in the possession thereof, provided their titles have been confirmed by the royal person of the King or by the viceroys and presidents of the audiencias during the time they exercised this faculty; but such possessors of lands as have not obtained such confirmations shall apply to the audiencias of the district to have their titles confirmed.

35 Under this decree or instructions, the preliminary proceedings of survey, valuation, publication, and sale of realengo land petitioned for having been taken by the minister subdelegado of the district in which the land was situated, the expediente showing such proceedings was transmitted to the royal audiencia for approval, and if the proceedings were found to be regular they were approved and the title was issued and registered in a book kept for that purpose.

The provinces of Sinaloa and Sonora belonged to the real audiencia of Guadalajara, and hence the sales made of realengo lands in these provinces under the decree of 1754 were registered in the office of the real audiencia of Guadalajara.

The law of 1754 remained in force until the 4th of December, 1786, when, to cure some defects and remedy some inconveniences found in the practical workings of said law, the royal ordinances of intendentes were issued. Under these royal ordinances the Kingdom of New Spain was divided in twelve intendencias, exclusive of California, one of which was the general intendencia of the army and province and to be established in the capital of Mexico and one the intendencia of Sonora and Sinaloa, the capital of which was established in the city of Arizpe.

The viceroy was to exercise the superior authority and the various powers conferred on him by royal commission and by the laws of the Indies as governor and captain general, but the superintendency of the royal treasury in all its branches and revenues was committed to the care, direction, and management of the general intendency of the army and treasury, established in the capital of Mexico. A superior junta was established in the capital, having jurisdiction over all matters relating to the royal treasury and the army, 36 and also over the public property and revenue.

Article 81 of these ordinances provides that the intendentes shall be the exclusive judges of all causes and questions that may arise in the district of their provinces in relation to the sale, composition, and grant of realengo lands.

Under these ordinances the proceedings preliminary to a grant of realengo lands were taken in the same manner as under the law of the 15th of October, 1754, but these proceedings, instead of being referred to the real audiencia for approval, were submitted to the intendente, who referred the same for examination to the promotor fiscal, who made a report thereon; whereupon they were referred by the intendente to the "provincial junta de hacienda," and when approved were transmitted through the office of the commandante general to the city of Mexico for final approval by the "superior junta de hacienda," and if found to be correct the proceedings were approved, the approval registered in the proper book, and the expediente returned to the province where it belonged.

mandante general of the western provinces, made a decree to the effect that, "notwithstanding what was provided in article 81 of the ordinances of the intendentes, captains of presidios were authorized to grant house lots and lands to soldiers and settlers who might desire to establish themselves under the protection of the presidio. These grants were, however, limited to the territory embraced within four leagues measured one league from the presidio to each of the cardinal points. The motives of this decree are manifest; they were that the soldiers of the presidio might make homes for their families and that pueblos might grow up around the presidial establishments.

37 The ordinances of the 4th of December, 1786, were further modified by the royal decree of the 23rd of March, 1798.

This decree provides that when the value of the realengo lands petitioned for and sold by the intendentes does not reach the sum of two hundred dollars it shall not be necessary to refer the proceedings to the superior junta for approval. The reason for the issuance of this decree was that the expenses attending a reference to the superior tribunal were often greater than the value of the lands sold, which prevented persons of small means from making application for realengo lands and much retarded the settlement of the country.

Under these ordinances with the modifications referred to grants of realengo or royal lands continued to be made until the dominion of Mexico was lost to the Crown of Spain by the revolution which resulted in the independence of Mexico in 1821.

From the foregoing laws, ordinances, and decrees it is seen that the constant policy of Spain was to encourage by all means the settlement of her possessions in the new world; that, while the absolute ownership of the realengo lands was retained by the Crown, laws from time to time were passed for the purpose of enabling actual settlers to obtain titles to so much of these realengo lands as they required for their use and occupation in the pursuits of agriculture and stock-raising. Yet while the terms under which titles to these realengo lands could be obtained for actual use and occupation were made so easy as to be within the reach of petitioners of humble means, still the government guarded with jealous care their disposition by passing such laws as made it impossible for the vassals of the King to acquire them for any other purpose than that of actual use and occupation.

38 Grants of "terrenos valdios," or vacant lands, by the government of Mexico subsequent to the year 1821.

The revolution of 1821 changed the form of government of Mexico without producing any radical change in the habits or thoughts of the people. In 1822 an imperial government was established, which, however, was soon abolished and the republican form adopted, and in 1824 a federal constitution was formed, modelled somewhat after that of the United States. On the 4th of August, 1824, the sovereign constituent Congress of the United States of Mexico passed a decree, No. 70, in which are specified the sources of the federal revenues, and the 11th article of this decree recites "that the rents that are not included in the preceding article of this decree belonged to the States." As a compensation for this concession by the general government the sum of three million one hundred and thirty-six thousand eight hundred and seventy-five dollars was required to be paid yearly by the States for the support of the general government. This sum was apportioned to the different States according to their population and wealth, the sum apportioned to the State of the West (Estado de Occidente), embracing the Spanish provinces of Sonora and Sinaloa, being $53,125.00. Under this law grants or sales of land were made in the State of Sonora from 1824 down to the time when the system was changed by legislative enactment.

After the independence of Mexico the old intendencia of the Spanish government, embracing the provinces of Sonora and Sinaloa, was called El Estado del Occidente (the State of the West), continuing united under that name until about the year 1830, when they were divided by the boundary, as it now exists.

39 On the 20th of May, 1825, the constituent congress of the free, independent, and sovereign State of the West (El Estado del Occidente) passed provisional law No. 30, regulating the system of selling the public lands. Under these provisional regulations the prices under which public lands could be sold were graduated according to the location and quality of the land. The quantity allowed to one individual was limited to four square leagues, unless the applicant could satisfy the government that he required more for the use of his stock.

Under this provision of the law the State of the West in making grants or sales of land continued the system that had been established by the Spanish government; the same formalities were observed, the lands were surveyed, valued, published for thirty days, and at the end of that time were sold at public auction to the highest bidder, the treasurer general of the State occupying the same position under the State government that the intendente did under the Spanish government. The grants, however, issued by the treasurer general required no approval by the supreme government. Between the times when grants ceased to be made within the jurisdiction of the intendencia of Sonora and Sinaloa by the authorities of the Spanish government and the time when they were made by the authorities of the "Estado del Occidente" under the law of the general congress of 1824 and the provisional law of the congress of the State of 1825 the granting power was exercised by an officer entitled comisario general provisional de hacienda credito publico y guerra, whose headquarters were generally at Fuerte, a town in Sinaloa, near the northern boundary of the State, as shown by the records of the times.

40 Report of special agent, Mr. R. C. Hopkins, states "that notes or expedientes of grants of land in the government archives of Sonora show that about the year 1825 a number of grants were issued by the above-named officer on proceedings which under the Spanish government had not gone beyond the approval of the provincial junta de hacienda, having, doubtless, at that point been arrested by the revolution of 1821."

In these cases no borradores or draughts of title are found in the expedientes, but notes are found of the register of the grant in cuaderno No. 2 in the office of the comisario general.

On the 30th of May, 1834, the constituent congress of the State of Sonora issued decree No. 10, which provided as follows:

Article 1st. Six months' further time is granted to possessors of land who have failed to obtain titles of ownership thereof as required by decree No. 11 of the 28th of June, 1833.

Article 2nd declares that if at the end of this time, which shall not be extended, the possessors of land shall not appear and make their grants effective their lands shall be denounceable and the claimants thereof shall be subject to the penalties imposed by the organic laws of the treasury which is about to be passed. This law was required to be circulated and published in all the pueblos of the State, the respective authorities being directed to furnish exact lists of the lands in their district for which titles have not been obtained.

On the 11th of July, 1834, was passed the "ley organica de hacienda" (organic law of the treasury).

41 Article 57 of this law provides that any one having necessity for a tract of land for grazing or other purposes shall present himself before the treasurer general, applying therefor in the name of the State, accompanying his application with a testimony of three impartial witnesses in relation to the circumstances of the petitioners, character of the land, etc.

Article 58 declares that to no new settler (celador) more than four square leagues shall be granted or sold unless it can be shown that on account of the abundance of stock owned by such new settler he needs more, in which case the treasurer general will concede him only so much as he may need, as shown by the testimony of impartial witnesses.

Article 60th declares that the treasurer general, as the immediate chief of all the revenues, shall make sale of the lands and issue titles therefor.

Article 61st declares that those who possess lands to which they have not obtained title, although the lands have been applied for and surveyed, shall present themselves to the treasurer general within the time designated by the law No. 10 of the thirtieth day of May of the current year (six months from the first of June, 1834).

The lands of the proprietors which may not be regulated in accordance with this disposition shall remain vacant and be denounceable, provided the proprietors thereof shall not present themselves and make application for their titles within the time prescribed by said law, setting out in writing the cause of the failure to obtain title.

42 Article 62nd directs the treasurer general to refer these matters to the promotor fiscal for his opinion, whereupon the matter will be determined in view of the rights of the interested party and of the public treasury.

Article 63rd requires grantees of lands to construct boundary monuments of rough stone and lime within three months after issuing of the title, and, failing to do so, they have to pay a fine of twenty-five dollars and the cost of constructing the necessary monuments.

Article 64 fixes the value of the public lands as follows:

For dry lands only suitable for grazing, fifteen dollars per square league.

For such as may be irrigated from reservoirs and contain pasture, forty dollars, and without these circumstances thirty-five dollars per square league.

For such as may contain springs or rivers, but are dry and broken, sixty dollars per square league, and eighty dollars per square league for such as are very fertile and suitable for agriculture.

These were the minimum prices for less than which lands could not be sold in any case whatever.

Article 72 directs the surveyors to appoint as appraisers of the lands petitioned for persons who are free from prejudice and not especially partial to the petitioner.

Grants made subsequent to the passage of the foregoing law referred to the decree of the general congress of the 4th of August, 1824, and to the decrees of the congress of the State of Sonora on the 30th of May, 1825, and of the 11th of July, 1834, as the basis on which they were made, and all the grants of land in Sonora since the passage of these laws were made under the authority thereof.

Grants under the laws of colonization.

To encourage the settlement of the vacant lands of the Republic the sovereign general constituent congress of the United States of Mexico of in (?) 18th of August, 1824, passed a law, article 1st of which declares that the Mexican nation offers to foreigners who may come to establish themselves in the territory security in their persons and property, provided they submit to the laws of the country.

Under this law any lands of the nation that did not belong to private individuals or pertain to corporations or pueblos were subject to colonization, except such as were embraced within the twenty leagues bordering on a foreign territory or the ten leagues bordering on the seashore. In the granting of these lands Mexican citizens were to be preferred to foreigners. To carry into effect this general law the congresses of the States were to form such laws and regulations as might be necessary, in accordance with the general constitution and principles established by this law.

The maximum quantity that could be granted to one person under this law was eleven square leagues—one of irrigable, four of arable, and six of pasture lands.

The concluding article declares that in accordance with the principles established by this law the government will proceed to colonize the territories of the Republic.

Under this law grants were made in the territory and department of Californias, down to the change of government on the 7th of July, 1846.

On the 4th of April, 1837, a decree was issued "to render effective the colonization of the lands of the Republic."

44 This decree declares the government, in concert with the council, shall proceed to render effective the colonization of the lands which may be or should be the property of the government by means of sales, leases, or mortgages, applying the proceeds thereof (which, in case of sale, shall be at a price not less than $1.25 per acre) to the extinguishment of the national debt which has already been or may be contracted, always reserving a sufficient quantity to fulfill the promises made to the soldiers as a reward for their services in the war of independence, and also sufficient to satisfy the concessions made by congress as Indian reservations, and to those who had assisted in the re-establishment of the government in Texas.

On the 15th of September, 1837, an agreement was entered into in the city of London between the agents of the Mexican government and the holders of Mexican bonds to the following effect:

Article 1st provides for the consolidation of the national debt at 5 per cent. interest per annum. F. de Lizardy and Co. were appointed as agents of the Republic to act in the matter, these gentlemen to issue in the name of the Mexican government the corresponding bonds of the consolidated fund in sterling money payable in London on the 1st of October, 1866. A certain class of these bonds were receivable in payment for vacant lands in the departments of Texas, Chihuahua, New Mexico, Sonora, and California, as might be desired by the purchaser, at the rate of one pound sterling for four acres, interest to run on the bonds until the purchasers of the lands should be placed in possession thereof.

Article 7th declares or provides that the payment of these bonds should be secured by a mortgage in the name of the Mexican nation on one hundred million of acres of the vacant lands of the departments of the Californias, Chihuahua, New Mexico, Sonora, and Texas.

45 On the 1st of June, 1839, the foregoing agreement was approved by decree of President Santa Ana.

Attempt of President Santa Ana to annul grants made in the territory of the Republic after 21st of September, 1821.

On the 25th of November, 1853, President Santa Ana issued a dictatorial decree declaring "that the vacant lands (terrenos baldios), being the exclusive property of the nation, could never have been alienated by any title whatever by virtue of decrees, orders, and dispositions of the legislatures, governments, or authorities of the States or territories of the Republic. Wherefore such sales, cessions, and alienations as may have been made of the vacant lands without the express order and sanction of the general powers in the form prescribed by law are declared null and void."

On the 7th of July, 1854, President Santa Ana issued a second decree in relation to public lands requiring all titles of the alienation of public lands made in the territory of the Republic from September, 1821, to the date of the decree given either by the general authorities or the extinguished States and departments shall be submitted to the revision of the supreme government, without which they shall be considered of no value, nor shall they convey any right of property.

The foregoing decrees of President Santa Ana were annulled as follows:

On the third day of December, 1855, Juan Alvarez, president ad interim of the Mexican Republic, issued a decree abrogating in all their parts the decrees of the 25th of November, 1853, and of the 7th of July, 1854, issued by President Santa Ana, and declaring that all the titles issued during the period referred to in said decrees
46 of 1853 and 1854, by the superior authorities of the States or territories under the federal system, by virtue of their legal faculties or by the authorities of the departments or territories under the central system, without the express authorization or consent of the supreme government for the acquisition of said lands, the same being in accordance with existing laws in relation to such alienations, shall in all time be considered as firm and valid, the same as the titles to any other property legally acquired without in any case being subject to a new revision or ratification by the government." This decree further declares "that the alienations of vacant lands that may have been made by the authorities of the States, departments, or territories without the requisites mentioned in the foregoing article and in contravention of the requirements of article 4 of the law of congress of the 18th of August, 1824, are null and void, and the possessors of lands in such cases shall be subject to such penalties as may be imposed by the laws of the Republic."

Article 4 of the law of the 18th of August, 1824, above referred to, is as follows:

"The territories embraced within the twenty leagues bordering on a foreign nation and the ten leagues bordering on the sea cannot be colonized without the previous approval of the supreme government." Decree of President Alvarez further declares "that the concessions or sales of vacant lands which may have been made by competent authority and in accordance with the laws in force controlling the same, under the express obligation of colonizing them within a fixed time, on a failure to comply with this condition the land in such case reverting to the nation." The decrees of 47 President Santa Ana of 1853 and 1854 was also abrogated by the act of the Mexican congress of the 16th of November, 1856; but even if the dictatorial decree of President Santa Ana had not been declared null they could not effect the Mexican grants in Arizona. Since the treaty was signed on the 25th of September, 1853, while the decree of Santa Ana was not issued until the 25th of November, 1853, and that although ratifications of the treaty were not exchanged until after the 25th of November, 1853, these ratifications have a retroactive effect relating to the date of the treaty (September 25th, 1853) and bound both governments from that date.

From the foregoing historic sketch of the laws, ordinances, and decrees of the governments of Spain and Mexico in relation to the disposition of public lands is gathered—

1st. That under the ancient laws of Spain the full dominion of a conquered kingdom was claimed by the monarch by right of conquest.

2nd. That the lands of the conquered kingdoms were divided into three classes: First, such as were conceded for the establishment and support of pueblos, which were denominated consejiles or de propios; 2nd, such as were granted by the King to those who had assisted in conquering the country, and such as were sold to individuals for the purpose of obtaining means to supply the necessities of the Crown, which lands were denominated de dominio particular, and, 3rd, such as remained of the conquered kingdom, which were called "common lands," "vacant lands," and "royal lands."

3rd. That the usufruct of this last-mentioned class of lands was ceded by the kings to their vassals under the provisions of such laws as from time to time were passed in relation thereto.

48 4th. That these royal lands were granted for use and occupation, and that the quantity granted was limited to such an amount as the applicant might need and was able to use and occupy.

5th. That up to the 15th of October, 1754, grants or concessions of royal lands required the approval of the King.

6th. That from the 15th of October, 1754, to the 4th of December, 1786, grants of land were issued by the real audiencias and did not require the approval of the King.

7th. That from said 4th of December, 1786, to the date of the Mexican independence grants of the royal lands were made by the intendentes or governors of provinces and required the approval of the "superior junta de hacienda," established in the capital of Mexico.

8th. That the exceptions to this rule are as follows, to wit:

On the 22d day of October, 1791, Don Pedro de Nava issued an order permitting captains of presidios to make grants within the four jurisdictional leagues of the presidio, and in 1798 grants of the royal lands of a value of less than $200 did not require the approval of the "superior junta de hacienda."

9th. That on the change of governments in 1821 the realengo or royal lands of the Spanish government became the public lands of the Republic of Mexico and continued to be disposed of to settlers by valuation and sale, much in the same manner as they had been under the Spanish government.

10th. That the act of the Mexican congress of the 4th of August, 1824, gave to the State of the West (Estado del Occidente), composed of the States of Sonora and Sinaloa, the public lands embraced therein, requiring from the State for this concession the annual payment into the federal treasury of the sum of $53,125.00, and that, based upon this act of the general congress, the congress of the States of Sonora and Sinaloa united, on the 20th of May, 1825, passed a provisional law providing for the disposition of the public land; which provisional law was followed by the organic law of hacienda, passed by the congress of the State on the 11th of July, 1834, confirming the provisional law of 1825, with some amendments thereto.

11th. That on the 18th of August, 1824, the general congress of Mexico authorized the colonization of such lands of the nation as did not belong to individuals or corporations, directing the legislatures of the States to make such laws or regulations as might be necessary for the carrying into effect the provisions of this general law within their respective jurisdictions.

12th. That the provisional regulations made by the congress of Sonora on the 20th of May, 1825, for the disposition and settlement of the public lands may be considered as authorized to be made by the act of congress of Mexico on the 18th of August, 1824.

13th. That on the 25th of November, 1853, and the 7th of July, 1854, Gen. Santa Ana, by dictatorial decrees, attempted to annul the grants of land made subsequent to the 15th of September, 1821; which decrees were abrogated by decree of President Alvarez on the 3rd of December, 1855, and by act of the Mexican congress passed November 16th, 1856.

14th. That grants of the realengo or royal lands were made by the Spanish government for settlement, use, and occupation, and that grants under the Mexican laws of colonization and under the provisional regulations made by the congress of Sonora and Sinaloa of the 20th of May, 1825, and the organic law of hacienda of the 11th of July, 1834, were made under the condition of occupation within a limited time under penalty of forfeiture of the right granted unless a good cause could be shown why the condition of occupation had not been complied with.

Wherefore, since grants of the public lands were given on condition that they continue to be occupied, and if abandoned they were subject to denouncement and could be regranted by the government, it is manifest that these grants of the public domain by the government were conditional and did not pass the absolute title or fee of the land.

Regarding the testimony in this case touching the early occupation of said rancho, in accordance with the requirements of the laws, usages, and customs of the country making the grant, I hold it to be ample. Such occupation is historically notorious, and the cause of the abandonment of equal historical notoriety.

As to the testimony relating to the mineral and non-mineral character of the land, it appears to be quite conflicting. The witnesses knew nothing of the boundaries of the said rancho, and until a new survey shall have been made upon the ground it will be impossible for any one to exactly testify to the characteristics of all the said grant or tract.

The questions were so framed as to call out answers that would surely apply to the land of the grant, and I am confident they do.

The claimants have furnished what they call an accurate map of the grant, executed, no doubt, from the notes of the original survey as shown in the expediente, and reasonably enough (to my mind)

51 object to making a survey on the ground at this time, inasmuch as they will be required to pay for one and perhaps two more official surveys before receiving patent in the event of confirmation.

The testimony of Fred. G. Hughes, which so flatly contradicts that of Silas Hawes and Nicholas Stanton in some particulars, is but slightly contradictory so far as the land of the said rancho is concerned, the mines at and near Charleston not being on the San Rafael del Valle grant.

Have travelled over said grant and am satisfied that there are no mines upon it which are now being worked or at all developed, but that, as the witness Hughes says, some of it bears mineral, whether of much value or not remains to be proven by future development.

JOHN WASSON,

U. S. Surveyor General.

Tucson, Arizona, October 21th, 1879.

[SEAL.]

OFFICE OF SURVEYOR GENERAL,

TUCSON, ARIZONA, March 23d, 1892.

I hereby certify that the paper attached hereto is a correct copy of the paper it purports to be a transcript of on file in this office.

ROYAL A. JOHNSON,

U. S. Surveyor General, District of Arizona.

Endorsed: Filed February 21, 1893. James H. Reeder, clerk, by R. L. Long, deputy clerk.

52 And be it further remembered that thereafter, to wit, on the 28th day of March, A. D. 1894, being the 11th day of the December term, 1893, of this court, held at Tucson, in the Territory of Arizona, the following proceedings were had:

JUAN PEDRO CAMOU, Plaintiff, }
vs. } No. 3.
 THE UNITED STATES, Def't.

This cause came on for trial, William Herring and Rochester Ford, Esqrs., appearing for Juan Pedro Camou, and Geo. Hill Howard appearing in propria persona and as attorney for plaintiff; Matt. G. Reynolds, U. S. attorney, and Wm. H. Barnes, Esq., of counsel, appearing for the defendant.

The plaintiff called R. C. Hopkins, — Bonillas, D. Snyder, and M. Marks, who were sworn and examined.

The defendant called C. Layton, P. C. Merrill, and H. O. Flipper as witnesses, who were sworn and examined.

The court adjourned until the following day, to wit, the 29th day of March, 1894, at 9.30 o'clock a. m.

When on said last date the trial of this cause was resumed, Thos. A. Barton was called on behalf of the defendant, sworn, and examined.

Upon the trial of this cause, on the 28th and 29th days of March, 1894, the following testimony, oral and documentary, was offered and introduced :

53 In the United States Court of Private Land Claims, Sitting at Tucson, Arizona.

JUAN PEDRO CAMOU	{	No. 3. "San Rafael del Valle" Private Land Claim.
THE UNITED STATES.	}

Transcript of short-hand notes of testimony, etc., taken upon the trial of the above-entitled cause at the court-room of said court, in the city of Tucson, Arizona, on Wednesday, March 28th, 1894, before the full court and in the presence of Matt. G. Reynolds, Esq., attorney for the United States, Wm. H. Barnes, Esq., assisting, and of William Herring, Esq., Rochester Ford, Esq., and George Hill Howard, Esq., attorneys for petitioner, said Howard also appearing in his own behalf.

Mr. Ford stated the claims of petitioner.

R. C. HOPKINS, a witness called and sworn on behalf of the afore-said petitioners, testified as follows :

Direct examination.

By Mr. HERRING :

Q. What is your full name, Mr. Hopkins?

A. Rufus C. Hopkins.

Q. Where do you at present reside?

A. San Francisco.

Q. State whether under the act of July 5, 1870, the surveyor general, with the approval of the Department of the Interior, delegated and appointed you to proceed to the capital of the Mexican State of Sonora and examine the archives found there, and there make transcripts and minutes of all title papers and proceedings therein relating to grants of lands within the Territory of 54 Arizona, and report their condition as to proper form, validity, etc.

A. I was not appointed by the surveyor general, but directly by the Department of the Interior.

Q. Under the act that I have referred to?

A. Yes, sir; under the provisions of that act.

Q. And to perform the duties I have stated?

A. Yes, sir,

Q. Did you execute the duty entrusted to you?

A. I did.

Q. Were you at that time familiar with the Spanish language?

A. I was; yes, sir.

Q. In executing that duty did you proceed to the Mexican capital of Sonora—Hermosillo?

A. I went first to the city of Ures, which was then the capital; but meantime it was removed to Hermosillo, and then I went to Hermosillo.

Q. Among the records and papers that you investigated at Hermosillo did you find any papers relating to the title of the grant known as the San Rafael del Valle?

A. I did.

Q. Was that grant at that time a grant within the limits of the Territory of Arizona?

A. It was; yes, sir.

Q. You made certain notes of your examination at that time?

A. I did; yes, sir.

Q. Can you recall now, without reference to those notes, the nature of your examination?

A. I have examined the notes within the last few days in the surveyor general's office, but I can recall generally without them.

Q. Can you recall more fully with them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Take the papers now shown to you, which purport to be copies of those notes from the surveyor general's office in Arizona, and state what examination you made of the San Rafael del Valle grant papers and archives in the office of the secretary of the State of Sonora or the office of treasurer general of Sonora, at Hermosillo?

A. In my examination of the archives among other grants
55 that I found I found that of the San Rafael del Valle, of which I made an examination of this character—of the title, etc.

Q. What papers did you find there?

A. I found the original expediente. Shall I read from this report?

Q. You may state generally in the best way you can.

A. I found the original expediente or matrix of the grant.

Q. Do you now remember whether or not that matrix was on stamped paper?

A. Yes, sir; it was on stamped paper, as I remember.

Q. Did you find any entry in the Toma de Razon?

A. Yes, sir; found an entry in the Toma de Razon, of which I made a copy on my notes. I also copied the field-notes of the description of the survey of the grant.

Q. Were those copies incorporated by you in your report at that time?

A. They were; yes, sir.

Q. State, now, what those field-notes were.

A. The notes of the survey taken by the surveyor—the measurement of the lands—the courses and distances measured.

Q. I understand you to say there was a separate paper constituting the field-notes?

A. Oh, no, sir; they were bound up in the proceedings I have described.

Q. And were part of the proceedings?

A. Yes, sir. Of the expediente?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes; containing forty pages of writing.

Q. And the signatures to those papers which you found there, did you compare those signatures yourself with other signatures of the same person?

A. I did; yes, sir.

Q. What have you to say in relation to their appearance of genuineness?

A. My recollection is I found them genuine. I have not seen them since, or, at least, for many years. I haven't seen the original testimonio for ten or twelve years. I so reported at the time—that they were genuine.

Q. Did you, at the same time, have in your hands or under 56 your consideration the titulo which is now handed to you (handing witness a document)?

A. When I made the examination?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. No, sir; I did not have that at that time.

Q. Did you at any time during the progress of your investigation of this title?

A. I subsequently had it; yes, sir. The endorsement is in my handwriting: "No. 3: original title papers of San Rafael del Valle." I was employed in the surveyor general's office after my examination as special agent, and I then saw that for the first time; it was on file in that office.

Q. Had you at the time you made the examination in Sonora familiarized yourself with the method which appeared to have been in operation in relation to granting lands by the State of Sonora at or about the period when this grant claims to have been made?

A. I had, generally, yes, sir, I will state, in 1872; before that I had been to Sonora as an agent of the Government, in 1872, but at that time I was appointed by the Government, but I was employed by the Texas Pacific railroad in 1872.

Q. Is that in relation to any investigation of titles or archives?

A. Yes, sir; the same character of work.

Q. To what extent did the San Rafael del Valle land grant which you had under investigation at this time appear to conform in general manner of granting and making to the system that you found to have been in operation at the time when this grant is claimed to have been made?

A. I think it conformed to it in every respect; that is my recollection. In fact, all the grants that I found were similar in form.

Q. At the time you were making these investigations as to this particular grant in Arizona did there come under your observation and investigation other grants within the limits of the State of Sonora?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Made by the State of Sonora?

57 A. I took a list of all the grants I found in the archives, going as far back as 1661, and I embodied this in my report to the Government. Of course I didn't examine carefully, only so far as to see that they were in the present limits of Arizona.

Q. So far as you examined grants made in 1824 and subsequent thereto, which grants were in the limits of the State of Sonora, did you or not find the grant of San Rafael del Valle conform in the method of making the same to the manner which was in operation at the time of its date?

A. I did.

Q. With other grants?

A. Yes, sir; that is my recollection.

Q. Did you find any "borrador" with this grant?

A. No, sir; I find from notes in the office of the surveyor general that I found no borrador.

Q. From your examination which you have made of the records in the archives at Hermosillo, in relation to land grants, will you state whether you became to any extent, and, if so, to what extent, familiar with the signature of José Maria Mendoza?

A. In my examination I became very familiar with that signature, sir.

Q. (Exhibiting document.) Look at the instrument now shown to you—the "titulo" in this case (interrupted)—

A. I will remark further: About thirty years ago, I think, there were, perhaps, four or five grants belonging to Mr. Camou that were for sale in San Francisco, of which grants I made translations. I think this was one of them. That was as far back as thirty years ago, I think.

Q. Look at the signature now upon this "titulo" shown you and state whether that is or not the genuine signature of José Maria Mendoza.

A. I think it is his genuine signature; yes, sir.

By Mr. HERRING: I would like to have it marked as Claimant's Exhibit No. 1 and offered in evidence.

58 By the WITNESS: I see the signatures of the assisting witnesses are gone—worn off.

Q. To what may that be ascribed, from your examination of that paper?

A. I think because of wet—exposed to dampness. The paper is decayed.

(The document was thereupon marked as requested.)

Cross-examination.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. When you made your examination in the archives did you notice anything peculiar in this expediente?

A. Not that I recollect.

Q. Did you examine it to see the peculiarity of the signatures?

A. Oh, yes; I examined the signatures carefully.

Q. Did you examine to see if the signatures corresponded with the names in the body of the instrument?

A. I think I did, but I can't recollect.

Q. Did you examine the petition for the grant?

A. I think I did.

Q. Did you see the name of Rafael Elias?

A. I think I did.

Q. Did you see any erasures in that instrument?

A. Not that I remember of. I haven't any recollection as to any erasures. I haven't any positive recollection as to the examination of signatures except that one of Mendoza.

Q. I am not asking as to that now, but as to the erasures in the instrument.

A. I haven't any recollection now of erasures.

Q. Did you see the name "Ignacio" erased and the word "Rafael" written over it on the first line of the petition for the grant?

A. I do not remember. It may have been so, but I do not now recollect.

Q. Did you see the letter "Y" and the letters "Eu" in Eulalia erased in the original petition?

A. I do not recollect.

Q. You do not recollect whether or not in the original such erasures existed?

A. I do not.

59 Q. You do not embody anything of that kind in your report?

A. No.

Q. Do you know whether you noticed over the name "Ignacio," signed at the bottom of the petition, was written the word "Rafael"?

A. I do not recollect.

Q. You do not recollect that?

A. No.

Q. Do you know whether at the bottom of the petition, in signing it, the name "Eulalia Elias" — erased?

A. No, sir; I don't remember. It is 15 years since I made the examination and, of course, I have no individual recollection of anything of that kind.

Q. When you found the expediente in the archives it was incomplete as a matrix, wasn't it?

A. Perhaps it was; I do not remember now.

Q. It didn't have a "borrador"?

A. It had no "borrador;" no, sir.

Q. It would not have been a complete matrix without a borrador?

A. Of course; a great many haven't the borrador. Of course, it lacked that, but I can't say what else.

Q. If that had been there it would have been a complete matrix?

A. I think so; that is my recollection.

Q. Did you undertake to find out whether that grant was located in the United States or not?

A. As nearly as I could; yes, sir.

Q. And you came to the conclusion that it was in the United States, and so reported?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you find out whether the whole of it was in the United States?

A. I could not tell that.

Q. But you became satisfied some, if not all, of it was in the United States?

A. Yes, sir; that was my opinion. I saw it joined the San Pedro.

Q. Do you know when Mendoza died?

A. I do not.

Q. Was he living at the time you were there?

A. I think not.

Q. Was he living at the time this grant was in San Francisco, probably trying to be sold there, about thirty years ago?

60 A. I am not certain. I was trying to remember. I knew a nephew of his in Altar. He told me that he had died, but I do not remember now when; I think it was before 1860, but I cannot recollect the time now.

Q. The document you have there is not a complete copy of what is in the archives?

A. I think not.

Q. It bears the same general defects as borne in these other cases?

A. Precisely; the same character in every respect, I think.

Redirect examination:

Q. Describe, Mr. Hopkins, what is a borrador.

A. A borrador is from the word "blotter." It is a rough first draft, an instrument from which afterwards a copy is made. It is from the word "blotter."

Q. It merely exhibits what is presumed to be a plat of the land in question described in the matrix and expediente?

A. It purports to be a copy of the grant title—the titulo itself, you know. In California generally a copy of the grant was attached to the proceedings, just as in Hermosillo, and filed away in the same way—that is, with the signatures copied, but sometimes the signatures were not copied.

Q. In your investigation there was it or not a frequent occurrence that the borradores were absent?

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. REYNOLDS :

Q. Do you know how it happened to be absent in these cases?

A. I do not.

Q. Was any notice attached to the expediente in explanation of why none was there?

— I do not remember.

Q. Do you remember the endorsement made in 1828 as to why title happened to be issued on this expediente at the time?

A. I had forgotten that; yes, sir.

Q. Until I called your attention to it?

A. Yes, sir; such is the fact. I supposed I had seen it.

By Mr. HERRING :

Q. Was there anything about this grant, from your investigation, to excite your suspicion at all?

A. I think not, sir.

By Mr. HERRING : We now offer in evidence a certified copy of the report made by Mr. Hopkins to the Government of the United States and ask that it be marked Exhibit 2 on behalf of claimants.

The report is objected to because the witness has undertaken to testify to the facts set up in the report.

By Mr. HERRING : It is not for that purpose that we offer it. It is offered for the purpose of showing that the subject of this grant has formerly been under inquiry by the authorized agent of the defendant in this case and passed upon to the extent that that report discloses at that time.

The document offered was admitted subject to the objection and marked "Exhibit 2."

By Mr. HERRING : We now offer as an exhibit the translation of the titulo, which is here.

By Mr. REYNOLDS : If, upon examination, we have any objection to urge to the translation, we reserve the right to file them.

Said document marked "Exhibit 3."

By Mr. HERRING : We next offer a certificate as to the record Toma de Razon, at Hermosillo.

Said document was admitted and marked "Exhibit 4."

62 By Mr. HERRING : The translations are on file in the case already. They are offered also.

Said documents were thereupon marked "Exhibit 4a."

By Mr. HERRING : Next we offer copy of deed of sale of the grant in question to the Camou Brothers, with translations.

Said deed was marked "Exhibit 5" and the translation thereof marked "Exhibit 5a."

Next is the judicial inquiry at Guaymas, held for the purpose of settling the title among the heirs of Elias family at the time of the transfer.

Said document was marked "Exhibit 6."

Also dissolution of copartnership between Camou Bros., in Spanish, with translation.

Said document was marked "Exhibit 7" and the translation thereof "Exhibit 7a."

Next I offer a certified copy of the titulo of the San Pedro grant, with translation.

Said document was marked "Exhibit 8" and the translation thereof "Exhibit 8a."

GEORGE J. ROSKRUGE, a witness called and sworn on behalf of the petitioners, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. You reside here in Tucson, Arizona?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you lived in Arizona?

A. 22 years.

63 Q. Are you or not familiar with the business of surveying and civil engineering?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that your occupation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And has been how long?

A. Over 20 years.

Q. State whether at any time you have made a survey of a tract of land known as the San Rafael del Valle land grant.

A. I have.

Q. About what time did you make it?

A. I made it in 1891, in May and June.

Q. At whose request did you make it?

A. At your request, sir—no, but you were present when Mr. Camou requested it.

Q. You made it for Mr. Camou, the claimant in this case?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What assistants did you have with you, if any, at the time of this survey?

A. I had Mr. John W. Taylor, Ed. Wood, Mr. Douglas Snyder, and a portion of the time Mr. Max Marks was with me.

Q. Was any one else aiding and assisting the perfection of this survey?

A. Your son was down there when I went down first and also part of the second time and Mr. Camou was along with me when I went down there. I don't know his name. That was all.

Q. Did you have any paper or instrument or description as a suggestion to you?

A. I had a copy of the expediente.

Q. Expediente of what?

A. Of the San Rafael del Valle grant.

Q. Was that in Spanish or in English?

A. It was in English, sir.

Q. Did you have any other papers in relation to the lands described in that vicinity?

A. Not when I went down first.

Q. At any time did you?

A. I did afterwards.

Q. What was the paper?

A. It was a certified copy of the expediente of the rancho of San Pedro.

64 Q. Did you have it in the Spanish or in the English?

A. In English.

Q. Did you have it in Spanish also?

A. First, yes, sir; had it translated and afterwards came back and got a certified copy from the surveyor general's office.

Q. Office at Tucson?

A. Yes, sir; Royal A. Johnson.

Q. Now, with those papers in hand, what did you do?

A. I went down to the valley of the San Pedro.

Q. When you say that, what do you mean, the San Pedro mountains or river?

A. The valley of the San Pedro river, covering a point from Charleston running south to San Pedro, in Mexico; that is where I went first. I went all over that valley and looked for what was described in the expediente as a hill or mountain in the centre of the valley for the central point, and that I failed to find. I then went to the "limy hill," where I found a monument on the top and a post in it that had been set there and marked by Mr. Charles M. Allis.

Q. Who was he, if you know?

A. U. S. deputy surveyor who made a survey of the grant for the United States Government.

Q. Will you explain whether you had any reason for looking for any monument or mark on a limy hill or a post?

A. I say I found a post in a monument on the summit of a limy hill, which was the north centre of the grant, as called for in the expediente, and there was no other limy hill in the whole neighborhood. I never saw anything like it in my life before. It is a very peculiar formation.

Q. Tell the court briefly what that peculiarity was.

A. It looked like a lot of burnt lime—calcareous, or whatever you call it. The whole top was covered with a lot of lime formation like cinders.

65 Q. Stones fractured—broken—around?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do then?

A. I run from there over towards the east, where I found an old monument, and then I run towards the west.

Q. One moment. When you say you run from there towards the east, in what way did you run; what did you have there?

A. Well, I chained north 85 degrees east 6,204 feet to the summit of a hill, where I found a monument.

Q. Describe that monument.

A. Well, that monument was on the summit of a hill—an old monument, which I took to be the monument of the grant, it being very near to what I would call at right angles to the centre line of the grant coming up the valley. I then came back to the limy hill and run north 81 degrees east 6,600 feet, where I found another monument of stones.

Q. What appearance had that as to age?

A. It looked like an old monument. It wasn't as high or as big, I don't think, as the one I found at the east.

Q. Was the one at the east a monument which had apparently been artificially created there?

A. Yes, sir; it was a monument placed there, built there by some one, of course.

Q. And the one at the west, was it of similar apparent construction?

A. Yes, sir; built of stones carried from somewhere and piled up there.

Q. After finding these two monuments, what next did you do?

A. The next thing I did was to run down the valley and try if I could find from the papers I had the north boundary of the rancho of San Pedro, which is called for in the expediente, being the southern boundary.

66 Q. Did you chain down from that line?

A. Yes, sir; I chained down through the centre of the valley.

Q. What did you find?

A. I had a translation of the expediente of the San Pedro grant, and I went to a monument that I believed to be the centre of the grant of San Pedro. That monument was a square-built monument, the best monument I have ever seen in Arizona except the boundary monuments.

Q. What was it built of?

A. Stones.

Q. What had it the appearance of?

A. The appearance of being a regularly built monument, built up by a mechanic, not thrown loosely together, but a regular square-built monument.

Q. Was that within the boundaries of the United States?

A. Within the boundaries of the United States; yes, sir.

Q. What did you do then?

A. I then went to Ochoaville, where there are old ruins, which answered the description called for in the expediente, as going towards the northeast.

Q. What expediente do you refer to?

A. Of the San Pedro. There I found a lot of old ruins, and right under the old ruins on the banks of the San Pedro river I found an old monument of stones. I then run further on towards the north-east and found two little hills.

Q. Was the old monument you found at the San Pedro river within the calls of the San Pedro grant?

A. It was on that line, and I believed it to be one of the monuments of the San Pedro grant as called for. Then I continued my line on till I come to a place out from the valley. I found no monument there, but it answered the description of the little hills, and they were the only little hills I found in the whole valley that would answer the description. Then I run over and found a stony 67 hill, which is called for in the San Pedro expediente. I am running out the San Pedro expediente now, from the centre northeast. I then went to the Bachata canyon, a point in the San Pedro (interrupted)——

Q. Stop there. Did you have any difficulty in finding that Bachata canyon?

A. No difficulty in finding the canyon at all. It is a large canyon and I was perfectly satisfied it was the canyon. There I found a monument, but not having a certified copy of the expediente with me at that time and having no one with me who could tell me if that was the Bachata canyon I left then and came back to Tucson and notified your firm that I wanted to be supplied with a certified copy of the expediente, and then wanted to go back there again and be supplied with witnesses who could tell me whether that was the Bachata canyon and whether those were the points called for in that expediente.

Q. Subsequent to that time did you return to that valley to continue this survey?

A. I did.

Q. At that time state whether any persons appeared there as witnesses in reference to this name Bachata applying to any canyon.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who?

A. An old Mexican by the name of Gonzales and another by the name of Concepcion Elias.

Q. Concepcion Elias and Antonio Gonzales?

A. Yes, sir. Mr. Douglass accompanied me when I went back. I then went to the monument so well built, the centre of the San Pedro, and I asked the Mexicans, What monument is this? They said they didn't know. How long has it been here? I said. They said, "A long, long time; ever since I can remember." I pointed to the line monument and asked them, What is that? and he says, "That 68 is a line monument; I was a soldier when that monument was built, but this square monument was here several years before the line monument." I said, "All right; take me to the ruins," and at the ford—the crossing below the old ruins—Mr. Snyder and myself measured—chained—the distance up to the old ruins. I saw no other old ruins in this valley than these. I asked if there was any other old ruins in the valley besides these and they said, "No; only away down below Fairbanks." I said to them, "Can you take me to the ford?" and they took me to the ford and said that was the old crossing. We could trace the old ruins all over the ground. When I got down to the banks of the river there was a Texan living there (interrupted)—

Q. Would you remember the name if you heard it?

A. No, sir; I don't think I would.

Q. Proceed.

A. He came out and says, "What are you doing there?" and we had a talk with him and he said he had lived there a great while and that it was an old monument.

From there we went over to the little hills—we could see them right in front of us—and we went straight over and told him to take us to the stony hill. They took us to this stony hill, and from there I asked them to take us to the brushy place mentioned in the expediente. but as it was all brush there we couldn't find anything, but we were certain we were on the right track. I told him to take us to the Bachata canyon, and they took us to the same place where I had been before and said that was Bachata canyon. That gave us good reasons to believe I had found the northeast corner of the San Pedro grant.

Q. What did you find in the canyon?

A. I found an old big monument of stones, and in looking

Q. Did you at that time photograph the initial monument of the San Pedro grant?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. (Exhibiting photograph.) Look at the photograph which is shown you and state what it represents.

A. That is the initial monument of the San Pedro grant, Antonio Gonzales in the immediate foreground, Elias to his immediate right, both sitting on the monument. Mr. Snyder is standing right behind them.

Q. State whether you photographed the little limy or calcarious hill.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. (Exhibiting a photograph.) What does that represent?

A. The limy or calcarious hill, the landmark of the San Rafael del Valle grant, with a post on the summit.

By Mr. HERRING: These two photographs are offered in evidence. Said photographs were then marked respectively Exhibit "9" and Exhibit "10."

Q. Did you make any photograph of the monument you found in the Bachata canyon?

A. I did.

Q. (Exhibiting another photograph.) Look at the photograph now shown you and state what it represents.

A. The old monument on the south bank of the Bachata canyon, the northeast monument of the San Pedro grant.

Said photograph was offered in evidence and marked Exhibit "11."

Q. (Exhibiting another photograph.) What does this represent?

A. That is a view looking down the Bachata canyon from the northeast corner of the San Pedro grant.

70 Said photograph was offered in evidence and marked Exhibit "12."

Q. Did you take a second view of the San Pedro initial monument?

A. Yes, sir; here it is (producing a photograph).

Said photograph was thereupon offered in evidence and marked Exhibit "13."

Q. Did you take any photograph of the old monument at the northeast corner of the San Rafael del Valle?

A. Yes, sir (exhibiting photographs); that is the old monument, the northeast corner of the San Rafael del Valle, with John Taylor and Ed. Woods standing beside the transit.

Said photograph was offered in evidence and marked Exhibit "14."

Q. Did you take a photograph of the northwest corner?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. (Exhibiting photograph.) What does that represent?

A. That is the old monument at the northwest corner.

Said photograph was offered in evidence and marked Exhibit "15."

Q. Now, having found the Bachata monument and canyon as described, what next did you do?

A. I then run from there due west.

Q. Did you chain from there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Yes?

A. Due west to the centre of the valley, right to the San Pedro river.

Q. What did you find there?

A. Didn't find anything.

Q. Did you project that line at all?

A. Went further west; yes, sir; went out and searched on the plain there, but couldn't find a single thing.

71 Q. Did you establish any corner there on the base line, with the north line of the San Pedro grant as a base line?

A. I merely put in a post there; that is all.

Q. At what distance from any other given point, if you remember, about?

A. 13,100 feet from the monument in the Bachata canyon.

Q. From where to where?

A. From the monument on the Bachata canyon to the San Pedro river.

Q. Well, what other lines, if any, did you run in that survey?

A. I run from the north centre down to this point that I marked for the south centre.

Q. That you have just described?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Any other lines?

A. I run lines between those—all around those fences on the grant.

Q. There were fences on the grant?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At this time did you take any other photographic views of the physical condition of the surface of the earth in the neighborhood of that grant?

A. (Producing another photograph.) Here is one; a San Pedro grant monument on the Rocky hill, in front of the Sierra de Huachuca.

Q. "Sierra de Huachuca" is called for in the calls of the expediente?

A. Of the San Pedro grant; yes, sir.

Said photograph was offered in evidence and marked Exhibit "16."

By the WITNESS: Here is a photograph of hills on the east side of the San Pedro river, Pyatt's house at the foot of the hill, "the line terminating in the valley at the skirt of a hill, at the distance therefrom of 3 cords, where I caused a corner monument to be placed." It is looking southwest.

Q. You are there quoting from the calls of the expediente?

A. Yes, sir.

72 Said photograph was thereupon offered in evidence and marked Exhibit "17."

By the WITNESS: Here (producing another photograph) is a photograph of the "Sierra de Huachuca," from the monument on the Rocky hill in front of the Huachuca mountains. That is a better photograph than the other one.

Q. That is a different view?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Called for in the expediente?

A. Yes, sir.

Said photograph was offered in evidence and marked Exhibit "18."

Q. Any other?

A. (Producing another photograph.) Here is another photograph showing the Huachuca mountains in the rear.

Said photograph was offered in evidence and marked Exhibit "19."

By the WITNESS: Here is a view marked "View looking from the post S. R. G. No. 8 to old N. E. corner monument of the San Rafael del Valle P. L. C. monument on hill in centre."

Said photograph was offered in evidence and marked Exhibit "20."

Q. Do you know whether any statement or declaration was taken from this old Mexican or these old Mexican witnesses at the time that they appeared there to point out the marks and objects to which you have referred?

A. Yes, sir; there was a statement taken.

Q. Who took that statement?

A. Your son, sir, in my presence.

Q. Do you know who else was present at that time?

A. Well, Mr. Douglass Snyder was there and Mr. Marks, but I can't recollect whether they were then present; they were all in the room together.

73 By Mr. HERRING: We offer those statements in the absence of the witnesses.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: The witnesses are alive and are in this town, and we object to the statements for any purpose.

By Mr. HERRING: We have no knowledge of their being here. Do you know that they are here?

By Mr. REYNOLDS: We brought them here. They were here yesterday.

By Mr. HERRING: We will take a subpoena, Mr. Clerk, for Concepcion Elias and Antonio Gonzales on behalf of the claimants in this case.

Q. Did you make any calculation of the area within the lines surveyed which you have described?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The area of the plot described by you?

A. 20,034.62 acres.

Q. State whether you made a map from the data which you obtained by this survey that you have described.

A. I did, sir.

Q. Look at the paper now presented to you and state whether or not that is the map which you made.

A. I believe it to be; yes.

Q. Is it a correct delineation of what you saw and found upon the surface of the earth at the point described by you?

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. HERRING: This map is offered in evidence.

Same marked Exhibit "21."

74 Cross-examination.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. Did you take the expediente or testimonio and undertake to retrace the steps of the surveyor as laid down in that instrument?

A. I had that expediente with me; yes.

Q. I ask you did you undertake to retrace his steps?

A. I did.

Q. Did you undertake to make the measurements that he is alleged to have made?

A. No, sir.

Q. Why?

A. Because, in the first place, I could not find the centre of the grant. The only way I could do was to go to the north centre, a well-known point, and then find the south point by going over the San Pedro grant.

Q. Why not go to the north line of the San Pedro grant to start with?

A. Because that line is called for as the south line of the San Rafael del Valle grant.

Q. If you could not find the initial point, why didn't you take that point and measure back?

A. Oh, I measured down and tried to find that point and couldn't. I hunted all over for the centre point and couldn't find it, sir.

Q. You could not find the initial point of this grant?

A. No, sir.

Q. You went to the subordinate points—his north line of the San Pedro, which is the south line of the San Rafael del Valle?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why did you take that north line as a subordinate point to start with?

A. I had to find it.

Q. You located the north line of the San Pedro grant in the United States?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are satisfied it is in the United States?

A. Yes, sir.

75 Q. How far inside of the line?

A. The centre monument, I should say, is half a mile inside of the United States—that is, what I believe to be the centre monument.

Q. Yes.

A. Using my best judgment; yes, sir.

Q. Did you go to the initial monument of the San Pedro grant?

A. That is what I supposed to be the initial monument.

Q. Your survey is based largely on the fact that you located the initial monument of the San Pedro grant in the United States?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then your survey is wrong if as a matter of fact it is in Mexico—the initial point of the San Pedro grant?

A. I don't know that it is.

Q. I say if the initial point is in Old Mexico your survey is wrong?

A. No; I don't say that, even.

Q. You do not?

A. No, sir.

Q. Suppose the initial point were about ten miles south of the line—the initial monument of the San Pedro grant should turn out to be about ten miles south of the line—then your survey is wrong?

A. No; I don't say even then that it is wrong.

Q. Why?

A. Because they might have shifted that grant. They can't come between the Huachuca and the Mule mountains from ten miles below there. Faith can move mountains, but I'll be dog-goned if they can.

Q. Are there any other limestone hills along the San Pedro?

A. I didn't find anything in the world that looked like that.

Q. Did you go south of the line?

A. I went all over it; I went down around the mesas, and I hunted the whole country over.

Q. Did you go clear down to the San Pedro ranch?

A. Where the custom-house is?

76 Q. I don't know anything about that.

A. Yes; I went down there twice.

Q. You went clear down to Mexico, on the San Pedro ranch?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you find any limestone hills there?

A. I don't know that I did.

Q. Did you hunt for any?

A. When I went along I was keeping my eyes open.

Q. If there should turn out to be some there now, they were probably there then?

A. If you can convince me that I am wrong, I am perfectly willing to acknowledge, but I believe I am right.

Q. You believe there are no other limestone hills to be found along the San Pedro river down below the international boundary line?

A. There is no hill below this point. This is the most curious-looking hill you ever saw, and there is nothing like it in the whole country. I looked for hills there and all around.

Q. Now let us go over the expediente. It says in the presence of the interested party the measurement was begun at a place where there were several small hills.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you find that point?

A. That is the point I told you I did not find.

Q. You did not?

A. No, sir.

Q. Then, "continuing a south course, there were measured and counted two hundred cords, the line terminating at the line of the rancho of San Pedro." Did you find the rancho of San Pedro near that line?

A. I found the rancho of San Pedro away down in Mexico.

77 Q. Did you undertake to find whether there were some small hills north of that? You say you found the Rancho San Pedro south of the line.

A. I found a ranch called San Pedro; yes, sir.

Q. And did you find any small hills north of that ranch?

A. I don't recollect of any small hills north of that ranch till I come up this side of the line, probably about a mile, and then there were some small hills.

Q. Would they have answered this call?

A. Well, it would have been a terrible stretch if they did.

Q. Wouldn't they come as near answering this call as a pile of stones answers your monuments out there?

A. No, sir.

Q. How far did you continue north before you located these hills?

A. Which do you refer to?

Q. I am speaking of the small hills at which the survey is located.

A. I never found any.

Q. There were some small hills north of the San Pedro ranch—as you found the ranch in Mexico—at the time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. (Reading:) “And in his name was present the administrator of said rancho, with documents showing that his measurement extended to that point, etc. Returning to the centre, the course was run to the north two hundred cords, which terminated in the same valley, at a point at which there is a small limy hill.” Now, how far north from the San Pedro ranch do you locate this small limestone hill?

A. As near as I can tell, probably a good twenty-five miles from the San Pedro ranch.

Q. And that you take as the north centre monument?

A. Yes, sir; that is what I take it for and believe it to be.

Q. Twenty-five miles north of the San Pedro ranch you found a little limestone hill (interrupted)——

78 By Mr. HERRING:

Q. Are you speaking of the ranch or the ranch-house now?

A. I am talking about the San Pedro custom-house. That is the only San Pedro I know. That is eight or ten miles below the line—where Mr. Elias lives.

By Mr. REYNOLDS (continuing):

Q. How far north of the international boundary line is that little limestone hill?

A. Oh, probably between fifteen or twenty miles, as far as I can remember.

Q. (Reading:) “At which place I ordered a pile of stones to be put for a monument.” Did you find that monument?

A. I found a monument there.

Q. You were 25 miles from the ranch-house of the San Pedro ranch—north?

A. I should say that much: yes.

Q. Returning to the centre then, fifty cords are said to have been measured to the east, terminating in the valley in front of the Mule mountains. Did you run that line?

A. I went and hunted that monument, but did not find it.

Q. Did you run fifty cords?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Where did it land you?

A. I think somewhere in the mesa.

Q. How far from the mule mountain?

A. The Mule mountains were on one side and the Huachucas on the other.

Q. How far away were the Mule mountains?

A. Oh, eight or ten miles.

Q. You did not find any pile of stones there?

A. No, sir.

Q. Returning then to the centre, fifty cords were measured to the west, terminating in the same valley in front of the cordillera of the Sierra de Hauchuca, at which place a pile of stones was placed for a monument. Did you find that?

79 A. No, sir; I hunted and hunted for it, and we all hunted for it.

Q. How far did you run that west line from the north centre monument?

A. We didn't go any further west than just about the fifty cords.

Q. And there you searched for a monument, but didn't find it?

A. Didn't find it, no, sir.

Q. How did you make your line on this side? Did you establish a monument there and stop your survey there?

A. I didn't establish any monuments at all.

Q. Did you stop your survey there and draw in your line there?

A. When I came down to the bank of the river and run my line from the limy hill south on my plat I took the distance called for in the expediente—fifty cords—and measured them out and drew my lines from northeast and southeast down, showing what I believed to be the land covered by that expediente between the San Pedro and the limy hill.

Q. Did you pay any attention to the area as designated in the expediente?

A. No, sir.

Q. How did you designate that first course that you laid off from the north centre monument—so many degrees? Where did you get that?

A. I got that in platting it off.

Q. You did not take it with an instrument?

A. No, sir; you couldn't. I run down on Allis's course for ten and a half miles and found the place for the monument and went and checked back on it, and from there I run further south, connecting with a flag that I left on the bank of the river, which I put there after running east from the Bachata cañon.

Q. You took as a basis of this survey the monument established by Mr. Allis, didn't you—the one with a pole in it?

A. I took the hill with a monument on top of it, sir.

80 Q. As a basis of your survey?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Roskrige, having established these subordinate points, ought you not to have been able to have correctly established the initial monument? Having established to your satisfaction these subordinate points of the survey, oughtn't you to be able to establish the initial point of the survey?

A. Yes, sir; if the measurements were exactly correct.

Q. But even if the measurements were approximately correct?

A. There was nothing to establish it with.

Q. You established the subordinate points?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And from the subordinate points you made the survey?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, from that you ought to be able, had you not, to establish the initial point?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you try to do that?

A. Did I try to establish it?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. No, sir; I looked and hunted for it over the country and could not find it as described in the expediente.

Q. Then, as a matter of fact, there is no such initial point as designated in this expediente in the valley of the San Pedro included within your survey?

A. I could not find it, sir.

Q. The only initial point you know is the north centre monument located by Mr. Allis?

A. No, no; not located by him; it was taken by him.

Q. Yes. Then the expediente is without any initial point, so far as you know or are able to determine by the calls of the instrument within the confines of the survey you have testified to here today?

A. I could not find it.

81 Q. Outside of the confines of the survey and up the San Pedro towards the San Pedro ranch, did you ever look to find any such natural object as called for here going down and across the line?

A. Yes; and the only little hills that I could find were the ones that were called for in the San Pedro grant, the second course from the ford.

Q. They were down on the San Pedro ranch?

A. That was supposed to be one of the monuments of the San Pedro ranch.

Q. If it should turn out in the testimony or if it should turn out as a matter of fact that the little hills did not fall within the San Pedro ranch but were north of it—ranch or grant I am talking about now, as designated in these title papers (interrupted)—

A. There is a lot I can't tell you about that is in evidence,,but (interrupted)——

Q. I say, if it should turn out that there are a lot of little limestone hills lying without the San Pedro ranch and north of it and in this valley, might not they be the initial point, and would not they answer very well for the initial point under the circumstances?

A. I couldn't tell you anything along that whole valley that would answer the calls for that initial point.

Q. Didn't you say you found away above some limestone hills?

A. That for the north centre.

Q. But no small hills?

A. No.

Q. In the absence of finding any other small hills and it should turn out that the small hills you did find fell without the San Pedro grant, would not you conclude, if that survey had been made and this grant located by those hills, that that was the initial point of the survey?

A. Yes, sir, of course, if it could be proved to be so.

82 Q. But suppose they were the only hills and they did not fall within the San Pedro ranch and are north of it in the San Pedro valley and you can't find any others, would not you take those to make your survey from?

A. I expect it would have to be; but the trouble with that is you can't move the mountains down that way; you have to get between the Huachuclas and the Mule mountains.

Q. Then you mean to say with this survey this grant cannot be located in the manner in which it is located in this expediente?

A. Yes, sir; that grant can be located to this extent, that from the north centre to the north line of the San Pedro it can be located. There might have been a big monument in the centre of that valley that was washed away, but I didn't find any, understand.

Q. You did not get the north centre monument by virtue of any measurement, did you?

A. No; went right there.

Q. Took it arbitrarily?

A. Yes, sir; went right to the north centre monument; you couldn't get a measurement from anywhere.

Q. If you should take the north line of the San Pedro ranch as located and measure the north and south lines called for in this expediente it would not take you to the north centre monument?

A. No, sir.

Q. It would fall away short of it?

A. Yes, sir; twelve thousand feet, I think.

Q. Did you calculate the area of this grant as surveyed?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it?

A. Twenty thousand-odd acres.

Q. Did you run all of the lines?

83 A. Not the outside lines. I run the line down the centre.

Q. Was it a straight line?

A. No, sir.

Q. You run the end lines?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And squared it?

A. Yes, sir; not squared it either. I run across whatever courses they were.

Q. Did you undertake to make a rectangle out of it?

A. No; I run the lines as marked on the ground for the centre.

Q. Do you know, now, where the San Pedro grant is located?

A. I believe it is located right in Arizona. I know where it is down there below, you understand. Mr. Elias had leased a lot of land this side of the line, and Mrs. Elias told me the north line of the San Pedro was above Hereford.

Q. It is a wonder they didn't take in Tucson?

A. His memory suddenly failed him, I guess.

Q. If Mr. Elias had had his San Pedro grant measured, surveyed, and confirmed in Mexico and had denounced and bought the demacias correctly as being located in Mexico, then the grant would be in Mexico, I suppose, wouldn't it?

A. I don't know anything about that.

Objected to as argumentative.

Q. The your grant, if you had gone to the north line of the San Pedro as your first subordinate point with which to verify your survey, it would not have been the same as it is by starting at the north centre monument, would it? Instead of taking your starting point at the north line of the San Pedro grant, if you had started from there and verified north, it would not have been the same as it is now, having started north and verified south?

A. Of course it would, if I started from the line I run from the Bachata cañon.

84 Q. Locate the Bachata cañon on this map.

A. (Witness did so.) That is what they tell me, understand.

Q. Now point out the first place you went to here.

A. Right there (indicating on the map).

Q. And how did you undertake to find your centre monument? What is the first course you run?

A. Right over here (indicating).

Q. And what did you find?

A. A monument of stones on top of that hill.

Q. And that is the reason you stopped there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What kind of a monument—an ordinary pile of stones like the balance of them in this country?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how did you establish this point (indicating)?

A. By the monument there.

Q. Was there any other there?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you look for any?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The same kind of a pile of stones?

A. Ordinary pile of stones; yes.

Q. Did you go further west to find any other pile of stones?

A. Hunted around like I naturally would to see if there was any more around there, and didn't find any.

Q. Did you undertake the verify the measurements with the expediente?

A. I know they were short, because I found Mr. Allis's monument out there.

Q. Where was that?

A. Further out here (indicating).

Q. Further than yours?

A. Yes, sir; Mr. Allis's monument was out here.

Q. Not the same as yours?

A. No, sir; I think it was longer.

Q. How did you establish this point (indicating the S. E. corner)?

85 A. There is nothing established right there; that is merely protracted down here (indicating).

Q. You undertook to protract these lines parallel with the river?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Leaving out its meanderings?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you protracted to the north end of the San Pedro ranch?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is the survey?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I want to ask you the question—if you had taken the expediente and it become necessary for you to establish the initial point, could you have made the survey?

A. No, sir; I don't believe I could, unless—I will add this—unless I was to measure down the two hundred cords from that limy hill and wherever they come out, running down the San Pedro valley there, I could establish the corner.

Q. If you had attempted to make the survey as made by the Mexican officials by establishing the centre monument and then making your survey from that centre monument, could you have made that survey—could you have made any survey from the title papers?

A. I didn't catch that.

Q. If you were required to establish your initial monument first and then make the survey according to the expediente, could you have made it?

A. I would have to go to that limy hill (interrupted)—

Q. Answer the question. I say if you were required to take the papers and go on the ground and hunt for and find your initial point, and from that extend your survey, could it have been made?

A. I have told you a dozen times I could not find the point.

Q. I am asking you whether the survey could be made from the initial point called for in this expediente?

86 A. Of course, you locate it one way and I another. I tell you I couldn't find the initial point.

Q. Then you cannot go there on the ground and find an initial point so as to verify the survey made by the officer who was out there surveying it?

A. No, sir.

Q. You cannot take this expediente and go out there on the ground and verify it as he alleged he made it?

A. I can to a certain extent, being satisfied with that hill, you understand, and then the grant on the south. You must mind, these fellows might have made a mistake, too, like mining claims in this country. Ninety-five per cent. of the surveys that come into the surveyor general's office the courses ain't right and the distances ain't right, and this is about the same thing.

Q. Can you take this expediente and go out there and find the initial point from which he protracted this survey on the ground?

A. No, sir.

Redirect examination :

Q. Are you thoroughly familiar with the situation of the Huachuca mountains to which you have referred?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I want you to state what is the general course and direction of those mountains.

A. They are north and south.

Q. And are you familiar also with the position of the international boundary line between Sonora and Arizona?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether the Huachuca mountains extend south below that boundary line?

A. Very little, sir; probably a mile or two; not more.

Q. Do they extend at all below that boundary line that you know?

A. The main mountain, no; just the lowest point of it.

Q. The low foot-hills?

A. Yes, sir.

87 Q. Are you familiar with the general course and direction of the Mule mountains?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether the Mule mountains extend southerly, south of the international boundary line?

A. No, sir; don't come anywhere near it; probably two or three miles of it.

Q. Then, if you have that limy peak to be taken into consideration in making your survey of this grant and establishing its position on the surface of the earth with relation to its calls and with relation to these mountains described, can you find that grant?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you so find it?

A. That is what I did.

Q. Will you describe this Bachata gulch or cañon to the court with a little more particularity?

A. The Bachata cañon or gulch is a large cañon that comes out of the Mule mountains and runs into the San Pedro valley.

Q. Do you know of any other Bachata cañon on the westerly slope of the Mule mountains?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know of any other Bachata cañon in the county of Cochise?

A. No, sir; nor in the whole United States. That is the only one I ever heard of or know of.

Q. North of the point with the Huachuca mountains on the west and the Mule mountains on the east, is there any other limy point than the one you have described?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you search?

A. Yes, sir; I went up and down the valley again and again, and I searched all over the country there. I went out there to do a fair and square job, and I did it.

Q. In relation to the monuments on the north end of the grant, you stated they were a pile of stones.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I did not ask you in relation to their being artificially
88 erected there, but I wish you would state whether from their appearance they had any indication of being artificially erected—those stones.

A. They were nothing but what I would call an ordinary pile of stones; they were not built up regularly like the one I found that I considered the centre of the San Pedro; they were merely what anybody would go there and put up for a corner; they were just a big pile of stones.

Q. Just a big pile of stones?

A. The one on the northeast, if I recollect, or the one on top of the hill could not be a very big pile of stones because there wasn't much room for it and there wasn't many stones. The photographs will tell it better than I can.

Recross-examination:

Q. You were hunting for a limestone hill in front of the Huachuca mountains, were you not?

A. I don't know whether it is so described in the expediente. I do not recollect.

Q. I am asking you what you were hunting for. It is in front of the Huachuca mountains?

A. I don't think there is anything said about that limy hill in connection with the Huachuca mountains.

Q. You do not?

A. No; I don't remember now; but in the San Pedro grant there the calls say in front of the Huachuca mountains; that I remember distinctly.

Q. Didn't you, just a few moments ago, undertake to locate that limestone hill by the fact of the location of the Huachuca mountains?

A. No, sir; I don't think I did; if I did, I misunderstood your question.

Q. If you did you made a mistake?

A. Yes, sir; probably I was talking about (interrupted)——

89 By Mr. HERRING: We were then discussing the centre point of this grant.

Q. What monument is it located with reference to the Huachuca mountains?

A. The one called the stony hill, of the San Pedro.

Q. Does this grant call for any monument located with reference to the Huachuca mountains?

A. I don't think it does.

Q. If I should say the west centre monument is called for in front of these Huachuca mountains, you would say you were mistaken all along about that?

A. Not mistaken, because I haven't looked at the expediente for some time.

Q. Is it not a fact that the west centre monument called for in this grant is located with reference to the Huachuca mountains?

A. I can't remember all about that. If it is in there I saw it when I was there, and that's all about that.

Q. (Reading :) "Returning to the centre, the measurement was continued towards the west, etc., the line terminating in the valley in front of the Huachuca mountains." If I say to you that is the only place where the mountains are referred to, then it might be near the San Pedro ranch and still in front of those mountains?

A. I would not call it "in front." I would not call it in front of a house when you run around the side of the house. The mountains are standing right here (indicating on the map), full abreast of you.

Q. Is that about the correct location of the Huachuca mountains and the Mule mountains (referring to map of Cochise county)?

A. I should say they were.

Q. Pretty nearly parallel with the general direction of this grant on either side of it, aren't they?

90 A. Yes, sir; that's what they are; that is what I say; they run north and south, and this is in the same general direction.

Q. In other words, the way you have located the grant is almost parallel with them?

A. Yes, sir; so the centre monument would be about there (indicating). You could not get it anywhere down here (indicating a point further south on the map).

Q. You could put it anywhere in front of the mountains?

A. But you can't put it at the end and call it "in front."

Q. How long are those mountains?

A. You may go up and down the valley anywheres, but when you get to the San Pedro you are at the end of it.

Q. The west centre monument could have been a few hundred yards above the end of it and still away south of where you located the centre of it?

A. No; where I located the centre of it was right in front.

Q. Couldn't you locate it somewhere else in front of the Huachuca and still be in front?

A. Yes, sir; but you wouldn't want to go too far, understand.

Q. Look at that map and see if it is comparatively topographically correct. Would not your west centre monument fall at the upper end of it?

A. But when you stand "in front" of a mountain you run your arms out this way (illustrating), and there it is in front of you.

Q. There are mountains right directly west?

A. Yes; of course.

Q. And if you run a due east-and-west line you would not go southwest to strike a ranch?

A. When a man wants to get in front of anything he throws his arms out this way (illustrating). I have done that thousands of times, and I would not call that the front of the mountains where you point it out; that would be away up towards Igo's place. It 91 may be that that map is not correct (referring to map of Cochise county), only I don't want to dispute it. I couldn't say whether it is or is not.

By Mr. HERRING: The Huachuca mountains are not correctly represented on there.

IGNACIO BONILLAS, a witness called and sworn on behalf of the petitioner, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

By Mr. FORD:

Q. State your full name and occupation.

A. My name is Ignacio Bonillas, and I am a mining engineer and surveyor.

Q. How long have you been a surveyor, and where?

A. For 11 years, in the State of Sonora and in this Territory.

Q. What knowledge, if any, have you of the location of the international boundary line as it runs between the Huachuca mountains on the west and the Mule mountains on the east?

A. The knowledge that I have is by having made surveys there and retracing the United States boundary line, and I find that the line runs just through the southern extremity of the Huachuca mountains and does not touch the Mule mountains at all; it leaves the Mule mountains to the north.

Cross-examination.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. Did you ever have occasion to survey the San Pedro ranch?
Objected to as not cross-examination.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: I will make him my own witness and you may cross-examine him.

Q. It is the land formerly owned by Don Jesus Perez?

92 A. I don't know who purchased it. I have made surveys of several San Pedro ranches in Sonora.

Q. I mean the first one lying south of the international boundary line.

A. Do you mean the San Pedro Palominas?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Yes, sir; I have.

Q. Did you find the initial point of that grant?

A. The survey that I made of that grant was under peculiar circumstances. I didn't have to look for that initial point or for any other point called for in the expediente. It was simply a resurvey of a survey that had been made previously.

Q. Well, in making your survey you used the expediente for the purpose of verifying and correcting the former survey?

A. I did not.

Q. What did you use?

A. I used simply the map and field-notes of the previous survey.

Q. Who made it?

A. They were made by a Spanish surveyor by the name of Pedro Bamolera.

Q. What did you survey?

A. I made a resurvey of the land that he had surveyed.

Q. Did you locate it south of the line?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any surplus between that and the international boundary line?

A. What do you mean?

Q. Any demasias?

A. Yes, sir; I made a survey of all land that Bamolera had surveyed south of the boundary line.

Q. (Exhibiting map.) Did you make that map?

A. It is mine; yes, sir.

Q. Is that map correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the location of the San Pedro ranch or grant?

A. That is the location as Mr. Bamolera gave it and the resurvey which I made of it.

93 Q. Do you know whether that is recognized by the Mexican government as being a proper survey of that grant according to the expediente?

Objected to for the reason that any recognition by a foreign government cannot affect the parties to this suit and as mere hearsay.

Q. Are you acquainted with the natural objects down in that country?

A. The natural objects, such as mountains and so on?

Q. Yes, sir; along that river?

A. Somewhat.

Q. Continuing the north line of this grant as laid down and going down the San Pedro river, are there any small hills to be located along north of that line?

A. Just the borders of the valley all along.

Q. Are there hills?

A. I should call them lomas—low hills—yes, sir.

Q. All the way along up the river?

A. Not all the way along.

Q. Well, different places. I do not mean continuously.

A. Yes, sir; in some places there are.

Q. Do they come up to the international boundary line?

A. I believe they do; yes, sir.

Q. And they are along what is called the San Pedro river that runs up into Arizona?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is not that a map of the San Pedro grant as now occupied by its claimants?

Objected to as before.

By the COURT: We do not think that is competent.

Q. Do you know what that centre monument is in that grant or that plat? Are you familiar with that? Have you ever been to it?

A. The south centre monument?

94 Q. No; the initial centre monument of the San Pedro grant?

A. No, sir; there is not supposed to be any monument there at all.

Q. Are you acquainted with the north centre monument of that grant?

A. Of the San Pedro grant?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever been to it?

A. No, sir.

Q. How did you survey the demasias?

A. I simply made a resurvey of what a man had done before.

Q. You went onto the ground to do it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is a correct location that you make according to your verification of his survey?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You verified the lines that he run ?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he a reasonably expert surveyor ?

A. I do not know, sir.

Q. Well, did you find his lines out very much ?

A. I found some mistakes, and that was the reason I was appointed to make the resurvey—to correct those mistakes.

Q. Well, that grant as located by him and relocated by you, or the lines re-run by you, is entirely within Old Mexico ?

Objected to because there is no evidence before the court that the former surveyor of this tract ever located this grant at all, or this witness either.

Objection overruled.

A. Yes, sir; it is.

Q. And this is a correct map as re-run by you ?

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: Now, I offer this map in evidence.

By Mr. FORD: We will cross-examine him on that.

By Mr. HERRING: It is not proven, and we object to it as hearsay.

By the COURT: The court understood him to say that he made it.

95 Q. That is a correct map by your lines ?

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. HERRING: A correct map from another plat.

By the COURT:

Q. It is correct as made by your survey ?

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. In other words, it is a correct survey ?

A. Yes, sir.

Cross-examination.

By Mr. FORD:

Q. In making that map you did not have the expediente of the San Pedro grant with you ?

A. No, sir; I did not.

Q. You did not pretend to locate the calls of the San Pedro grant ?

A. No, sir; I did not.

Q. You do not know whether that locates the calls of the San Pedro grant as described in the expediente, do you ?

A. I don't know whether it does or not.

Q. You simply run certain lines which had been run by a former surveyor ?

A. Yes, sir; that is what I was appointed to do.

Q. Whether those lines as run by him conform to the calls of the expediente in any way you do not know, do you ?

A. No, sir; I do not.

Q. You did not pretend, then, in making this map to locate a grant from title papers?

A. No, sir; I did not, but simply to correct a survey made before.

Q. You do not know, then, whether that map in any respect locates the grant according to the calls of the expediente?

A. No, sir; I do not. I said it was correct as to distances and courses that are marked on it.

96 Q. What the natural monument called for in the San Pedro grant is and where it is you don't know, do you?

A. I haven't any recollection.

Redirect examination:

Q. Do you know of any other San Pedro grant in that vicinity on the San Pedro river?

A. No, sir; I do not.

Q. The original grant is four square leagues?

A. The "cabida legal" is supposed to be four square leagues.

Q. Did you have occasion to read the calls in the expediente or testimonio of this San Pedro grant we have been talking about?

A. Yes, sir; a long time ago I remember to have read the expediente de San Pedro.

Q. I wish you would translate that "cabida legal" into English.

A. It means the area called for in the title papers of a grant.

Q. What is your best impression, Mr. Bonillas, from your knowledge of that country obtained in any way, as to the correct location of the four square leagues as the area called for in the San Pedro title papers?

Objected to because no foundation has been laid for the question. Objection overruled.

A. I could not form any opinion about it.

Q. Have you no opinion now?

A. Nothing more than from this work I did.

Q. I don't care how you obtained your information. I want your opinion now.

Objected to because the witness has no data other than that stated, and he is shown to be incompetent at this time to state an opinion.

By the COURT: He has already testified to the correctness
97 of that plat and the area.

The said map was thereupon offered in evidence and marked Exhibit "A" for the Government.

Objected to. Objection overruled.

DOUGLASS SNYDER, a witness called and sworn on behalf of the petitioner, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. You reside here?

A. I do.

Q. Are you acquainted with George J. Roskruge?

A. I am.

Q. State whether in the spring of 1891 you were associated with him in making a survey.

A. I went with him in the latter part of May into Cochise county to assist in surveying the ranch of San Rafael del Valle.

Q. Were you present at any time when the parties known as Concepcion Elias and Antonio Gonzales, two Mexicans, old men, came onto the ground?

A. I was.

Q. What particular object then, if anything, was under investigation in this survey?

A. Well, as I understood it, it was to try to determine either the south end of the San Rafael del Valle or the north end of the San Pedro grant.

Q. And when these Mexicans came there do you remember what transpired there?

A. Yes, sir. They took us over to a monument, an odd monument there, partially torn down, fallen down, close to the boundary line. Mr. Roskruge asked them at that time what that monument was, and they said they didn't know. He asked when it was 98 put there, and one of them—I think it was Gonzales, but I could not be sure—said he was a soldier there at the time the boundary line was established, and that that monument was there long before that.

Q. Did they go to any other place with Mr. Roskruge that you saw or with both of you?

A. Mr. Roskruge asked them to take us to Bachata cañon—first to take us to the old ford, and they took us to Ochoaville and a little beyond it to the old ford, and we there crossed the river and skirted along some low hills that lay off to the east from the river, and finally we arrived at Bachata cañon.

Q. How do you know you arrived at Bachata cañon?

A. By the information they gave us.

Q. Were they together there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you got into that Bachata cañon what did you find there?

A. We found on the bank of the cañon quite a large monument.

Q. What was it built of?

A. Rock.

Q. What was its general appearance?

A. Well, it had the appearance of being a monument that had been built there a very long time, judging from the drift and vegetation and stuff banked up around it.

Q. You have been out frequently before with surveys?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. With different parties?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in different parts of this country?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it such an old monument as is usually found in a rim or circle of stones, which indicate Aztec or Indian mounds?

A. That is pretty hard to say. In some countries where sand drifts it will drift up wonderfully, but this was on a rocky mesa and there wasn't much chance for it to drift. It evidently had been there a great many years.

Q. Artificially built there?

A. Yes, sir.

99 Cross-examination.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. How far from the international boundary monument is the monument you speak of?

A. Well, I couldn't tell you. I know after we crossed the river we rode horseback and was riding along through the brush, and we must have been an hour and a half or two hours riding. That is as near as I could get at the distance.

Q. I am not talking about the Bachata monument, but the old monument that was partially fallen down.

A. It is not a great ways; probably a quarter of a mile. It is right in plain sight of the old monument, looking diagonally across the valley.

Q. And the monument you found at the Bachata cañon was a usual pile of stones like those seen all over that country? You have seen a great many of them, haven't you?

A. Oh, yes; I have seen them, but not a great many of them.

Q. No; but is not that character of stones all over the country?

A. I have been in all mining camps and seen stones piled up.

Q. I am not speaking of camps, but away from camps—along the valleys and on the mesas. You find them there—a great many of them?

A. Yes, sir; but in that country we hadn't been very fortunate in finding them. We rode several days and couldn't find any. It was a large monument, and I couldn't conceive what it was there for.

Q. How high was it?

A. It was a good-size monument and probably had fallen down some, too; quite a large monument.

Q. What was the size of the stones?

A. Larger at the bottom and smaller as you got up.

Q. Larger than your fist?

100 A. Oh, yes; at the bottom some were big boulders.

Q. How large?

A. Probably this size (indicating about 18 inches). I never had my attention called to it again.

Q. A man might lift any one of them?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. And carry it without any difficulty?

A. It would depend on the strength of the man. I could myself, I think.

Q. How wide was that at the base?

A. Excuse me. I want to know that I understand the monument you are speaking about.

Q. The one you found at the mouth of the Bachata cañon?

A. Yes; I understand you now.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: Well, that is all.

MAX MARKS, a witness called and sworn on behalf of the aforesaid petitioner, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. Where do you now reside, Mr. Marks?

A. Sonora.

Q. You formerly resided in this Territory?

A. In Tombstone; yes.

Q. Do you know the last witness?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Roskruge?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether in the spring of 1891 you were with these parties in investigating any survey business in the San Pedro valley, in Cochise county?

A. I was, for some few days.

Q. Do you know that country pretty well down there?

A. Yes, sir; I lived down there.

Q. How long did you live down there?

A. Five years, at the San Pedro custom-house.

Q. How long ago was that?

101 A. No; I lived there three years; right at the custom-house.

Q. Within quite recent period?

A. Yes, sir; I think from 1884 to 1888 or something like that. I think I lived five years about there.

Q. Will you state whether at any time you were there in relation to this survey or assisting at all?

A. Some; yes.

Q. Do you remember of the appearance there at any time of the Mexicans, Concepcion Elias and Antonio Gonzales?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state the circumstances under which they appeared there and what occurred? State all that happened when they came.

A. When they came there they went out to what they believed to be the centre initial monument of the San Pedro grant.

Q. Who was there at that time?

A. Dug Snyder, myself, Mr. Roskruge, and the two Mexicans.

Q. What was done?

A. We went from the centre monument, as I believe it to be, down towards the ford—what they pointed out as being the old ford.

On the west-side bank, before we crossed the ford, we found the old monument.

Q. Of what?

A. Of the San Pedro river, which the expediente of the San Pedro grant called for. We crossed the river, and there is some small hills on the east side of the San Pedro river from the valley, and from there we went to a rocky hill where we found a monument of stones. From there the Mexicans took us up to what is called the Bachata cañon.

Q. Do you know whether any request was made of those Mexicans to find the Bachata cañon?

A. We just asked them to show it to us and they took us right to it without any questions at all.

102 Q. What did you find there after you were told that was the Bachata cañon?

A. I and Mr. Roskrige rode ahead and we were down in the cañon; it is not a very deep cañon; it is more of a gulch, and we rode up on the south bank a little ways and we found a monument.

Q. Before or after it was pointed out to you?

A. After it was pointed out to us by the Mexicans—the cañon was pointed out to us. They were only about fifteen or twenty feet below us.

Q. Describe the Bachata monument.

A. It was a very large monument. Of course it wasn't as high as when it was new; it was all toppled over, but the base of it was put up there very nicely and looked like it was well put up when it was first put up there.

Cross-examination.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. Where did you meet those two Mexicans?

A. Down in Sonora.

Q. How did you happen to meet them?

A. I went after them.

Q. How far did you go to get them?

A. Thirty miles.

Q. Where were they?

A. Down at Santa Cruz.

Q. That is where you found them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you happen to know that they knew anything about it?

A. Because we were around about there—Bachata cañon—and Mr. Green told me he thought it was the Bachata cañon, but wouldn't be sure about it, and I tried to find men that knew the Bachata cañon, and they told me at San Pedro I might find some at Santa Cruz, as there were old men there that used to be on the ranch, living there, and I went after them and I found these two men that could show us where Bachata cañon was; they told us they knew where it was exactly.

103 Q. And you brought them up?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Both of them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And took them back?

A. No, sir; they went back themselves.

Q. And you located that as the centre monument of the San Pedro ranch?

A. They didn't know any other monument. They told us as Dug Snyder just testified to the same thing.

Q. Did they locate it or did you?

A. Dug Snyder didn't testify to that; no.

Q. All you were wanting to find was Bachata cañon?

A. Not exactly; no. We wanted to find it because we went down trying to establish the San Pedro grant.

Q. And you were going to find it by finding the Bachata cañon?

A. No, sir; not at all. Of course, the Bachata cañon was one of the main points. That was a natural object—a natural monument.

Q. (Showing witness Exhibit "13.") Where is that monument?

A. I think that is the centre monument, if I am not mistaken.

Q. Centre monument of what?

A. Of the San Pedro grant; one way of it. I would not be sure about it. It may be the Bachata. I don't know. I haven't seen these pictures only once before.

Q. Is that monument in Mexico or in the United States?

A. In the United States, sir.

Q. How far inside?

A. Well, I couldn't tell you exactly the distance, but I should call it maybe half a mile or a mile or perhaps more, because the line is supposed to run in kind of a diagonal way in that part of the country. The United States monument is diagonally across, as Snyder just testified to; supposed to be the old international monument.

By Mr. HERRING: We will state to the court that we have had a return to our subpoena issued to the marshal for Concepcion 104 Elias and Antonio Gonzales, and the return is that the parties cannot be found. Now, we will call upon the other side, if they have any knowledge of the whereabouts of these gentlemen, to disclose it.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: They were stopping at the Palace hotel yesterday, and we think they can be found there yet.

By Mr. HERRING: That exhausts our witnesses for the day, and, with the exception of the exhibits, which we shall offer at the close of the case, that concludes the case for the claimants.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: What exhibits?

By Mr. HERRING: I speak of filing papers.

CHRISTOPHER LAYTON, a witness called and sworn on behalf of the defendants, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

By Mr. BARNES:

Q. What is your name?

A. Christopher Layton.

Q. When did you first, if ever, come into the valley of the San Pedro, in what is now Cochise county?

A. Well, I came in in 1846, first.

Q. How large an expedition were you a member of at the time you came in first?

A. Five hundred men, independent of officers.

Q. What route did you take to come into the valley of the San Pedro?

A. We came in to the San Bernardino ranch.

Q. How with reference to the Mule mountains?

A. I don't know the name of the mountains.

105 Q. You came through the San Bernardino pass?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You know the country. Now, about where did you come into the valley? Do you know where Hereford now is or the buildings there?

Objected to as suggestive.

A. No; we come in quite a piece above Contention.

Q. About how far above where Contention now is?

A. I should think, sir, about a mile or two; probably three. I couldn't tell exactly, it is so long ago.

Q. What course did you take up the valley after you came to the river?

A. We went down the valley?

Q. Where did you leave the valley?

A. We must have left the valley, to the best of my recollection, about two miles below where the—this other stream is.

Q. The Babacemari stream, you mean?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How wide a country did your expedition cover in marching through the country?

A. At times when we camped it covered considerable—went pretty wide. Sometimes our mules would scatter two or three miles.

Q. Was there anybody living in the San Pedro valley, as far as you could see?

A. There was not.

Q. No persons living there at all?

A. Never seen anything nor no signs of anything.

(No cross-examination.)

106 P. C. MERRILL, a witness called and sworn on behalf of the defendants, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

By Mr. BARNES:

Q. When did you first come into the San Pedro valley?

A. In December, 1846.

Q. Since then have you become familiar with the valley from Benson up to the international line?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. About where did you strike the valley? How high up could you see that valley when you first came in there?

A. Well, of course we had no names to go by. The peculiar circumstances of our coming onto the river was meeting wild cattle and having trouble with them in our camp—sending out hunters to get beef. They came into our camp and wounded eight of our men and killed several of our mules.

Q. The cattle did?

A. Yes, sir. That was what was termed by us "our heavy bull fight." That was, as I ascertained, in coming back after locating the country that I had come into. Being second in command, adjutant of bat-al-ion and quartermaster also, I became pretty familiar with all the country traveled over. I found when I came back here in my exploration to find a location to settle upon—to colonize—I traversed from the Santa Rita mountains along the Huachuca (interrupted)—

Q. Confining the question to your first visit in the valley, did you find anybody living there?

A. No, sir.

Q. When did you come back again after that?

A. In the year 1877.

Q. What exploration of the valley did you make then?

A. As I was telling you, we made a halt at the Huachuca mountains—Thomas Gardiner's ranch—and I took two men
107 with myself to explore to find a location to locate our families. I found a company of United States soldiers and officers at what is now called Huachuca fort. From there I kept on to the south or near the south end of the Huachuca mountains. We learned the names then, and came to a monument between the two Republics, which was very prominent at that time—easily discovered—and from the information that I had received from Gen. Wasson concerning looking for a location, as I didn't wish to get onto a grant or any Indian reservation, I was very pointed in those matters. After his giving me the best instruction that he had he said, so far as he could ascertain (interrupted)—

By Mr. HERRING: We cannot permit this.

Q. Well, did you go down the valley?

A. Yes, sir. After I struck the monument I turned around then and went down the valley.

Q. How far did you go down at that time?

A. As far as Tres Alamos.

Q. How far from the boundary line?

A. I think forty miles, about.

Q. Was anybody settling there claiming to live on a grant?

A. No, sir.

Q. Nobody there?

A. No, sir.

Cross-examination.

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. Did you ask anybody there if they were living on a grant?

A. I could not see anybody to ask.

Q. Did you travel in the night-time?

A. No, sir; I met a man by the name of Landers coming up from Tres Alamos.

Q. He was settled there on the San Pedro?

108 A. He was going up to make a location, he said.

Q. Did he have a lot of seeds and trees in his wagon?

A. I couldn't tell you that.

Q. Was he driving a wagon?

A. I saw him at Ornesorgen's, right close to Benson.

Q. Settled there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Somewhere near your people on the San Pedro?

A. No; several miles.

Q. He made a ditch, didn't he?

A. There was kind of a wash come out—yes—and he made a ditch from that.

Q. Well, he was one settler you found there?

A. He wasn't an actual settler then any more than I was.

Q. He was there in 1877?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you were down along the Huachucas did you travel along that mountain road from Huachuca post down to the end of the mountains?

A. There was no road there, sir.

Q. You didn't find any road?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever find a road there?

A. No, sir; not till after the settlers came in.

Q. Did you go down alongside of the mountains?

A. I did.

Q. And when you returned did you return the same way?

A. No, sir; I went down the river, along the banks of the river.

Q. That was in 1877?

A. Yes, sir; 1877.

Q. And you saw no settlers there?

A. No settler except Landers, and he wasn't on the ground that he located afterwards. I saw him at Ornesorgen's crossing.

Q. Who was with you at the time you were prospecting around there?

A. Orrin Merrill was one, my son Thomas Merrill, and a man named Williams, now dead, and Dudley Merrill, too.

109 Q. That was in 1877?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know John H. Slaughter?

A. I knew the man when he was sheriff of Cochise county.

Q. You stopped at his house on the San Pedro?

A. I did not. I didn't see it in my first exploration. I saw it afterwards.

Q. Do you say that place wasn't there in 1877?

A. I don't recollect of any house being there that year.

Q. Are you able to say, from the exploration you made, that that place was not there?

A. I don't remember of being any house on the San Pedro.

Q. That is not what I asked you. I am asking you whether you are able to say.

A. To the best of my recollection, there was no house there.

Q. Did you stop at Mr. Blair's place?

A. That wasn't there till after we located.

Q. Did you stop at Mr. Clanton's place?

A. It wasn't there till after we located.

Q. Or the Boston mill—had that started when you went there?

A. No, sir.

Q. A flume was taken out there?

A. My company took out that flume.

Q. For the Boston mill people?

A. Yes, sir; under contract.

Q. Did you ever know Mr. Tanner and Mr. Hayes in that valley?

A. They settled there after we came in—on the Babacomari.

Q. Were they not on the San Pedro when you came in?

A. Not when we came in.

Q. Do you say they were not there?

A. I don't say but what they might have been there, but I didn't see them.

Q. What marked peculiarity did you find in your travel from that stream along the San Pedro between the boundary line 110 and Charleston?

A. I couldn't see any.

Q. Did you find any marked peculiarity; do you remember of any?

A. Only that I thought it wasn't a location for me to settle on with a colony. It was cañons, a good portion of it. Up where now they call Ochoa there might have been a small amount of water, but not sufficient for me to raise anything there.

Q. The water of the river?

A. Yes, sir; in the fall of the year it was. The water in the river was merely nothing, only standing in pools.

Q. Nothing near Ochoaville?

A. Nothing that was interesting to me to locate a colony.

Q. After you passed a point 6 or 8 miles north of Ochoaville and passed on, did you find anything else remarkable along that river?

A. Nothing; only rocky hills, with gorges for the river to go through.

Q. You did not find the great Lewis spring pouring out its waters as if from a barrel?

A. I wasn't on that side.

Q. And from Ash cañon, where there is a large accumulation of fresh water running down?

A. I saw that spring; we called it Fish spring. We didn't consider it any place to pick a location.

Q. You didn't find the Crystal springs, with their enormous supply of water?

A. I call that Crystal spring.

Q. Which one?

A. The west side of the river.

Q. And the Ash Cañon springs?

A. I don't know but what they are all one.

Q. So far as you know, they are all one?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You do not know that they are twelve miles apart?

A. No, sir; I do not.

111 Q. You were along that river and saw what was there?

A. I was along that river, but the nature of the country was such that I didn't want to make a location there, and so I was not particularly interested.

H. O. FLIPPER, a witness called and sworn on behalf of the defendants, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. What is your business?

A. Civil engineer.

Q. What is your present employment?

A. Special agent Department of Justice, assigned to duty with the United States attorney for the court of private land claims.

Q. How long have you been an engineer?

A. Since 1877, when I graduated at West Point.

Q. I will get you to state whether or not you are familiar with the Spanish language.

A. I am.

Q. Have you had any experience in surveying Spanish or Mexican grants?

A. I have had eleven years' experience surveying such grants in Mexico.

Q. And have you had any experience in examining archives and records of those grants?

A. I have.

Q. I will get you to state whether or not you have had occasion to examine documents in relation to this grant on trial recently in Hermosillo.

A. I have; on the sixth of this month.

Q. I will get you to state what documents you found and with reference to the condition of those documents.

A. What purports to be the matrix of this grant is on file 112 in the archives at Hermosillo, and begins with the application of Ignacio Elias and Eulalia Elias, dated March 12, 1827, signed by them.

Q. What is the appearance of the document with reference to change?

A. The word Ygnacio Elias—Ygnacio is erased by lines drawn through it and the word Rafael written. The words "Y Doña Eulalia Elias" erased by lines through them. Further down the words "en corsorio con D. Rafael Elias, Capitan Don Ygnacio Elias y D. Nepomuceno Felix" are erased by lines drawn through them. At the end of this application the word "Rafael" has been written on top of the word Ygnacio and "Eulalia Elias" has been erased. It is a copy; not the original. It is at the beginning of the matrix.

Q. The petition for the grant?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are there any other erasures in the instrument anywhere?

A. No, sir; the usual statement that occurs in these papers in regard to the application is omitted in this one, but there is an appointment of an alcalde to make the survey. It is signed by Gajiola. It is not the signature of him and does not pretend to be.

Q. What is it?

A. It is a copy, and is not spelled as he spells it.

Q. Did you examine what is known to be his genuine signature?

A. Yes, sir; very closely, and this does not pretend to be his signature. It is a copy.

Q. Are there any other peculiarities?

A. The application, act of obedience, appointment of assistants and examination of ground, survey and appraisement, the pregones, the order to prove capacity, etc., the declaration of three witnesses, and act of conclusion and notification of Elias and transfer 113 are all in the same handwriting. The signatures to the application are in the same handwriting, and the handwriting is the same as the body of those writings. The pregones are all set out in full and signed by Elias; one is also signed by Rafael Elias.

Q. Any further peculiarities about it?

A. The three almonedas are signed by the treasurer general, Gaxiola, but are not signed by the attorney general, Manuel Brena.

Q. Do you find any copy of the grant attached to it?

A. No, sir; before we get to that in the certificate of payment of $240; that is the exact amount at which the land was appraised, and there is nothing said there about the usual fees that are charged—nothing whatever. There is attached to this matrix a copy of that communication which was read this morning in the Babacomari case, that the State government had consulted the congress of the supreme government and reply was awaited before title would be issued. I find an endorsement on the 25th of December, 1832, that title had been issued. There is also a toma de razon in the proper book.

Q. Is that by Ignacio Elias?

A. It says issued to Rafael Elias Gonzales.

Q. Did you have that document offered in evidence here, the titulo, with you?

A. I did not, sir; it wasn't here.

Q. Have you had occasion to examine the monument referred to by these gentlemen just on the stand a few moments ago, known as the international boundary line monument?

A. The large monument described by Mr. Roskruge?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I have, very thoroughly.

114 Q. Can you give us a history of that monument?

A. Yes, sir; that was built by the American boundary commission in 1853 or 1854.

Q. The monument that Mr. Roskruge describes as the north centre monument of the San Pedro?

A. When the Mexican commission arrived there they were not able to find that monument, and (interrupted)——

Objected to because there is no foundation for this testimony and it is immaterial.

By the WITNESS: I know it is built there because it is so marked; it was so marked when I was there in 1885, as a United States boundary monument; there is no question about what it is.

Q. What book is that you hold in your hand?

A. The report of Major Emory, who made that survey, and I have a copy of it there and had it there in 1885 when I run that line. The history of it is that the American commission got there and built the monument as on the line; the Mexican commission were not able to find it on account of the high sacaton grass there, and they built a monument about a quarter of a mile west of this monument, which is the monument accepted today. I have run the line and know where both are, and when I was there in 1885 they had the inscription here in this book.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: I now offer the book referred to by the witness in evidence. Shall I read it?

By the COURT: Not now.

By Mr. HERRING: We wish to cross-examine the witness upon these statements.

Q. Have you had occasion to investigate this grant on the ground?

115 A. I did.

Q. What did you do?

A. I had a copy of this titulo and this map.

Q. Well, tell us what you did and what you found.

A. I went down there and found the north centre monument, which is a cottonwood post about 3 feet high and 4 x 5 inches square, set in a small pile of limestone on top of a small hill. From that monument I went south down the valley, hunting for the centre monument all the way down to Ochoaville, and wasn't able to find it, for the monument was in no place I could identify as being the place described in the expediente. I then went to the place marked on this map as the south centre monument of the San Rafael del Valle grant and looked for the monument, but could not find it. I went all over that field described there and couldn't find the monument or anything resembling it. Then I went to the southwest corner, and I had a man from Mr. Green's ranch, and there is a fence built there, and he said the monument is supposed to be where the fence is, but no monument is there now or anywhere in the vicinity. We went across to the southeast corner and was unable to find anything there at all. We ran out the distance from the corner of that fence—the full distance of that south line—and found nothing.

Q. You run the line as Roskrige ran it?

A. Yes, sir; as laid down on that map. We then came back to the north centre monument, on the little limy hill, and went west to the northwest corner. We found there a stake exactly like the one in the pile of stones on top of this hill. That I knew to be 116 the Wasson survey monument. The one described on this map is different. We searched north and south and east and west of it and found nothing whatever. We went to the northwest corner—northeast corner, rather—and found the Wasson stake. It had fallen down; and in a similar way we hunted for the northeast corner of this survey, and we were not able to find anything.

Q. Did you ever have occasion to investigate that valley, with reference to small hills, down below the present location of the San Pedro ranch?

A. Yes, sir. At the place where the north centre monument is placed the valley narrows in there, and this hill is on the east edge of the hills on the west side of the river. We followed the mesa all the way down in search of other such hills. The whole country is limestone formation, and some 5 or 6 miles south the mesa runs out into the valley again and forms two or three little hills there. The word hill in the original is "loma," and all of these are lomas. The word hill in English does not exactly translate the word loma.

Q. Now, south of the line, along the San Pedro, what did you find there?

A. There are similar hills on the south side of the international boundary. The centre point is described as being a little hill in the valley. There is no such hill in the valley anywhere—I mean in the valley between the mesas on both sides.

Q. Did you examine what they call the Bachata cañon?

A. I did not. I did not examine the San Pedro grant at all.

Q. Now describe the Huachuca range of mountains down there.

A. The Huachuca mountain lays generally west of the river; probably 20 or 25 miles long, running a little north of west from 117 where the boundary line crosses it. At the west end it is probably ten or fifteen miles wide.

Q. And the Mule mountains?

A. They are on the opposite side of the river. They do not cross the boundary line.

Q. How far do they start from the boundary line?

A. Well, I don't know—3 or 4 or 5 miles. The foot-hills—low hills—run down to the line.

Q. Where is the Huachuca mountain with reference to the boundary line?

A. The east end of the Huachuca crosses the line slightly. The line runs over a spur of the mountain.

Q. Do those mountains have a general tendency in the same direction as the river—up and down?

A. The Huachucas?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. No, sir; they run from the river.

Q. In other words, from the south towards the north they diverge towards the west?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How does the river run?

A. It runs a little west of north.

Q. And the mountains diverge still further than that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. From the southern end of the mountains they diverge towards the west?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In going to what you call the north centre monument, are you able to locate that by any other means than the calls in this Roskruge survey and the Wasson survey?

A. No, sir; I had no other means of locating it. I had both maps—I had Wasson's map and Roskruge's map.

Q. Could you find any initial point, such as is called for in this expediente, by which any of the subpoints can be verified?

A. No, sir; I could not. I made special search for the initial point.

Q. Can you take any of the subpoints and work back from one to the other and verify the initial monument?

118 A. If we start at the north centre point and run out the distance for 400 cords it won't begin to reach the San Pedro, not even as Mr. Roskruge claims it.

Q. It will not?

A. It won't reach it by at least ten miles. I mean the San Pedro tract of land, not the San Pedro custom-house. It will not reach the north line of what is marked on that map as the San Pedro ranch.

Q. You do not mean that it won't reach it by ten miles?

A. Yes, sir; I mean just that. I did not measure that distance, but I estimated it, and it would not reach it by ten miles.

Q. From where—run out the distance from where, from the north centre monument?

A. The four Mexican leagues to the end of that line would be about ten miles from that north line.

Q. Which north line—of the San Pedro as laid down?

A. The north line of what is marked on this map as the San Pedro ranch.

Q. Then, commencing at the north centre monument and take that as the north line of the four leagues and take the width as they measured them, so as to lay it out in a rectangle, and you say the four leagues will not reach that by about ten miles?

A. By about ten miles; yes, sir.

Q. Then if you go down and take the north line of the San Pedro ranch or grant, as laid down on the Roskrige map, and run what is to make four leagues north, it won't carry you to the north centre monument?

A. No, sir; it won't carry you to his north centre monument.

Q. In other words, you cannot take this expediente and go and locate the initial point and protract a survey and survey this grant?

A. No, sir; you cannot.

119 Cross-examination.

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. You say "we" did so and so; whom do you mean by "we"?

A. In what case did I use that term?

Q. When speaking of your being upon this San Rafael del Valle grant, "we found a monument."

A. I meant myself and the men accompanying me—Mr. Burnet, Mr. Haviland.

Q. Mr. Burnet, one of the divers parties to this grant?

A. I don't know, but I suppose he is. He never told me so.

Q. He never has told you that?

A. No, sir; I haven't any means of knowing.

Q. James Burnet, the gentleman who is engaged in business in the Huachuca mountains now, never has told you that he is adverse to this grant, eh?

A. He has told me that his wife has a piece of land in what is called the San Rafael grant and she is adverse to the grant and he is representing her.

Q. You may argue yourself out of it if you want to, sir.

A. Well, that is what he told me. He has never told me he is an adverse claimant.

Q. He is of angelic tendency towards this grant, is he?

A. He never has told me about that.

Q. And how about Mr. Haviland?

A. He is living on the ranch.

Q. And is he adverse?

A. I don't know; he never told me so. You have been down on that river and met the people down there and they are working the grant, I believe.

Q. You never learned from him that he is adverse to this grant?

A. He never told me.

Q. Or Mrs. Haviland?

A. I never saw her.

120 Q. You took those two gentlemen, and they constitute the "we" that made this hunt?

A. They were with me; yes, sir.

Q. And you were hunting for monuments?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you go first?

A. Went to what is called the north centre monument.

Q. Had you ever been there before?

A. No, sir; I had not.

Q. When was it you were there?

A. On the 18th of this month.

Q. What time in the day was it that you got there?

A. About noon.

Q. Were you afoot or on horseback?

A. In a carriage. We got out of the carriage and went up to the monument.

Q. And there you saw a stake?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was Allis's monument?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. After finding that did you look for any other monument right there?

A. At that particular place?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. No, sir; I did not.

Q. Look for any other monument north of it immediately?

A. I looked all over that hill and didn't see any other.

Q. Did you look for any other monument immediately north of it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you look for any other monument immediately south of it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you look for any other monument immediately east or west of it?

A. No, sir; but, standing on that hill, you can see all over the surrounding country.

Q. Did you have any glass there?

A. I didn't need any. I have eyes.

Q. Is your eyesight good?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Very good?

A. Yes, sir.

121 Q. Could see the surrounding country?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And could see whether there was a monument in the vicinity?

A. Yes, sir; in the immediate vicinity.

Q. You could?

A. I don't suppose you mean a mile by "immediate vicinity." The corner monuments are only a mile and a quarter from that one.

Q. Well, what do you mean by "immediate vicinity"?

A. 50 or 60 yards.

Q. And you did not see any monument within that radius?

A. I did not.

Q. Your search did not extend beyond that?

A. Except when I traveled to the northeast and northwest corners.

Q. Did you find any monument at the northeast corner?

A. I say I went from the northeast centre monument, that we speak of as the northeast corner, and also the northwest, and I found no monument in the interval.

Q. Did you find any monument at the northeast corner?

A. You asked me if I found any monument in the immediate vicinity of (interrupted)——

Q. Now I have asked you another question: Did you find any monument at the northeast corner?

A. No, sir; I did not; not as represented on that map. I did find the Allis stake.

Q. Did you look all around?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How far around—60 or 70 yards?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you look any further than that?

A. No, sir; I did not think it necessary. It is on a mesa, and you can see quite a distance.

Q. Were the two gentlemen with you at the northeast corner?

A. Yes, sir; and two others were there—Mr. Herrick and another. I don't know his name.

122 Q. Were you afoot or horseback?

A. We were in a carriage.

Q. Did you find Allis's monument there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any instrument?

A. No, sir.

Q. Any tape or chain?

A. I did not make any measurement; no, sir.

Q. As a basis of all you have testified to here in relation to measurements and quantities on this grant, you made no accurate measurements?

A. I haven't said a word about measurements or quantities. Don't put words in my mouth, Col. Herring.

Q. You made no measurements?

A. I didn't make any measurements whatsoever.

Q. When you say that grant if continued from the north boundary as fixed by Roskrue on his map, if continued southerly with the quantity called for in the expediente, it would not extend to the San Pedro grant or within ten miles of the San Pedro grant, you mean by your guess, do you?

A. I took particular pains to say that I estimated that distance, Colonel.

Q. It is a guess, is it?

A. No, sir; it is not; it is an estimation.

Q. What do you base that estimation on?

A. I am a surveyor for 17 years and am in the habit of estimating distances.

Q. You base it on that fact?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Any other fact?

A. I have traveled over the ground and have surveyed, and, being a surveyor and having traveled that distance twice, I estimated the distance.

Q. Even then, upon that it is a pure guess?

A. No, sir; it is not; it is an estimate based on experience.

Q. You estimate it is about 25 miles from the north centre monument to the line?

A. Do you know what four square leagues are, sir?

123 Q. When I am under cross-examination by you I will give you an opportunity to exhaust yourself. As a surveyor, Mr. Flipper, from your standpoint as a surveyor and your education and experience as a surveyor and civil engineer, which would you think more likely to be accurate, the measurement made by a man who has had large experience or your guess or estimate?

A. I should think my guess or estimate better than any measurement made by an incompetent man, such a man as made the survey.

Q. You pass on him as incompetent, do you?

A. Thoroughly and absolutely incompetent in every way; no knowledge of mathematics or of surveying.

Q. Did you ever examine him in mathematics?

A. No, sir; I know from his work. I have tested lots of his work—lots and lots of it.

Q. But you never have examined him?

A. I have heard him tell the way he learned surveying. I have heard him say that he never studied trigonometry. It is not necessary to examine him and it is not necessary to examine you to know that you are a personal enemy of mine; no, sir.

Q. Is that another guess of yours?

A. I have information—witnesses to prove it, if you wish it.

Q. That is another case entirely, and we will pass by the personal-enemy question. You have no other knowledge of this fact, of the invalidity of this grant being extended to the San Pedro and containing this quantity of four leagues, other than your estimate?

A. No, sir; I haven't measured it.

Q. Upon what width of grant was that estimate based?

A. On four Mexican leagues.

Q. You mean a side of four leagues? Was it based upon the side or the square root or area of four square leagues?

124 A. I am not talking about square leagues; I said four leagues. A league is a linear distance.

Q. I asked you if it was based on the side of a piece of land that would constitute four leagues?

A. It was not.

Q. Upon what width of ground do you base this extension of the grant?

A. That is four linear leagues in length.

Q. Measured by whom?

A. So described in this expediente; I don't remember who the surveyor was. He started and measured south two leagues and measured north two leagues more.

Q. Measured four leagues from that northern boundary (interrupted)—

A. Up the river?

Q. Yes, sir; measuring four Mexican leagues in the direction of the San Pedro boundary, as testified to here today?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you undertake to say that the southern boundary of such a grant—four-league grant—would not come within ten miles of the San Pedro boundary?

A. That is my estimate; I do say that absolutely; that I estimate the end of that line would not reach the north line of the San Pedro by about ten miles.

Q. Do you know whether the San Rafael del Valle grant, as marked on this map, extends southerly from the point called Hereford or not?

A. It is not. Hereford is still further south than the south line.

Q. Of the grant?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then the north line of the San Pedro grant is north of Hereford?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At what point on the San Pedro did you find the north monument of Allis? Describe the land. What was there in the vicinity of that north monument?

A. The valley of the river there narrows down considerably, and on the west side there is a series of lomas—a good many of 125 them—and among them is one sharp peak or cone and on this cone was the Allis monument. On the opposite side of the river some hills were there.

Q. Was there any house or any structure of any kind in the vicinity of that north monument?

A. Not near to it.

Q. What is the first structure of any kind that you come to north of it?

A. The first I know anything of is where Haviland lives, a mile or a mile and a half from there. I don't think it is visible from that monument.

Q. Near Charleston?

A. It is between this monument and Old Charleston; it is nearer the monument than Old Charleston.

Q. How many miles in four leagues?

A. In four Mexican leagues, ten miles and four-tenths English miles.

Q. And when speaking of a ten-mile interval between the southern end of this grant and San Pedro you are again speaking of English miles?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know the distance from Haviland's to the boundary line?

A. Not exact, but I have estimated it.

Q. What is your estimate of that distance?

A. I estimate between twenty and twenty-five miles; nearer twenty-five than twenty.

Q. What is the distance from the southerly boundary line to Roberts' place?

A. I don't know Roberts' place.

Q. Didn't you see the place?

A. I may have seen it, but I don't know the man.

Q. What is the distance from the southerly boundary line to Hoeffler's?

A. Southern boundary line of this grant?

Q. No; of Arizona, to Hoeffler's place?

A. That I don't know.

Q. Do you know Hoeffler's place?

A. Yes, sir.

126 Q. What is your estimate of the distance between the southern boundary of Arizona and that place?

A. I should say three or three and a half miles. You mean the international boundary line?

Q. Yes, sir; that is what I mean.

A. I should say three or three and a half miles.

Q. Suppose you should learn that that was nine miles, would you not think that your estimate was away out?

A. If I was convinced it was, I would.

Q. And how if you should learn that it was six miles?

A. If I should learn it to be anything but three and a half miles, I should think I was incorrect.

Q. Then your estimate would be away out?

A. Yes, sir. I didn't measure it; I rode over it.

Q. And that would affect your estimate generally of the distances there, would it not?

A. It would depend upon the care with which the estimate was made.

Q. Did you make any one of these estimates with any more care than another?

A. Not in that particular instance; no, sir.

Q. You made them all with the same kind of care?

A. All these in this case; yes, sir.

Q. When did you first make this estimate that the southern end of the San Rafael del Valle grant was not within ten miles of the San Pedro there?

A. The day I rode over it. We rode over it twice—down and back.

Q. You were riding in a carriage?

A. Yes, sir; in an open carriage or buggy.

Q. Riding along that road by the San Pedro river?

A. Yes, sir; hunting for the centre monument there.

127 Q. Did you base your estimate of the distance on the speed of your team at all?

A. No; we went along slowly hunting for the place.

Q. Walked your horses?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you judge of how fast those horses could walk?

A. I have ridden one many years in the cavalry service.

Q. Was this a cavalry house you had to this wagon?

A. I don't know whether he was or not.

Q. You were estimating the distance by the distance the horses could go?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how fast did you travel?

A. About two or two and a half miles an hour.

Q. At noon you were at the northern end of this grant; at what time did you get to the southern end of it?

A. Along near sundown.

Q. Between four and five hours? How many hours intervened between the time you were at the northern end and when you got to the southern?

A. Four or five hours.

Q. As many as five hours?

A. I haven't any recollection of those things. I didn't keep any record of them.

Q. What is your best recollection of it?

A. I haven't any recollection of it.

Q. Then you did not make your estimate with respect to the time it took you to travel that distance at all?

A. As we rode up the river we estimated the distance and made a note of it, and when we came back we made another estimate of it.

Q. When you say "we made an estimate" do you mean you stopped and had a consultation how far it was?

A. No, sir; we were not so silly.

Q. What do you mean then?

A. When we got to the end of the route we spoke of the distance.

128 Q. Who is "we?"

A. The people with me.

Q. Who was with you at the time this happened?

A. Mr. Burnet and Mr. Haviland.

Q. Did you all agree right there as to the distance?

A. That I haven't any remembrance of.

Q. Did you say right there, you and Burnet and Haviland, that his grant didn't come within ten miles of the San Pedro boundary?

A. We spoke of the distance, and we all agreed it was about ten miles it lacked of reaching the line.

Q. Of reaching the San Pedro line?

A. No; we agreed that this survey of Roskruge's—this goes to the San Pedro line.

Q. Oh, it does?

A. Don't it show it going to the line? I say if the four leagues in the expediente were run out it would not reach that line by ten miles.

Q. You do not mean to be understood as saying that this map of Roskruge's, which he says goes to the San Pedro, you do not mean to say that is not so?

A. I do not mean to say that map does not go to the San Pedro. I say if the four leagues were run out from the north centre down they would not reach the north line of the San Pedro by about ten miles.

Q. And this on your mere estimate?

A. That is on my estimate; yes, sir.

Q. Did the people who were with you—Burnet, Haviland, and Herrick, and the other unknown or unnamed man—did they have any idea how long four leagues were?

A. That question did not come up. This question of four leagues is just brought up now. We did not undertake to estimate that, but we estimated the distance from that point down to the 129 San Pedro line. That question just come up now.

Q. Did not come up that day?

A. I have already told you what we estimated.

Q. The question of four leagues did not come up that day?

A. Not till just now.

Q. Then Burnet did not discuss the four leagues?

A. No, sir; nor you or I or anybody else on that day; that wasn't the discussion at all.

Q. What was it you were discussing?

A. We estimated the distance from that monument to the San Pedro line from twenty to twenty-five miles. I have told you that two or three times already. Now, if that distance is twenty miles and the grant four leagues long, which is ten miles, that will leave ten miles between the lines.

Q. How far is the north end of that grant, as you found the boundary, from the Haviland house?

A. I don't know how far it is; probably a mile or a mile and a half, or maybe two miles.

Q. Did you estimate it on that day?

A. Had no occasion to, because it cuts no figure in this case.

Q. Can you estimate it now?

A. I did not pay any attention to that distance. It was not important to pay any attention to it.

Q. Now recall the situation that you were in on that day as near as you can and state, in your best judgment, how far north of the boundary of that grant is Mr. Haviland's house.

A. I haven't the remotest idea ; I paid no attention to it. It cut no figure in the case.

Q. I suppose it cuts a figure in the estimate of the distance from the north end of that grant to the Haviland house?

A. I am not in the habit of estimating distances when it is 130 of no importance.

Q. Can you estimate how far the north end of that grant is from the old town of Charleston?

A. I never estimated it. I haven't anything to base an estimate on because I paid no attention to the distance I drove over.

Q. But you did form one conclusion?

A. That was the distance from that monument down. That is precisely what I went there for.

Q. You went there for the purpose of showing that that grant was not a grant, didn't you?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was not that one of your purposes?

A. No, sir ; I went there for the purpose of seeing whether the survey was correct and whether it agreed with the expediente.

Q. Do you want the court to understand that you as a surveyor would take a map and go on a piece of ground without instruments or tape to prepare yourself as a witness and come into court and say whether a survey was correct or not and give sworn testimony in regard to it?

A. I mean to say that without any instruments whatsoever I can form an opinion whether those are the monuments described in there and whether those are the courses and distances or not.

Q. That was not my question. That is all for you, sir.

Recess until 9.30 o'clock tomorrow.

131 THURSDAY, March 29, 1894—9.30 o'clock a. m.

Appearances as before.

H. O. FLIPPER recalled to the stand.

Cross-examination resumed.

By Mr. HERRING :

Q. Mr. Flipper, describe the markings that you referred to as having been upon the boundary monument, the large monument which you described.

A. The marks there in 1885?

Q. Within what is claimed to be the boundaries of the San Pedro grant by the claimants.

A. I do not know what monument you refer to.

Q. You yesterday described a monument, a large monument which you went to in your investigations, as you made them, on the day that you went from the northern boundary of this grant south to the boundary line.

A. I did not describe any large monument on the grant.

Q. On what grant?

A. I described a monument which I said was the United States boundary monument. I testified that I found no monument but this, except three stakes.

Q. But you testified you found a large monument, boundary monument.

A. United States boundary monument?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Not on this trip.

Q. You did not find it on this trip?

A. No, sir; I distinctly said in 1885.

Q. And that monument, you say, had markings upon it at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I want you to describe those markings.

132 A. That monument which I described as being a United States boundary monument had "W. H. E., U. S." on the north side. On the south side it had the initials of the Mexican commissioner. I don't remember his name now.

Q. On which side of the river did you find that monument?

A. There are two monuments; the south one is on the east side and the north one on the west side of the river.

Q. Both boundary monuments?

A. Both built by the boundary commission.

Q. Were they both marked?

A. At that time; yes, sir; they were.

Q. As you have just described?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In this recent visit you made all over that section of country or to that section of country you did not find any other large monuments?

A. I did not go to these two nor did I find any other; no, sir.

Redirect examination :

Q. In all your investigation and travel over the country of private land claims in Arizona, did you ever see a monument built of stones and mortar by the Mexican officials?

A. I have not; never; no, sir.

Q. All the monuments you have seen of that character, are they of modern or ancient date?

A. They are all modern date.

Recross-examination :

Q. What is the foundation for the assertion that a monument is of modern date.

A. I don't know any more than anybody else, but my opinion is they were modern date. Many monuments are shown by the stones.

133 Where it has been laying in the ground it is of different color from the upper side and many of them, from the fact that the under side is up now, show that they are recent. It is an opinion I arrived at from having seen a great many of them and examined a great many of them.

Q. When you say modern, what is the limitation retrogressively from this time that you put upon that term?

A. Well, I should say within the last ten or fifteen years.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. Surely not prior to 1853?

A. Oh, no, sir; none whatever.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: I want to offer in evidence the expediente in the Boquillas case, for the purpose of showing the endorsement made in 1828 by the treasurer general. I believe it was as to the delivery of the expediente at that time and the reasons why he did not deliver the title papers. That is the only part of it I wish. Of course, the court may have the entire papers for whatever they are worth in the argument.

By Mr. HERRING: If it is in, we shall desire to avail ourselves of it for any and all purposes.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: Oh, yes.

By Mr. HERRING: We have no objection.

Government rests.

MAX MARKS recalled in behalf of the petitioner.

Direct examination.

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. Your attention was called yesterday to the photograph marked the initial monument of the San Pedro grant?

A. Yes, sir.

134 Q. And you described that monument in your testimony?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were there any markings upon that monument?

A. No, sir; we examined it—Mr. Roskruge, Dug Snyder, Mr. Howard Herring, and myself, and didn't find no mark anywheres.

Cross-examination.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. Without looking at the backs of these photographs, identify it and hand it to me.

A. Yes, sir (selecting photograph marked Exhibit "9").

Q. Was that built of stone and mortar?

A. No, sir; not that I know of. I don't think it was.

Q. Did you examine it to see if it was built of stone and mortar?

A. On the outside it didn't show any mortar, and Mr. Roskruge didn't allow us to remove any of the stones.

Q. Were they cut stones?

A. No, sir; they were not.

Q. Now, which side of the San Pedro river was this?

A. On the west side.

Q. How far from the international boundary line?

A. Well, what is always known as the international monument (interrupted)——

Q. Don't you know where that monument is?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which direction?

A. Southeast side from this monument. It is across the river.

Q. What direction from the monument known as the international boundary monument?

A. Right at the present I do not know, for I haven't been there for some time.

Q. You were there a year or two ago?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you not there when Mr. Roskrige made the survey?

135 A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you located this as the south centre monument of the San Rafael del Valle?

A. No, sir; not this one. This is not the south centre monument of the San Rafael.

Q. It is the initial monument of the San Pedro?

A. Yes, sir; as the Mexican told us, one of the monuments built there before the international monument was built, many years ago.

Q. It is the initial monument of the San Pedro grant?

A. They claimed that was the centre initial monument of the San Pedro grant.

Q. How far is this monument from the international boundary line?

A. Well, I should think perhaps half a mile.

Q. How far is it from the present international boundary line monument, the nearest one to it?

A. I couldn't tell you, Mr. Reynolds, because I have never been there since the new survey has been made of that line.

Q. Do you know when the last monument was put there?

A. No, sir; I haven't been there since 1891. We went from this monument across the country just as the expediente of the San Pedro grant read, and we found every place exactly as the expediente of the San Pedro read. We followed every direction and found exactly as the title read—the black thicket—and we found where the monument ought to be, between two peaks (interrupted)——

Q. You did not find the monument?

A. The monument might have been destroyed.

Q. You found plenty of other things that could answer for a monument?

A. No, sir; only mining monuments further east from there.

Q. Were there not plenty of piles of stones that would answer for monuments, as you have been testifying to here?

136 A. Yes sir—no, sir; we didn't (interrupted)——

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. You did not?

A. No, sir; we did not see any that would answer to any monument in that country; no, sir.

Q. You mean you did not see any?

A. No, sir; I didn't see any.

DOUGLASS SNYDER recalled by petitioner.

Direct examination.

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. (Exhibiting photograph "9.") That is a photograph of the San Pedro initial monument?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether you made any personal examination of that monument.

A. I did.

Q. Were there any markings upon any of the stones of that monument at that time?

A. No, sir; I made a very close examination of it, and if you will allow me to explain I will state why.

Q. State why, Mr. Snyder.

A. The day—but one before that, I think it was—I was over on the east side of the river and I examined the international boundary monument, and I made a memorandum in my book of the initials that were on the cut stones that were scattered around, and when we went to the other side I examined it very close to see if I could find anything to correspond. I looked very carefully and I couldn't find it. I do not say it isn't there, but I looked very close and couldn't find it.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. Did you find any sand or mortar?

A. No, sir.

137 Q. Did you ever find any monuments in that country—piles of stones—as large stones as those?

A. Those stones on the west side were not cut stones, but the stones in the boundary monument on the east side were cut.

Q. Answer the question I asked you. Did you find any stones in those piles of stones as large as those?

A. How do you mean?

Q. Anywhere else?

A. Well, yes; I think in the east side there is stones as large as those, but, mind you, they were not cut stones.

Q. Answer the question I ask you.

A. I want to answer you correctly, if I can understand you.

Q. I am not talking about the international boundary monument, but the wick-i-ups—the piles of stones. Did you ever find any as large stones in those mounds of stones called monuments in that country as you found in this one?

A. Let me explain.

Q. Answer yes or no.

A. Yes; I have. Now let me explain it.

Q. You may do so.

A. Ordinarily men in building monuments will generally try to select two large stones for the base, maybe three, and then pile smaller stones on top to build it up. I know in locating mines myself I try to get big stones for the bottom and pile on it to make a solid foundation.

Q. Where did you ever find any monument of that same character in that same country?

A. I don't state that I found it in this country. I don't want you to understand it that way.

Q. Where in any particular locality did you find any monument built of that character of stones, except at that place?

A. Why, I am a mining man myself.

Q. I don't care if you are.

A. And I have probably built a hundred monuments, and I have relocated mines that were located.

138 Q. I am not asking you that.

A. Not in that country; no, sir; not there, I haven't, but I have found them in every mining camp mostly. Right there I hadn't anything to do with any other and had no occasion to know, but in mining camps generally I found them and can state.

Q. There is no mining camp right around there?

A. No, sir; none whatever. There is none nearer than Bisbee.

GEORGE J. ROSKRUGE recalled by petitioner.

Direct examination.

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. In the monument you described yesterday as the initial monument of the San Pedro grant, were there any cuttings or markings on any of the stones of that monument?

A. No, sir; I examined it all over very carefully and did not find any.

Q. Did you find any monument in this vicinity that had?

A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. What monument?

A. International boundary monument.

Q. Did you see any—first, did you take any photograph of that?

A. I did.

Q. (Exhibiting photograph.) Is that the photograph you took?

A. Yes, sir; that is the photograph I took of the international boundary monument with Mr. Herring, sitting to the right, and Mr. Camou.

By Mr. "HERRING:"

Q. You mean my son, not me?

A. Yes, sir; your son. And there is stones to the left that you can see the initials; that is one stone marked and cut; you can see 139 that one (indicating) has been cut, and you can see initials cut in it. Several stones were well cut in with initials by men that well understood their business—in a workmanlike manner.

Q. When you reached this monument at that time was it thrown down as it now appears upon that photograph?

A. Yes, sir; exactly as I photographed it.

Said photograph was thereupon offered in evidence and marked on its face "XX" as an exhibit.

By Mr. HERRING: I desire to offer this blue print of the original Roskrige map as a substitute for the original and wish it marked. (Said substituted map was marked Exhibit "21.")

Q. Look at map, Exhibit "21," now shown you, and, allowing four leagues from the northern boundary of the San Rafael del Valle, as shown upon this map, what is the distance from the point four leagues below the north boundary, as shown on this map, to the San Pedro ranch or grant, as shown upon this map?

A. 12,120 feet; a little over two miles and a quarter.

Q. That is the length of the grant?

A. Yes, sir.

By the COURT:

Q. I do not recollect whether you stated yesterday you measured the side lines of the grant?

A. No, sir; I did not measure the side lines. I want to explain to the court: In all this country, in mining claims we measure one line and then follow the angles, because you never can close. I measure down the centre and turn my angles, because if I had gone around I never would have closed. The surveys never close. Theoretically, when you figure it out they do, but practically they never do.

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. You did measure the centre line?

A. Yes, sir.

140 Q. With what kind of a measure?

A. A 100-foot steel tape.

Q. Who was your assistant in measuring that line?

A. My assistants were Mr. Dug Snyder, Mr. John W. Taylor, and Ed. Woods.

Q. Have these men been associated with you before in measurements?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were they men of experience in these matters—of training?

A. Yes, sir; in fact, I measured a great deal of it myself. Understand, of course I was on the end of the chain. I generally, if I can, do my own measurement—pack my own transit.

Q. Have you any plat or plan of any portion of the county of Cochise showing the Huachuca mountains?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. By whom was that made?

A. Made by myself, sir.

Q. From what data did you make it?

A. The north end from connections with public surveys, and the south end from the international boundary line—Emory's report—and as shown there (referring to map) it is correct.

Q. You have also shown upon this section of Cochise county the San Rafael del Valle claim?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is it shown upon this as it appears upon the survey?

A. It is shown there as I took it from the public surveys, compiled in that map.

Q. How recently was this made?

A. That was made 7 or 8 years ago.

Q. It was not made for this case at all?

A. No, sir; nor in connection with it; it doesn't look like it, from the way it has been handled. I started to make this map some years ago for the county, and was going to include the eastern part of Cochise county, and instead of that I made the map already filed here. This was commenced 7 or 8 years ago.

Q. Can you take a blue print from this map showing the 141 portion of Cochise county just testified about?

A. No, sir; it can be photographed and a blue print taken from that.

By Mr. HERRING: Counsel for claimant offers to put in a blue print from a photograph of this map and have this marked now as a provisional exhibit.

(There was no objection made, and the map referred to was marked for identification).

Q. Are you able to state from this map or from any data in your possession the distance from Charleston, in Cochise county, to the international boundary line?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Please state it.

A. It is between six and seven miles from the boundary line (interrupted)—

Q. You do not understand my question. I want the distance from the town of Charleston as laid down on this map to the boundary line.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I want to know whether you can show it.

A. Yes, sir; I can. I didn't hear you correctly.

Q. Do you withdraw the previous answer you have made?

A. Yes, sir; I didn't understand the question; I don't hear very well. (Scaling the map.) From the town of Charleston to the international boundary line—well, this is a straight line and that makes a big difference.

Q. What is the straight line?

A. Twenty and $\frac{1}{2}$ miles.

Q. Now the meanderings of the road, about what would they vary it?

A. I can tell you by following the road, if you will allow me a moment. The road is continually changing.

Q. You speak of the road from Charleston down by the south or west bank of the San Pedro river?

A. Probably 24 miles.

142 By Mr. HERRING: There was a map of Cochise county submitted to this court yesterday. I did not understand that it was admitted. I intended to state at that time that the map is incorrect.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: It was only offered for certain things—to show the location of the mountains and the San Pedro river.

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. I will ask you to explain “provisional exhibit” to the court. You will observe that the courses of the mountains on the two maps vary considerably. Are you familiar with Emory’s boundary survey?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is or not this map now offered in evidence as provisional exhibit in harmony with his survey?

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. Did he survey anything but the international boundary line?

A. Major Emory?

Q. Yes.

A. Not that I am aware of.

Q. He did not survey Cochise county?

A. We have a plat on file in the surveyor general’s office.

Q. He did not survey the Mule mountains or Cochise county, did he?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or the Huachucas?

A. He came across the south end of the Huachucas. They are called the Sierra de la Espanol.

Q. Did the name Huachucas originate since then?

A. No, sir; that couldn’t be, because they are called the Huachucas in the old grants.

Q. Were they known as the Huachucas at the time he came through there?

A. They might not have been. I can’t tell you; I wasn’t there. I am only telling you from what I know in the old papers.

143

Q. Did he say anything about the bearing of Mule mountains?

A. He did not touch them.

Q. Could he see them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether he referred to them?

A. I don't know whether he did or not.

Q. He did not refer to them as the Mule mountains?

A. I don't know whether he did or not.

Q. Who made that map (referring to map of Cochise county in evidence)?

A. Mr. Howe.

Q. He is a reasonably competent map —?

A. Yes, sir; I believe he is; but I want to tell you that map is wrong. I don't propose to run another man down to help build up myself, like some parties do.

Q. Didn't you testify here the other day that the general course of the mountains as laid down on this map and the general courses were substantially correct?

A. Yes, sir; towards the northwest.

Q. They diverge from the river from the south towards the northwest?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have them nearly parallel, haven't you?

A. I have got them correct, sir.

Q. Is not the general course and direction of the Huachucas as you have it on this map just introduced in evidence substantially parallel with the river?

Objected to as argumentative.

By the COURT: Yes; the court can determine that from an inspection of the exhibit.

Q. When overhauling Mr. Emory's survey did you hunt
144 for more than one monument there?

A. The international boundary monument?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever know of their having been changed on objection of the Mexican commission?

A. I have heard of lots of monuments being changed.

Q. Wasn't there one changed in that neighborhood?

A. I found out afterwards they were not changed.

Q. Wasn't one changed in that neighborhood? Don't you know now, as a matter of fact, from your examination and your reading of the report of the boundary survey, that the first established monument was changed upon objection by the Mexican commissioner?

A. No, sir; not as shown in Emory's report.

Q. I am speaking now on the San Pedro.

A. I can't testify as to what I might have heard; I never heard anything about that.

Q. I am asking you with reference to locating monuments; I want you to understand it. Don't you know that there are two international boundary monuments, or the remnants or remains of two, there on the San Pedro?

A. I don't know it as an actual fact.

Q. Did you ever examine to see whether there were?

A. I never went to but that one monument that is on the east side of the San Pedro, where I found the initials.

Q. Never went on the west side of it to find whether there was another one there?

A. No, sir.

Q. You knew from history, from the report of Emory, that he had established a monument there and had changed it upon objections made by the Mexican commissioners?

A. No, sir.

Q. You did not?

A. No, sir.

145 Q. Did you have his report?

A. I have gone over his report, but I do not recollect that, sir.

THOMAS A. BORTON, a witness called and sworn on behalf of the petitioner, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. You reside here in Tucson?

A. I do, sir.

Q. How long have you been living in this Territory?

A. Since April 5, 1872.

Q. At any time have you been in the employ of the surveyor general's office?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When?

A. I was employed in the surveyor general's office in the years 1881 and 1882, and again in 1887.

Q. Who was surveyor general in 1887?

A. John H. Hise.

Q. At any time while you were employed in that office have you been directed or authorized or requested to perform any measurements in relation to distances in the southern part of Cochise county in connection with the boundary line?

A. I was, sir; in connection with other instructions that I had.

Q. Have you at any time measured the distance between what is known as the town or location of Hereford, on the San Pedro river, and the boundary line?

A. Yes, sir; I made a trip there in January, 1887, and that distance was measured.

Q. By whom?

A. By the son of the surveyor general, who was my assistant when I was making some investigations there.

Q. Were you in his company at the time?

A. Yes, sir; he was an assistant of mine.

146 Q. How was it measured?

A. With an odometer.

Q. What was the distance between Hereford and the international boundary line?

A. Something over seven miles by the road.

Cross-examination.

By Mr. REYNOLDS:

Q. What were you doing down there?

A. I was sent down there to locate the initial point of the San Pedro private land claim.

Q. Did you locate it?

A. I did not.

Q. Why?

A. I could not locate the initial point within the United States, and I had no authority to cross the line.

Q. You made an effort to locate the initial point of the San Pedro ranch within the United States and could not do it?

A. No, sir; I couldn't.

Redirect examination:

Q. What is the reason you could not?

A. The reason I couldn't—I had a copy of the original expediente with me, and, owing to the indefiniteness of the descriptive calls in that grant, it was impossible for me to locate it where the petitioner—to explain the matter it might be well for me to state that in January or some time in the winter of 1886 or the first part of 1887 Hereford & Lovell, the attorneys for Hall & Ashton, who were claiming it, filed an application for a preliminary survey with the surveyor general, and also filed a map showing the initial point of that grant. Before the surveyor general could appoint a deputy surveyor and send him to make the survey it became necessary for him to make investigation to ascertain where the initial point was, and that was my duty there, and I failed to find the initial point.

147 Recross-examination:

Q. Did you ever afterwards locate the initial point of the San Pedro?

A. No, sir; I never had occasion to.

Q. As a matter of fact you were not able to locate it within the United States?

A. Not in the United States; no, sir.

Q. Did you attempt to locate it below the line?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you not report that the grant was not within the United States?

Objected to as calling for secondary evidence.

By Mr. HERRING: I will state that in view of the developments made in this case counsel for claimant desires to offer in evidence an instrument of record in the county of Cochise—instruments of record there and certified copies thereof—and we now state that we will do so, showing conveyance direct from José Maria Elias, asserting ownership in the San Pedro grant, to Thaddeus D. Byrne of a portion of the San Pedro grant abutting upon Hereford. We are now able to offer that deed, because we did not believe that it would be disputed that the boundary line of the San Pedro grant was where we say it is in our map. But we announce that we are able to produce the deed in question. The foundation for this offer may be found by the court in the fact that there is now in evidence a certified copy in Spanish of the expediente of the San Pedro grant, with English translation, showing that this certified copy was taken by the archievaro or the treasurer general in Hermosillo at the instance and request of José Maria Elias, then the owner of the grant; showing that at the time this survey was made that the title to the San Pedro grant was then in and being asserted 148 by José Maria Elias. We say that previous to this survey the deed from Elias to Byrne discloses the fact of his conveyance of a tract of land in the northern part of the San Pedro grant abutting the town of Hereford, and we ask the court to consent that that deed may be put in, otherwise we would have to keep this case open until we could furnish this certified copy. We will do it by wire if the court desire it, but I do not apprehend that counsel will require any such imposition.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: If it were here I cannot see how it would be material. The expediente is in evidence and the fact that a deed is made based upon that can add nothing to the location of that grant. If it were here it could not be competent. It is a declaration of the party in his own favor and cannot bind the United States. On the contrary, it may raise another issue as to what declarations Mr. Elias might have made at the time of the sale referred to — this gentleman.

By Mr. HERRING: The instrument will disclose the fact that Elias in this deed provided by certain covenants for the laying out of a town on this San Pedro grant adjoining the town of Hereford, and the covenants and conditions were subsequent in relation to vesting of title, providing the town was laid out on the San Pedro grant abutting the town of Hereford.

By the COURT (after argument): If this document were here we think it would not fall either within the rule or the exception referred to. If it were here it might be admitted simply as allowing the petitioner to make up his record.

By Mr. HERRING: Will the court consider the instrument 149 in unless there be fatal objection to its execution? So far as the facts recited in the instrument are concerned we have stated them fully and frankly to the court, and we think we have the right and your honors will pardon me if I say I think it should be the practice of this court in instances of surprise as in this case, if counsel can adduce corroborative evidence such as has been stated, I think we ought to be permitted to have the benefit of such existing testimony upon such an important fact.

By the COURT: Our practice has been in these cases to admit almost any documentary evidence, subject to objection, which the party claimed as material to his case, whatever our views as to its materiality or relevancy may be, and we have done that upon the ground that, as these cases are reviewable in another court and triable there de novo, he has a right in the preparation of his case for that court to make up the record in his own way. If the document were here we would admit it into the record, although our present view is that it would be incompetent. The question now is whether it should be placed in the record hereafter for that purpose.

To that the court has no objection.

By Mr. HERRING: Then we ask that it be considered in under objection as to the statement made by counsel as to its contents.

(It was agreed that the document would be filed with the clerk and marked as an exhibit in this case in its numerical order.)

150 By Mr. HERRING: We will now make our offer of documentary evidence in addition to that already offered:

First. The certificate of the treasurer general of the State of Sonora upon examination of archives in that office; also certified to by the acting governor.

(Marked Exhibit "23.")

Second. A similar certificate made at the same time by the archievaro in relation to the matrix on file.

(Marked Exhibit "24.")

Third. Translation of the judicial inquiry we offered yesterday in the original Spanish.

(Marked Exhibit "25.")

Fourth. Field-notes of the survey of San Rafael del Valle.

(Marked Exhibit "26.")

Fifth. Certified copy of title papers of San Rafael del Valle.

(Marked Exhibit "27.")

Sixth. Word-for-word translation of title papers.

(Marked Exhibit "28.")

Seventh. Copy in Spanish of the judicial inquiry of 1869.

(Marked Exhibit "29.")

Eighth. Translation of same.

Yncontinente procedio el Alcalde al correspondiente avalue del terreno, por medio de peritas inteligentes, que lo fueron dos ciudadanos Manuel Soto y Camilo Arvizu, quienes verificaron dicho acto previo juramento de estilo y segun sus practicos conocimientos y con arreglo a los superiores disposiciones de la materia, justificaron los cuatro sitios en doscientos cuarenta pesos a razon de sesenta cada uno por tener aqua corriente. Con este avaluo el Alcalde los saco alpregon en solicitud de postures por treinta dias consecutivos desde el 30 de Agosto 1827 hasta el 28 de Setiembre del mismo ano. No resulto ninguno; concluyo el expediente y por auto de 30 del mismo mes y con citacion del interesado lo remitió para su remate a la Tesoreria general, quien con decreto de 7 de Febrero de 1828, puso al conocimiento del Promotor Fiscal, cuyo pedimento es como a la letra sigue.

156

Pedimento Fiscal.

Senor Teserero General :

Este es un expediente que se contrate a la medida de cuatro sitios para cria de ganado mayor y caballada, practicadas por el Alcalde del Presidio de Santa Cruz en favor del ciudadano Rafael Elias, cuya terreno se denimina San Rafael. Su avaluo es de doscientos cuarenta pesos segun el computo de los sujetos que desempeñaron tal eneargo, que dando rematados en dicha suma en favor del interesado.

Las observaciones del Promotor en el expediente pudieron entenderse con motivo a vicios en las actuaciones, pero como no presentan mayores obstaculos, las omite, y solo extremo no se hiciese uso del aquien para proceder a la medida en ocasion de que este instrumento es indispensable para seguir el rumbo ; de manera que bolviendose a medir el terreno por falta de ese sequisito, es entrar en trastorno y perjudicar gravemente a la parte, por lo que opina el Fiscal, que no habiendo contradiccion de partes por la que se evidencie perjuicio de tercero, disimule esa falta y se proceda a la adjudicacion que corresponda segun las formalidades y requisitos de estilo. Este es mi modo de pansar.

Concepcion de Alamos 7 de Febrero de 1828.

MANUEL DE LA BRENA.

Y habiendose conformado la Tesoreria General con el preinserto pedimento Fiscal, por auto de 16 de Abril, procedio a las tres publicoz almonedas en el mismo dia 16 el 17 y 18, en solicitud de postores ; y no habiendo resultado ninguno, quedaron rematados los cuatro sitios de tierra para cria de granado mayor y caballada, del puesto de San Rafael del Valle a favor del ciudadano Rafael Elias como se justifica de la tercera Almoneda que sigue.

Tercera Almoneda y Remate.

En dicha ciudad a los dies y ocho diaz del mes de Abril de mil ochoci entos veinte y ochoz. Comveados en junta de Almonedas el Senor Presidente y Vocales que la componen procedieron a la celebracion de la ultima para el remate de los cuatro sitios de tierra de que trata este espediente, practicandola en los propios terminos que la primera antecedente almoneda, con solo anadir que en este momento ha de quedar celebrado el remate. Y siendo ya dada la plegaria de las doce de este dia sin que ocurriese ningun postor dijo por ultimo el prejonero ; "A la una, a las dos, a los tres, que se remata, que se remata, que se remata, que buena, que buena, que buena pro le haya a Dn. Rafael Elias."

En tales terminos se concluyo este acto quedando publico y se-lemnemente rematados en favor de este interesado los cuatro sitios de tierra para cria de ganado mayor y caballada en la cantidad de doscientos cuarenta pesos en que fueron avaluados. Y para la debida constancia se pone por diligencia que firmaron los Senores Presidente y Vocales de la junta haciendolo tambien el apoderado que lo fue Don Tibursio Gomez.

GAJIOLA.

TIBURSIO GOMEZ.

En seguida procedio el apoderado ciudadano Tibursio Gomez a enterar en la Tesoreria, los doscientos cuarenta pesos en que fueron valuados y rematados los cuatro sitios de tierra del puesto de San Rafael del Valle como se acredita de la certificacion que a la letra sigue.

Certificacion.

Nicolas Maria Gajiola, Tesorero General de las rentas del Estado de Occidente.

Certifico; que al folio 14 del libro manual de esta Tesoreria del corriente ano; se halla centada con esta fha. la partida del tenor siguiente.

Cargo en mercedes de tierras, doscientos cuarenta pesos enterados por Don Tibursio Gomez a nombre de Don Rafael Elias vecino de Arispe por la merced de cuatro sitios de tierra para cria de ganado mayor y caballada en el paraje nombrado San Rafael del Valle en jurisdiccion del Presidio de Santa Cruz, habiendose avaluado cada sitio a razon de sesenta pesos por tener agua corriente, los 158 cuales se remataron en favor de dicho Elias en junta de Almonedas celebrado en esta capital el dia 18 del corriente.

Remarks on Original Title Papers of Rancho San Rafael del Valle.

164 The original expediente of this grant is found in the proper place in the archives; it is written on the corresponding stamped paper; proceedings of survey, valuation, publication and sale are all regular; no borrador or draught found in the expediente, but that is attached to the —, a certificate that on the 25th of December, 1832, the title was issued; this certificate is signed by Treasurer General Mendoza. There is also a certificate that Rafael Elias had paid into the treasure the sum of $240.00, the amount at which the land had been valued and sold.

There is nothing on the original title papers calculated to cast any suspicion on same.

Jose Maria Mendoza, treasurer general of the free, independent, and sovereign State of Sonora, Greeting:

Inasmuch as article 11 of the sovereign decree number 70 of the general congress of the union, dated August 4th of 1824, concedes to the States the revenues which in said law it did not reserve for the federation itself, and one of them being that derived from the lands within their respective territories, which in consequence belongs to them, for the disposition of which the honorable constitutive congress of the State that used to be joined of Sonora and Sinaloa enacted the law No. 30 of May 20th of 1825, as well as the decrees relative thereto passed by other succeeding legislatures, and the citizen Rafael Elias, a resident of this capitol, having made due application on the 12th of March of 1827, at the treasury general that was then of the United States, for the lands named San Rafael del Valle, located in the jurisdiction of the presidio of Santa Cruz, which was allowed according to law on the date of July 1st of the same year, and the petition of entry, the order for the commission, and the act of accepting the charge being as follows, to wit:

Petition.

Mr. Treasurer General:

Don Rafael Elias presents himself before you in due form and says that, needing land for stock purposes, he asks for the public lands adjacent to the ranch of San Pedro, within the jurisdiction of Santa Cruz, as far as the place called Tres Alamos, binding myself to make good to the nation the duties that belong to it and whatever else may be just until he shall acquire the title deeds 167 and confirmation thereof, for which purpose you will please consider said public lands as taken up and claimed.

Wherefore I pray you will please order compliance with what I ask, in which I will be greatly favored.

Arispe, March 12th of 1827.

In the absence and at the request of Don Rafael Elias:

JOAQUIN ELIAS.

Decree.

Cosala, July 1st of 1827.—Let the alcalde of the police of Santa Cruz, with the power which for that purpose is hereby conferred on him, without prejudice to any third party who may have a better right, and with the previous summons of adjacent owners, proceed to the survey, appraisalment, and to put up at public sale for thirty consecutive days the lands indicated in the foregoing petition, acting strictly in all things in accordance with the sovereign decree of the honorable constituting congress of the State, number 30, of May 20th, 1825, — the regulations attached to it; and these proceedings having been finished, you will remit the process to this treasury, giving notice to the bidders that may present themselves, so that they may appear in person or by attorney at the auction that will take place at this office after the three previous auctions provided by law. The treasurer general of the state, Nicolas Maria Gaxiola, so decreed it and signed it.

GAXIOLA.

Act of Obedience.

In the presidio of Santa Cruz on the twentieth day of the month of August of the year one thousand eight hundred and twenty-seven:

168 Let the command of the decree of the treasurer general of the State, Don Nicolas Maria Gaxiola, be complied with: and for that purpose, after summoning the interested parties or their attorney therefor and the adjacent owners, if there be any, and accompanied by the other necessary official who will be appointed for the object, I shall go to the ranch of San Pedro, in order to proceed with the survey of the lands petitioned for—that is, those that pertain or are claimed by the petitioner, the citizen Rafael Elias, whose survey must be made separately from those that have to be made for the other petitioners, whose entries are made jointly and appear in the copy of the writing with which this proceedings begin.

The citizen Pablo Fraijo, constitutional alcalde of the police of the presidio of Santa Cruz, by the present act so determined it, ordered, and signed before his assistant witnesses in the absence of a regular clerk, as provided by law.

PABLO FRAIJO.

SATURNINO LIMON.

JOSE MARIA SOTELO.

Forthwith the alcalde so commissioned proceeded to appoint the officers, counters, tallymen, and chainmen. These were the citizens Manrico Neira, Francisco Sandoval, Jose Samaniego, Manuel Soto, and Camilo Arvisu, who promised and swore to comply faithfully and legally with their respective charges; and, after summoning the interested party and the adjacent owners, the alcalde made the survey that appears in the following proceedings:

169

Proceedings of Survey.

At the place called San Rafael del Valle, on the twenty-first day of the month of August, of the year one thousand eight hundred and twenty-seven, I, the said surveying alcalde, in order to begin the survey of the lands to be taken up by the citizen Rafael Elias, presented a cord, well twisted and stretched, to the above-named officials and a Castillian vara measure, with which were measured and counted off fifty varas of said cord, and, this having been done, the extremes of the cord were tied to poles, and, the interested party being present, the survey was begun from a point which was taken as centre, which was at a place where there are some small hills, and, taking the direction of the south, there were measured and counted two hundred cords, which ended at the limits of the San Pedro ranch, land belonging to Don Jesus Perez, and in his stead

the superintendent of the same ranch was present and exhibited the documents, which showed that his surveys extended up to that place, the monument of which standing there was taken as the boundary of one and the other interested parties; and returning to the centre the northern direction was taken, measuring and counting two hundred cords, which ended upon the valley where there is a small, rising calcarious knoll, where I ordered to be placed a heap of stones as a monument; and returning to the centre there were measured and counted towards the east fifty cords, which ended upon the valley and fronting the Mule mountains, where I put a heap of stones as a sign of monument, from which place I returned to the centre, from which was counted the measurement on the side of the west, measuring and counting fifty cords, which ended upon the same valley, fronting towards the Huachuca mountains, where there was put a heap of stones as a sign of monument, with which and one hundred cords that were measured 170 from one and the other extremities of the lines running south and north, so as to square the land, placing at the end of each the corresponding monuments, the survey was concluded, resulting therefrom four sitios for raising cattle and horses in favor of the aforesaid citizen Rafael Elias, with which he was satisfied and took possession of the land so segregated, being informed that at the proper time he had to mark all its limits with monuments of stone and mortar, as is by law provided.

In witness whereof I note it down in these proceedings, which were signed with me by the said Elias, and the other appointed officers did not do so, because they did not know how to write, with the assistant witnesses for lack of the regular clerk, according to law.

PABLO FRAJO.

JOSE MARIA SOTELO.

Immediately thereafter the alcalde proceeded to the appraisalment of the land through intelligent experts, who were the citizens Manuel Soto and Camilo Arvisu, who did so having previously taken the regular oath, and, according to their practical knowledge and in conformity with the superior regulations in the premises, they adjudged the value of the four sitios to be two hundred and forty dollars, at the rate of sixty each, because they had running water.

With this appraisalment the alcalde put them up at public auction, asking for bidders, for thirty consecutive days from August 30th of 1827 to September 28th of the same year. There were no bidders. The proceedings were concluded, and by order of the 30th of the same month and after summoning the interested party the alcalde remitted them to the treasury general, to be put up at auction, which by the decree of February 7th, 1828, placed them 171 before the fiscal attorney, whose opinion is, word for word, as follows:

Opinion of the Fiscal Attorney.

Mr. Treasurer General:

These are the proceedings concerning the survey of four sitios for raising cattle and horses, executed by the alcalde of the presidio of Santa Cruz in favor of the citizen Rafael Elias, which land is called San Rafael. Its appraised value is of two hundred and forty dollars, according to the calculations of the persons who undertook the charge, being finally bid in for that sum in favor of the interested party.

The remarks of the fiscal attorney concerning the proceedings might be extensive on account of defects in the proceedings, but as they do not present any great obstacles he omits them, and he only finds it strange that no use was made of the compass in making the survey, as this instrument is indispensable to follow a route, so that to survey the land over again for the want of this requisite is to enter into difficulties and greatly to injure the claimant, for which reason the fiscal attorney, there being no contestants that show any damage to third parties, is of the opinion that this fault be overlooked, and that the proceedings be continued to adjudication, according to the forms and requisites in use.

This is my way of thinking.

MANUEL DE LA BRENA.

Concepcion de Alamos, February 7th, 1828.

And the treasury general, having been satisfied with the foregoing fiscal statement, by the order of April 16th proceeded with the three public auctions on the same 16th day, 17th, and 18th, asking for bidders, and, there appearing none, the four sitios for raising cattle and horses of the place San Rafael del Valle were auctioned off in favor of the citizen Rafael Elias, as is apparent by the last auction, which is as follows:

3d Offering and Auction.

In said city, on the eighteenth day of the month of April, of the year one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight, having convened as an auction committee, the president and the directors who composed it proceeded to the last auction for the four sitios of land to which these proceedings refer, acting in the same manner as in the first anteceding auction, with the only difference that on this occasion the contract was to be final; and it being twelve o'clock meridian of this day without there appearing any bidder, the caller said finally, "One, two, three! Going, going, gone! May it do good, may it do good, may it do good to Don Rafael Elias!"

In these terms these proceedings concluded, the four sitios of land for raising cattle and horses being publicly and solemnly auctioned off in favor of the interested party in the sum of two hundred and forty dollars, for which they were appraised.

In witness whereof it is so set forth in the proceedings, which were signed by the president and the directors of the committee, and also by the attorney (of Elias), who was Don Tiburcio Gomez.

GAXIOLA.

GOMEZ.

URRUTIA.

TIBURCIO GOMEZ.

Forthwith the attorney (of Elias), the citizen Tiburcio Gomez, proceeded to pay into the treasury the two hundred and forty dollars in which the four sitios at the place called San Rafael del Valle had been appraised and auctioned off, as appears from the following certificate herein set forth, word for word :

Certificate.

Nicolas Maria Gaxiola, treasurer general of the rents of the State of Occidente.

I certify that on folio 14 of the diary of this treasury of the current year is found entered with this date an item in the following terms :

173 Charge for grant of lands, two hundred and forty dollars, paid by Don Tiburcio Gomez, in the name of Don Rafael Elias, resident of Arispe, for the grant of four sitios of land for raising cattle and horses in the place named San Rafael del Valle, in the jurisdiction of the presidio of Santa Cruz, each sitio having been appraised at the rate of sixty dollars on account of having running water, which were auctioned off in favor of said Elias at the public auction, which took place at this capital on the 18th of the current month. $240.00.

GAXIOLA.

TIBURCIO GOMEZ.

In witness whereof I issue the present certificate at Alamos, on the twenty-first day of April, of the year one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight.

NICOLAS MARIA GAXIOLA.

The present original certificate being added to the documents, the proceedings were concluded with all the requisites and formalities provided by the laws, and they remain in the custody of the treasury general as a perpetual muniment of title.

Wherefore, in the exercise of the faculties on me conferred by law, by these presents, and in the name of the sovereign State of Sonora, I grant in due form of law four sitios of land for raising cattle and horses, comprised in the locality called San Rafael del Valle, situated in the jurisdiction of the presidio of Santa Cruz, in favor of the citizen Rafael Elias, resident of this capital, to whom I concede, give, and adjudge said land by way of sale, with the condition, firmness, and permanency established by the laws, for himself, his children, heirs, and successors, with all its rights of ingress and regress, uses, customs, servitudes, timber, mountains, pastures, waters, springs, pools, and other things belonging thereto, with the expressed injunction and marked condition that he must keep said sitios occupied and settled, without letting them be abandoned, deserted, or unprotected for any time, with the understanding that if they be totally abandoned for the period of three consecutive years and there should be any person to petition for them in such an event, with the previous proof made of that fact, they will be declared public lands and granted anew to the highest bidder, excepting, as it is just to do, in those cases in which the abandonment is caused by the notorious invasion of public enemies, and only for the period of the existence of such state of facts, admonishing, as the said citizen Rafael Elias is strongly admonished, as well as his heirs and successors, that they must keep and confine themselves to the lands, pertinencies, monuments, and limits marked precisely in the foregoing proceedings of survey, obeying and complying exactly with article 30 of law 30 of May 20th of 1825, which imposes the obligation to mark the metes and bounds with monuments of stone and mortar, under the penalty of twenty-five dollars fine, which will be exacted of defaulters, to be applied to the benefit of the common, the judge constructing the said monuments at the expense of the owners.

I order and command the judges, tribunals, and local authorities now incumbent and those who may hereafter succeed under the jurisdiction of this capital that, in due regard to the well and prompt administration of law and in compliance with the provisions of law, they do not permit the aforesaid grantee nor his successors to be in any way disturbed, harassed, or molested in the free use, exercise, property, control, and possession of the mentioned four sitios of land comprised in the property of San Rafael del Valle, but, 175 on the contrary, that they watch and guard constantly and with the greatest vigilance and activity, so that the grantees be protected and maintained always in the quiet and peaceful possession to which they are entitled in legitimate right, so that in this manner they may freely sell, change, exchange, give away, transfer, cede, and mortgage said four sitios at their will and free election as absolute owners of the property.

In which terms I issue the present title of grant in due form in favor of the citizen Rafael Elias, his heirs and successors, delivering it to them for their protection, previous memorandum of the same being entered in the proper book.

Given at the capital of Arispe on the twenty-fifth day of the month of December of one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two.

Attested and signed by me, sealed with the seal of the treasury general, before the undersigned witnesses of my assistance, with whom I act in default of clerk, there being none, according to law.

(PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 5 A.)

Copy of a deed of sale under a contract to resell, which the citizens Jose Juan, Jose Maria, and Manuel Elias and the mother of the same, Dona Guadalupe Perez de Elias, have executed in favor of the Senores Camou Hermanos (brothers), of the lands of San Pedro, embracing thirty-two square leagues, in the ranchos of Santa Barbara, Agua Preta, Naudesdaubacachi, Agua del Gato, Baltazar, and San Rafael del Valle.

In the city of Ures, on the 25th day of the month of July, 1862, before me, Ignacio Lopez, judge of first instance of the district, and the witnesses mentioned, appeared the citizens Jose Juan, Jose Maria, and Manuel Elias, and their mother, Dona Guadalupe Perez de Elias, and also the citizen Manuel Morales, of this vicinity, representing the Senores Camous Brothers, of Hermosillo, whose power he presented, and said that for their mutual interest they had agreed in the sale with a contract for reselling thirty-two square leagues of land, situated in San Pedro, continuing to the ranchos of Santa Barbara, Agua Prieta, Naudesdaubacachi, Agua del Gato, Baltazar, and San Rafael del Valle, in the jurisdiction of Santa Cruz, Fronteras, and a part within the American lines, and for the sum of twelve thousand dollars, in silver or gold, payable within three years from the present date, with the condition that either party, with common consent, may freely resell to another person or persons the said thirty-two square leagues at any time before the expiration of the said three years, and if during this time such sale be made the nett profit ensuing therefrom shall be divided equally between the Senores Camous and Elias; but if the Senores Elias should desire to redeem the property before the expiration of the said three years they shall pay to the said Camous Brothers 180 the amount that they have disbursed, twelve thousand dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of one per cent. per month, together with the taxes and costs of this sale, which they will pay as they have stipulated.

And so long as the sale is not made nor the three years have expired the Senores Elias shall remain in possession of the said thirty-two leagues, enjoying the products of the same; and for the purpose of carrying out this sale in due form of law the said Don Jose Juan, Don Jose Maria, and Don Manuel Elias and their mother, Dona Guadalupe Perez de Elias, hereby sell to the Senores Camous Brothers the thirty-two square leagues, which include the said ranchos of Santa Barbara, Agua Prieta, Naideesbidecachi, Agua del Gato, Baltazar, and San Rafael del Valle, for the sum of twelve thousand dollars, which they have decided to their entire satisfaction, under the express condition that if within the term of three years the vendors or their heirs should desire to redeem the same and shall return the price received, in silver or gold, with interest thereon at the rate of one per cent. per month, then they shall be completely restored to the ownership of the property of which they now resume the possession, either party in the meanwhile being able, with the consent of the other side, to sell the said lands, in which case the nett profits ensuing from such sale shall be equally divided between the parties, the vendors satisfying the purchasers for the taxes and costs of sale with which they are now charged; but should the said time expire without the said price being returned, then the said Senores Camous will have the right to dispose of the said lands, as the true owners thereof, without the necessity of issuing citation or taking any proceedings in the matter whatever, the Senores Elias declaring that they have not sold or alienated the said thirty-two square leagues of land, and that the same is free from all responsibility and encumbrances, and as such they sell 181 the same, with all the uses, servitudes, and other things thereunto belonging, which have pertained, pertain, or may pertain to them according to law, for the said sum of twelve thousand dollars. They also declare that the said sum of twelve thousand dollars is the just and true value of said property, the ownership of which they now denounce if within the term of three years they be not redeemed.

And, finally, they obligate themselves to warrant the title to said land; and in the same act Don Manuel Morales declared that the respective titles of said property of the ranchos of Santa Barbara, Agua Prieta, Naidiedacdebacachi, Agua del Gato, Baltazar, and San Rafael del Valle had been received by his principals, the Senores Camou Brothers, and said that he accepted this deed in all its parts, both parties obligating themselves, the Senores Elias with their own property and the Senor Morales obligating the property of his principals, the Senores Camou Hermanos, to the fulfillment of all that is contained in this writing—that is, the property they now have and such as they may hereafter acquire—declaring that no deceit or fraud has been used, and that should there have been, in a large or small amount, they make mutual donation thereof, firm and irrevocable, renouncing the time allowed them by law to make such claim. Thus the parties declared and signed, which parties I certify that I know, reminding them that the instrument should be registered in the inspector's office of mortgages within the time required by law. The citizens Jose Maria Famago, Manuel Y. Mormier, and Hilario Rubio, residents of this city, being witnesses, which I attest.

Presente el Co. Jose Maria Elias a quien el Co. Juez le tomo la protesta de ley y bajo la cual ofrecio decir verdad en cuanto supiera y fuera preguntado; y siendolo per su nombre. edad, estado, ejercicio y vecindad, dijo; llamarse como queda dicho, mayor de cuarenta anos, casado, empleado y vecuno de este Puerto. Preguntado sobre el contenido de los tres puntos del anterior escrito dijo; que es cierto la renta de los terrenos que en el se mencionan a la casa de Camou Hermanos que representa actualmente el Senor Don Juan P. Camou como socio principal de ella y cuya venta ratifica per si y a nombre de su Senora Madre Dona Guadalupe Peres y su hermano Don Manuel Elias segun poder especial que exhibe y entrega para que se haga el uso que corresponde; y contesta al—

Segundo que todos esos terrenos los adquirieron per herencia de sus finados padres, siendo los unicos herederos, los que ya se han espresado; y en cuanto al tercer punto declara; que tanto su abuelo como su padre tenian el mismo nombre Rafael Elias que es cierto que algunas veces estos firmaban agregando el nombre de Jose y otro apellido de Gonzales; pero no obstante todas estas diferencias siempre era la misma persona, siendo costumbre de este pais hacerse asi muchas veces para distinguirse de otras personas que tienen el mismo nombre que son o no parientes. Concluida esta declaracion leida que le fue se ratifica en ella, firmando conmigo y los de asistencia.

(Seal.) Second-class paper. (Seal.)

Republic of Mexico, for the year- 1868 and 1869, 50 cents.

Office of sealed or stamped paper, Guaymas.

To the district judge :

Juan P. Camou, head member and attorney-in-fact for the house of Camou Brothers, before you, in due form of law show- that it being necessary for him to explain certain facts which have connection with certain lands, a large portion of which are situated in Arizona, United States of America, and the other portion are lying in the frontier of this State, which lands were purchased by the said house of Dona Guadalupe Perez, widow of Don Rafael Elias (deceased), and her children, Don Jose Maria, Don Manuel y, Don Jose Juan Elias, that you may be pleased to summon the said Jose Maria Elias to appear and testify in his behalf and in representation of his mother, Dona Guadalupe Perez, and of his brother, Don Manuel Elias, all that he may know in reference to the questions which shall be propounded to him ;

That the same be done as to Senora Dona Bernardina Lucero, wife of the deceased Jose Juan Elias, and be certified to by the citizen Jose Bustamante, district judge, and the collector of the inland custom-house, Citizen Julian Escalante :

1st. Let Don Jose Maria Elias state for himself and in behalf of Dona Guadalupe Perez and Don Manuel Elias (producing the power of attorney) whether it is true that he confirms the sale made to the house of Camou Brothers of the lands known by the names of "Naidebacachi," "Agua Prieta," and "Santa Barbara," embraced in a title, and the lands of San Rafael del Valle, in the jurisdiction of Presidio de Santa Cruz, embraced in another, and lastly in a third title those which are comprehended in those places known by the names of "Agua de Baltazar," "La del Gato," La de "Tomas Romero," and Las "Mestenas."

2nd. Let the same party state how they acquired those lands, whether by purchase made from another person or by paternal inheritance as sole heirs.

3d. Let him state whether his father and grandfather were in the habit of signing sometimes simply the name of Rafael Elias and at other times by placing before the name "Jose" or by postponing the surname Gonzales, and that notwithstanding these variations he was nevertheless the same person.

The same questions will be propounded to the widow, Dona Bernardina Lucero, and have certified copy of her testimony with the certificates of the two officers hereinabove referred to sent to me.

Assistant witness :

EDUARDO MORALES.

199 Present, the citizen Jose Maria Elias, to whom the judge administered the oath required by law and whom promised to tell the truth in all matters known by him, and, having been told to give his name, age, condition, profession, and place of residence, answered that his name is as hereinbefore stated, of forty years of age, married, employé and a resident of this port.

Having been asked in regard to the contents of the three points of the preceding writing, he answered that it is true that a sale was made of the lands therein mentioned to the house of Camou Brothers, represented at present by Senor Don Juan P. Camou as the head man of said house, and which sale he confirms in his own behalf and in behalf of his mother, Dona Guadalupe Perez, and of his brother Don Manuel Elias, in accordance with the special power of attorney, which he now produces and delivers in order that the proper use which may be required of it be made.

To the second question he answers—

That all the lands were acquired by right of inheritance from their deceased parents, they being the only heirs and entitled to the same.

To the third question he answers—

That his grandfather, as well as his father, had the same name, viz., Rafael Elias; that it is true that sometimes they would sign adding the name of Jose and the surname of Gonzalez; but notwithstanding these variations it was the same person, it being customary in this country to do so to distinguish one from another of the same name and which are or are not relatives.

This deposition, having been read to him, was signed by him with me and the attesting witnesses.

On the same date I called at the house of Senora Dona Bernardina Lucero with the attesting witnesses, and, after administering the oath to her, she was told to state her name, age, condition, and residence, to which she replied that her name is as already hereinbefore set forth; of thirty years of age; widow of Don Jose Juan Elias (deceased), and a resident of this port.

Having been asked in reference to the contents of the points embraced in the foregoing writing, she answered that it is true that the sale was made by her deceased husband, Don Jose Juan Elias, jointly with her mother-in-law, Dona Guadalupe Perez, and her brothers-in-law, Jose Maria and Manuel Elias, to the house of Camou Brothers of the lands named and specified in the hereinabove referred writing; that it is also true that those lands were acquired by the above-mentioned persons from their deceased parents as sole heirs; that she is aware that her grandfather and father-in-law were in the habit of signing sometimes the name of Rafael Elias alone and at others would add the other name of Jose and still at others the surname of Gonzalez, but that notwithstanding these variations they were the same persons.

The questions having been answered, she signed this with me and the attesting witnesses.

He is also informed that the parties mentioned in said writing are the lawful heirs of Don Rafael Elias and from whom said lands were derived, and this certificate is made at the request of the interested party, Don Juan P. Camou, in the port of Guaymas de Zaragoza, this the 17th of March, 1869, attesting it in the presence of—

JULIAN ESCALANTE,

District Judge.

Jose Bustamante, judge of first instance, &c., hereby certifies that it is true that a sale was actually made of the lands described in the foregoing writing to the house of Camou Brothers by Dona Guadalupe Perez de Elias and her children, Jose Maria, Manuel y Jose Juan Elias, now deceased. He is also informed that these parties are the lawful heirs of Rafael Elias, deceased, and finally that he is aware from the relations of friendship and those of a relative which he kept up by letter correspondence with Don Rafael Elias, father and son, that these parties on several occasions signed only their Christian and surnames hereinbefore given, and on other occasions they would add the name "Jose" or the surname "Gonzalez," though it was the same person, as the same can be seen by reference being made to several letters of these same persons now in his possession, and at the request of Don Juan P. Camou this certificate is issued at the port of Guaymas de Zaragoza on the 17th day of March, 1869, signing the same with the attesting witnesses.

PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 7 A.

Mexican Republic. Public office of the notary, public Serafico T. Robles.

Authentic copy of the contract for the dissolution of the copartnership styled "Camou Hermanos," executed by the members thereof, to wit, Messrs. Juan P., P. Andres, Pascual, Juan P. M., all of them surnamed Camou.

217 One seal that says: Treasury general of the State of Sonora, collection section.

I certify that Mr. Jose Camou, Jr., paid into this office the sum of one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five dollars, including the twenty-five per centum of the federal duty, as dues on a certain instrument executed by Messrs. Juan Pedro, Pedro Andres, and Juan Pedro M. Camou, dissolving the partnership of "Camou Hermanos," thereby agreeing to segregate the real estate, live stock, personal property, choses in action, and other property belonging to the said copartnership between Messrs. Juan Pedro and Pedro Andres for the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars.

With respect to the ten thousand dollars in cash received by Juan Pedro M. no dues were collected, as they were not in consideration of any transfer of real estate.

Hermosillo, March the twenty-fifth of eighteen hundred and ninety.

V. AGUILAR, Number Fifteen.

In the city of Hermosillo, on the fifteenth day of the month of March, eighteen hundred and ninety, before me, the undersigned, notary public, and attesting witnesses herein mentioned below appeared Messrs. Juan Pedro, Pedro Andres, Juan Pedro M., and Pascual, all surnamed Camou—the first and the third residents of the port of Guaymas and the second and fourth of this city, married, of full age, capable of contracting, merchants—whom I certify are personally known to me, — declared—218 That on the twenty-second day of the month of April, eighteen hundred and eighty, they entered into a contract of copartnership, under the style and name of "Camou Hermanos," for the period of five years; that on the eighth day of the month of July, eighteen hundred and eighty-five—that is, seventy-seven days after the lapse of the five years before mentioned—a new public instrument was executed to renew the previous contract, to which was given the character of an extension to April the twenty-second, eighteen hundred and ninety, the same which they by these presents ratify and confirm in due form of law; that on the seventh day of the present month and with the unanimous consent of all the copartners Mr. Pascual Camou retired from the partnership, which fact was carried out by means of a duly executed public instrument, the conditions of which, severally itemized, are set forth in the respective documents, all of which were exhibited to me and which I certify to have now before me.

The first is a public instrument, dated April twenty-second, eighteen hundred and eighty, executed in this city before Matias Moran, a national notary public, and recorded on the twenty-seventh of May of the same year; the second is also a public instrument, executed in the same city on the eighth day of the month of July of eighteen hundred and eighty-five, in this very office, and recorded on the twenty-ninth day of July of the same year, and the third is likewise a public instrument, executed in this office, dated the seventh of the current month and recorded on the fourteenth of said month.

The three first exponents continued to state that, it being convenient to their respective interests, by their deliberate, free, and spontaneous will they have agreed to dissolve and they do dissolve the copartnership styled "Camou Hermanos," which carried on business in this city and in the port of Guaymas under 219 the name and style aforesaid, upon the basis and conditions contained in the following clauses:

First. The copartnership under the style and name of "Camou Hermanos," that in the first instance was formed in this city of Hermosillo on the twenty-second of April, eighteen hundred and eighty, and on a second occasion on the eighth of July of eighteen hundred and eighty-five, is dissolved by the execution of this instrument.

Second. The copartner Juan Pedro Camou receives as his entire share of the dissolved copartnership, with their corresponding titles, the following real estate in both country and city property, to wit: The ranch known as "San Rafael del Valle," containing four sitios for cattle and situate in the Territory of Arizona, county of Cochise, in the United States of America; the part belonging to the copartnership in the ranch of "Saracache" and its "demacias" and a small share in the ranch of "Santo Domingo," both situate in the neighborhood of the town of Cucurpe, in the district of Magdalena, of this State, with the live stock, appurtenances, and other existing property in said ranch of "Saracache," and also all the live stock and existing personal property the copartnership has in the ranch of "Cabullona," in the neighborhood of the town of Fronteras, in the district of Arispe, and also the branding iron of the copartnership; the part belonging to the copartnership in the ranch of Nogales de Elias, located within the Territory of Arizona, United States, in the county of Pima; the share which the firm has in the ranch of "La Cascarita," situate in the district of Altar, of this State; the part which the firm has in the ranch called "Natora" and Durasno, in the district of Sahuaripa, Sonora; the farm 220 in the town of Suagui, known by the name of "El Opajaqui," which the firm owns, subject to municipal rents; the right which the firm has in the parts bought from Mr. Manuel L. Martinez in the ranch of the "Noria de Landavazo" and "Batobabi;" a piece of country property known by the name of "Los Angeles," to the west and about two leagues from this city, between El Chanate and Los Bagotes, which was bought of Mr. Francisco Robles; a house in the town of Magdalena, situated facing the "Plaza de Armas," bought of Mr. Pablo Tournier; the large two-story house built by the firm "Camou Hermanos" in the town of Nogales, between Elias street and the railroad lands, facing the divisory line, and which is now occupied as tenants by Messrs. Horvilleau and Possehl; one lot in this city towards the north, contiguous to the mint, bought of the heirs of Mr. Feliciano Arvisu; one lot on the east side in the suburbs of the "Pueblo de Seris," known by the name of "El Gito," bought of the same heirs of Mr. Feliciano Arvisu; two lots in this city, in the ward of Carmen, bought of Mr. Manuel Srvisu; the share which the firm has in the manufacturing company called "Yndustria Sonorence" and acquired by purchase made from the widow of Mr. Fernando Cubillas, as well as the share it has in the mine of Babicanora, district of Arispe. Besides, he receives the part designated in the sixth clause of the present instrument.

Third. The copartner Pedro Andres Camou receives as his entire share in the same dissolved copartnership of ("Camou Brothers") "Camou Hermanos," with their respective titles, the following property:

The share which the firm has in the "Chino Gordo," with all the lands belonging to it, situated to the northeast of this capital, on the road to Ures, and composed of five shares of original inheritance, the flour mill found in said property, the farm 221 lands of "Zaguaro" bought of the heirs of Mr. Joaquin Ruiz, the lands of "Coronado" included in the farm of "San Ysidro," the shares in "Santa Gertrudis," the lands of "Oregano," the property of "El Toro," and a small share in the lands of the ranch of "Las Animas," all with their water rights, servitudes, and other things annexed thereto, including likewise all existing property, live stock, and growing crops now found therein according to inventory, excepting only the flour resulting from the wheat at present found in the storehouse and the cotton that has just been raised in the farm of "Santa Margarita." He also receives the property known by the name of "San Jose del Claro," situate in the jurisdiction of Santa Ana, district of Magdalena, consisting of several farms, with all their appurtenances.

Moreover, he receives also the part designated in the sixth clause of the present instrument.

Fourth. The foregoing apportionments have been appraised by the three first copartners, deponents, and by common consent in the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars, divided in the following manner: Twenty-five thousand dollars correspond to the share represented by the copartner Juan Pedro Camou, and the fifty thousand dollars remaining to that of the copartner Pedro Andres Camou, which apportionments are fully in accordance with the agreements executed between the said partners.

Fifth. The copartner Juan Pedro M. Camou shall receive as his entire apportionment in the said copartnership the sum of ten thousand dollars in current silver money, by these presents exempt from all responsibility, be that what it may, in regard to the dissolved partnership and the copartners thereof, who assume the liability of the agreement of separation with the copartner Pascual Camou, executed the seventh day of the current month, to which reference was made heretofore.

Sixth. The copartners Juan Pedro and Pedro Andres shall collect the debts due to the dissolved copartnership, dividing between themselves, half and half, the result, and they shall pay in the terms agreed upon the credits standing out against it.

Seventh. The copartners Juan Pedro, Pedro Andres, and Juan Pedro M. renounce the period of five years provided in article one thousand and forty-five of the Code of Commerce, in its first section, for the readjustment of shares between themselves and against the copartnership, which period they consent to consider as expired.

Eighth. In like manner they, each individually, renounce the readjustment referred to in article four thousand one hundred and twelve of the Civil Code and the rights contained in that of two thousand of the same code.

Ninth. They also renounce the benefits granted by article four thousand one hundred and twenty of the Civil Code, to ask for indemnity for the responsibility that may result on account of the distributed property or other things provided for in the same article.

Tenth. The said copartners declare that in the present act of dissolution and apportionment made does not exist the undervaluation foreseen in article one thousand seven hundred and seventy-two of the Civil Code; but, if it does exist, they renounce the four years allowed by article one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four of the same code for rescission.

Eleventh. The ex-copartner Pascual Camou declares that if it is true that in the agreement of his separation which he has exhibited here there does not appear any reference to the benefits 223 expressed in clauses seventh, eighth, ninth, and tenth of the present contract, nevertheless he assents to said renunciation and by these presents makes the same his own, and accepts it as existing and expressed in his foregoing referred contract.

Additional clause. Inasmuch as the live stock existing in the property of "Chino Gordo" apportioned by the present contract to the copartner Pedro Andres Camou are marked with the copartnership brand, which in the second clause was assigned to the partner Juan Pedro, it is agreed that the first, being previously vented, shall be branded with such mark as the referred Mr. Pedro Andres may wish to use.

And the present writing having been read to the four gentlemen, exponents herein, before the witnesses to this instrument, the same being Mr. Antonio Calderon and Mr. Rodolfo Rodriguez, of full age and residents of this city, they were satisfied with its tenor and they signed it, the same as the witnesses aforesaid. I attest.

Mr. Pascual Camou added that the thirty thousand dollars remaining due to him by Mr. Juan Pedro, Pedro Andres, and Juan Pedro M. and which they bound themselves to pay in one year from date, according to the agreement dated the seventh of the current month, when he effected his separation from the copartnership of "Camou Hermanos," he has already received them in current silver money; and the money not being paid in the presence (of the notary), he waives the exception he could take according to article seventy-eight of the Code of Procedure and the term fixed by that of one thousand two hundred and two of the Civil Code.

Sor Gobernador Yntendente D. Antonio Cordero, Arizpe, 9 de Julio de 1821, Al Promotor fiscal, Cordero. Rubrica.

Senor Yntendente:

El Promotor fiscal de esta Yntendencia dice; que estas diligencia de mensura, avaluo, informacion de idoneidad y pregones de cuatro sitios de tierra realenga para oria de ganado mayor comprendidos en el parage nombrado San Pedro sito en jurisdiccion del Presidio de Fronteras, justipreciados en cantidad de ciento noventa pesos, a razon de sesenta cada uno de los tres primeros, y de diez pesos el restante; y medidos a favor de su denunciante Don Jose Jesus Perez, vecino de esta Ciudad; estan practicadas conforme en todo a las reales y superiores disposiciones que hacen regla en la materia. Esto supuesto, y atendiendo el merito que de suyo encierra la evacuada solicitud del citado interesado, por ser aquel rea-

 246 lengo tanto mas riesgoso del enemigo Apache que hostiliza esta Fronteras, cuanto es muy conveniente y ventajoso el pueblo del mismo pide el defensor fiscal de la Hacienda publica, se sirva Ud si lo tuviese a bien, mandar que con citacion de partes se proceda en esta Capital a la celebracion de las respectivas tres almonedas de estio en solicitud de postores para el remate del expresado terreno mensurado que debiera fincar en la ultima de ellas a favor del mayor y mejor que resulte; hariendose entender a este proceda a enterar en Tesoreria el valor principal en que se le rematen dichos cuatro sitios, su media Annata y 18 per cent. de concuccion; el 2 per cent. mandado exigir; por punto general, y tres pesos para los oficiales agregado a la Contaduria general de Ejercito, y que visto y aprobado que sea en junta Provincial este expediente, agregandosele la correspondiente certificacion que acredite el citado entero se de cuenta con el mismo a la Superior Hacienda para la resolucion que convenga. Este es mi parecer, el cual no se ha despachado hasta hoy del oficio fiscal, por la involuntaria traspapelada que el expedient a ha sufrida en el; mas V sin embargo, resolvera lo que fuere de su mayor ggrado.

Mr. Bme. Rochin, present.

DEAR SIR: By the present I give and confer on you special power, full, complete, and sufficient, as far as in law is required, with the greatest force and efficacy, so that as the representative of Messrs. Manuel and Jose Ma. Elias, as common owners of the ranch of San Pedro and by whom I am authorized, as may be seen by the letters joined herewith, you may present yourself before whom it may be proper and obtain the copy of the (title papers) of said ranch of "San Pedro," situate in Fronteras, district of Arispe. I trust you will accept my power, with all the necessary faculties, I standing by and confirming whatever you may do in this respect. Without anything further, I am respectfully, &c.,

TOMBSTONE, June 18th, 1891.

Mr. Victor Aguilar, Hermosillo.

MY DEAR SIR: Mr. Antonio Camou has requested of me, as co-owner of the ranch of "San Pedro," permission to get a certified copy of said ranch and of the first survey of it in order to ascertain in the United States the northern monument of the said ranch, because the southern boundary, situated within the United States, of the ranch of "San Rafael del Valle," his property, joins the afore-said monument of the San Pedro. In consequence I grant the said permit. Mr. Camou will pay the necessary costs. Without further, I remain yours, &c.,

SAN PEDRO, Julio 19th, 1891.

Mr. Victor Aguilar, Hermosillo.

DEAR FRIEND: Mr. Juan P. Camou, our friend, desires to have copy of the old title of this ranch in order to ascertain the exact point where our old titles fixed its boundaries towards the north, from which began the boundaries of the surveys of the ranch of San Rafael del Valle, which formerly belonged to us and today to Mr. Camou.

As far as I am concerned I do not think it detrimental to have the investigation desired by Mr. Camou made. Without further, I remain your friend, &c.,

Another seal that says: Fernando VII, D. G. M., years 1818 and 1819, two reals, gobernador intendente, Don Jose de Jesus Perez, resident of this capital.

Before your lordship, according to law and the royal ordinances concerning lands, laws, approbations, and instructions in relation to the royal lands and their disposition, with which H. M. (D. G. M.) favors his subjects, I appear and say—

That in order to take care of some live stock, not having as my own property any lands where to locate and raise them, I apply to your highness (with the prior consent of my father), so that in conformity with what is provided by the laws of the nation and what is provided by the royal cedula of 14th of February of 1805 to register the deserted place on the River San Pedro, situated in this province towards the northern frontier of the enemy, near the abandoned place called Nutrias, in view of which I offer to satisfy your majesty (D. S. G.) with the usual fees for settlement—the half per cent. dues and the other necessary fees; for so it is in exact justice what I represent.

Wherefore I pray your majesty to order a commission to carry out the proceedings of viewing and reconnoitering the lands, survey, appraisement, publication, possession, and sale of the four sitios, to be surveyed to me in the figure of a square or quadrilatera-, according to the conditions of the land. In such terms I request of your highness to grant my solicitude, in which I will receive favor. I make the necessary protests.

On the 30th of the present month and year the constitutional alcalde, Don Miguel Teran, answered my request in the negative for the help asked of this court, in which he demanded the delivery of the expediente into his possession in the following terms, saying (among other things), I hope you will forward them to me, so as to give due course to the superior decrees, for I cannot give the permit for the survey if the same is not done by myself, being subject to make explanations to the higher powers whenever these may demand them, which I reserve for that occasion, which is my answer to your communication.

In virtue of which and allowing it to rest upon his responsibility I transferred the present expediente to him, requiring a receipt for the protection of this court, and by the present I so decreed and signed it according to law.

FRONTERAS, May 3d, 1821.

Act of Obedience.

The foregoing superior decree received — delivered to this court by Don Nazario Gomez, in virtue whereof, and Don Rafael Salas having presented himself as the representative of Don Jose Jesus Perez, the interested party, whose power of attorney I certify as having seen, I ordered the survey; to which end I ordered to be appointed an agent for the treasury, surveyors, appraisers, and compass-man, and, as in the persons of Don Lucio Gomez, Don Ramon Benites, Don Teodoro Aros, and Don Luis Aragon reside the qualities of aptness, well-known practical skill, and knowledge, I have appointed, as I do appoint, the first as agent of the treasury to reconnoitre the country, looking over and to guard the interest of the public treasury; the second and third—that is, Benites and Aros—as appraisers, and the fourth, Don Luis Aragon, as compass-man; therefore let them be notified of their appointments, so that accepting they may be sworn and qualified according to law, and, whatever results, to proceed according to law. I, Don Miguel Teran, constitutional alcalde of this precinct and surveying judge in this case, so decreed, ordered, and signed it in regular form of law.

I attest.

MIGUEL TERAN.

JULIAN MONTANO. [SCRAWL.]

Immediately thereafter I, the surveying judge, by virtue of the foregoing order, summoned to this court the person of Don Lucio

Gomez and notified him of his appointment as agent of the public treasury for the survey, and, being informed of it, said that he hears it, and he signed with me in the regular form of law and my assistants.

I attest.

MIGUEL TERAN.
LUCIO GOMEZ.
JULIAN MONTANO. [SCRAWL.]

Thereafter, the person of Don Luis Gomez being present, the appointed agent of the treasury, I put him under oath in due form of law, by God our Lord and the holy cross, under which and 264 the penalties he offered to faithfully and legally discharge his commission, protesting not to defraud the public treasury or allow anything to be done contrary to the benefit of the same, which he will do without injury, fraud, corruption, or deceit, in accordance with the oath he has taken. He said he was over twenty years old, married, and a citizen, and he signed it before me and my assistants according to law.

I attest.

MIGUEL TERAN.
LUCIO GOMEZ.
JULIAN MONTANO.

I, the said alcalde and judge of survey, having seen the acceptance and oath of the appointed agent of the public treasury, Don Lucio Gomez, said that I accepted and I do accept it, and to that end I interposed and do interpose my authority and judicial decree, and by it I gave and do give him power and faculty as much as in law is required and be necessary to make it full and binding; that in the name of the public treasurer may perform every act, agency, and process that the same would do for itself (the treasury) on the subject, and by these presents I so decreed, ordered, and signed in the ordinary form.

I attest.

MIGUEL TERAN.

JULIAN MONTANO.

On the third day of the month of May I, the said alcalde and judge of survey of these proceedings, said that, inasmuch as the process of appointing the necessary officials had been concluded, there being no neighboring owners to summon, let publication by posting be made, calling whoever may think himself entitled, and by these presents let it be known that on the sixth of the present month, as the time when they will be heard, attended to, and 266 awarded them their dues, that they may ask and may have in the premises, and by the present I so decreed, ordered, and signed in due form.

I attest.

MIGUEL TERAN.
 JULIAN MONTANO. [SCRAWL.]

Forthwith the publication provided for in the foregoing order was posted; in witness whereof and for the proper effects of the same in law I make this, which I signed with a scrawl. Having summoned Don Manuel Antunes, and he having answered on the 17th of the present month, what may be seen by the proceeding which I order to be annexed to the expediente that it may have the effects attached to it in law, let him be present at the process of survey.

And by the present I so decreed, ordered, and signed according to law.

I attest.

MIGUEL TERAN.
 LUCIO GOMEZ.
 JULIAN MONTANO. [SCRAWL.]

Answering your communication of the 16th instant, I will be present at the place you summon me concerning the survey of the lands in favor of Don Jose de Jesus Perez, which is to be done on the San Pedro river, and there I will designate the land which I am almost ready to register, complying eventually with the requirements for settlement with His Majesty, and in case such survey should extend over the lands that I will designate as having been occupied by me for the period of two years with my cattle, in such case I will make an adverse claim and bid for them as I may think proper.

God bless you many years.

Terrenate, May 17th, 1821.

MANUEL ANTUNES. [SCRAWL.]

At the place called San Pedro, on the eighteenth day of the present month and year, I, the same alcalde, the fiscal agent being present, also the officers, surveyors, appraisers, and compassman, before my assistants, personally appeared Don Manuel Antunez, and 267 said that they could survey from the house of San Pedro, going down the river, as by following that route no damage would result to him; but going up the river it would be hurtful to him, as he considered himself in possession there, and those lands being included in the sitios he occupies and which he expects from day to day to be adjudged to him, which being declared by the said Antunes and heard by the attorney-in-fact, Don Rafael Salas, this one excepted to the damage that would result to his principal by depriving him of the water coming from the cienega (marsh), which is the source of the water-course in this locality, in which case it would be useless to make the survey on behalf of his principal. On this subject Antunez and Salas entered into a controversy, until, in view of the trouble, expenses, and injury that would result to either of them, being conciliated, they made concessions and agreed to demand each one-half of the water of the cienega (marsh) for the use of the farms, obliging themselves by these presents to harmony, and so they bound themselves, Antunes for himself, and Salas in the name of his principal, in which terms I noted it down as part of this process, which was signed with me by the fiscal agent and other officers, before the assistance with whom I act in the ordinary form in default of clerk, there being none in the manner provided by law, all of which I attest.

Survey.

On the same day, month, and year, being on the spot, and the interested parties having agreed in the presence of the fiscal agent and other officers, I ordered the erection of a corner monument and square, from which, taking the direction from the southeast to the northwest, there were measured and counted fifty cords, the last ending, going from the house down the river, on the banks of the ford at the falls, where I ordered put a cross-monument, and 268 from there were measured and counted fifty cords, the last ending in the valley itself near a hill, distant three cords, where I ordered put a corner monument, and from it were measured and counted fifty cords, the last one ending in front of the Guachuca mountains, where I ordered put a cross-monument on a rocky hill, and from it were measured and counted fifty cords, the last ending on a bushy table-land, where I ordered put a corner monument, and from there were measured and counted fifty cords, the last ending at the gulch of Bachata, where I ordered put a cross-monument for a general squaring, confining, and dividing line enclosing this header and in the figure of a true square two hundred cords, which make two and a half leagues.

(NOTE BY TRANSLATOR.)—(There is no sense in this sentence in Spanish, but it is intended to mean "that this line was the side of the square.")

(There were measured 250 cords, but he calls it "200.")

(100 cords make one league, 200 cords makes only 2 leagues.)

And from there, pointing the compass and taking the direction from the northwest to the southeast, there were measured and counted fifty cords, the last ending in the middle of the valley of San Pedro river, where I ordered put a corner monument, and from there in the same direction were measured and counted fifty cords, the last ending, after passing the river, at the foot of a hill, where I ordered put a cross-monument, and from it were measured and counted fifty cords, the last ending on the dry creek of Los Barras, where I ordered put a corner monument, and from it were measured and counted fifty more cords, the last ending on a black mound, where I ordered put a cross-monument, and from there were measured and counted fifty cords, the last ending at the descent of the Picacho, where I ordered a corner monument, general square, this line being two hundred and fifty cords, which are two and a half leagues for the side, when, being already late, these operations were suspended, 269 to be continued the following day.

In testimony of which I noted it down as part of the proceedings and signed it with the fiscal agent, officers, interested parties, and those of my assistance.

(May 19, 1821.)—On the nineteenth day of the same month and year, with the prior attendance of the fiscal agent and other officers being on the spot at the corner and general square monument, the compass being pointed and the direction taken from the northeast to the southwest, there were measured and counted fifty cords, the last ending in a thick forest, where I ordered put a cross-monument, and from it were measured and counted fifty other cords, the last ending at the dry creek "Del Malpais," where I ordered put a corner monument, and from it were measured and counted fifty cords, the last ending at the ascending slope of a red table-land, where I ordered put at cross-monument, and from it were measured and counted fifty cords, which ended, the last, on the same table-land, where I ordered put a corner monument, general square, confining and dividing line, from which, taking the direction from the southwest to the northeast, there were calculated as measure, the country being impassable, two hundred and fifty cords, which are two and a half leagues, with which operation four sitios of land for raising of cattle were located, headed, surveyed, and centered without damage to any person, thanks to the agreement entered into.

(NOTE BY TRANSLATOR.)—(The surveys given here call it a square of $2\frac{1}{2}$ leagues on a side, and this is calculated by the alcalde as 4 square leagues or sitios, but such square of $2\frac{1}{2}$ leagues on a side give 6 $\frac{1}{4}$ sitios or square leagues.)

And so that it may have the effects proper in law I set it down as part of the proceedings, which I signed with fiscal agent, officers, interested party, and my assistants, with whom I act in the ordinary form of law.

San Pedro, May 21st, 1821.—The survey being finished, let the proceedings of appraisement by the appointed inspector-, D. Ramon Benitez and D. Teodoro Aros, with the prior acceptance of their charge; which having been done, let other proceedings be continued as in law corresponds, and by these presents I so decreed, ordered, and signed in the ordinary form.

I attest.

JULIAN MONTANO. [SCRAWLS.]

Forthwith and in virtue of the foregoing order, in the presence of the appointed fiscal agent, being present the appraising officers, D. Ramon Benitez and D. Teodoro Aros, I notified them personally that under the charge which they have accepted they should appraise and value the land comprised in this survey, which then having understood, said, each together and with common accord, that in consideration of the examination they had made with their eyes and inspectors of the lands while surveying them they they valued the three first sitios at sixty dollars each and the remaining one at ten dollars; that this appraisement, according to their faithful knowledge and understanding, is the just and legal value of them, as much on account of the situation of the lands as because it is the common gate of the going and coming of the barbarians enemies; as this fact is public and notorious, frequent and well known, is the true inwardness why these proceedings are so executed as it is possible to do under the circumstances, without there being any fraud, malice, collusion or deceit, conspiracy or fear, because they 271 only minded the oath they have given.

In testimony of which they sanctioned and signed with me, the fiscal agent, and those of my assistance with whom I act in the ordinary form.

Judge surveyor:

The fiscal agent appointed in this case says that inasmuch as he with his own eyes has examined the lands, run over the various parts, approaches, lines, and the more or less abundance of pastures, waters, forests, and properties of the land, he considers just and legal and without loss to the public treasury because its occupation and settlement of it is for the benefit of this and of the whole nation; that on that account he is of the opinion that information proving the ability of the claimant should be instituted, for which let three honest and truthful witnesses be summoned and let them say, with respect to possession—

1st. If they know the party, and with respect to the general — of the law.

2d. If they know of their own knowledge or by hearsay of the claimant, Don Jose Jesus Perez, has sufficient cattle to occupy these sitios.

3d. If by the occupation and settlement it may not result — great benefit to the public treasury and the nation.

And this having been done you will please send me the information to pass upon it as in law is required. So says for the 272 present the subscriber.

Fronteras, May 22, 1821.

LUCIO GOMEZ. [SCRAWL.]

Let the information requested by the appointed fiscal agent be taken, for which purpose let summons be issued for Don Jose Yloyes, Don Felix Quijada, and D. Francisco Ramirez, who, with the prior notification of the party, should be sworn; which done, let the proceeding go on; and by the present I so decreed and signed according to law. I attest.

Immediately I summoned and Don Jose Hoyos appeared in this court, who, being confronted with the fiscal agent, was sworn in due form of law, by God our Lord and the holy cross, under which he promised to tell the truth in all he knew and might be asked, and, being asked in the manner contained in the foregoing interrogatory, said:

First. That he knows Don Jose Jesus Perez and the generals of the law do not concern him.

To the second: That he knows of his own knowledge that he has sufficient cattle to occupy and settle these lands, as it is a public and notorious fact, and he answers to the third that, in his opinion, it will be beneficial to the public treasury and to the whole nation and from it will result without hinder the traffic, commerce, and industry and the other liberal and industrial arts.

That this is the truth in faith of the oath he has taken. He said he was married, of twenty-nine years of age, a citizen, and he signed it with me and my assistants according to law. I attest.

Forthwith I summoned Don Felix Quijada and he appeared in this court, whom I certify to personally know. I administered to him the oath, which he took before the fiscal agent, by God 273 our Lord and a holy cross, under which he promised to tell the truth in all he knew and might be asked, and, being asked as to the contents of the foregoing interrogatory, said:

First. That he does know Don Jose Jesus Perez and the generals of the law do not concern him.

To the second: That he knows by hearsay that the party claimant has sufficient cattle to occupy and settle the place mentioned, and answers to the third that it is public and notorious the opinion the advantage resulting to the public treasury and the nation by the occupation and settlement of deserted places.

That this is the truth under the oath taken. He said he was unmarried, of twenty-five years, a citizen, and he signed it with me and my assistants according to law. I attest.

To the first: That he knows D. Jose Jesus Perez, and that the generals of law do not concern him.

To the second: That he knows by hearsay that he has sufficient cattle to occupy and settle this grant.

To the third: That to all appearances it is not to be denied the settlement of it would be a benefit to the public treasury and the nation.

That this is the truth, in his judgment. He said he was married, forty years old, a citizen, and did not sign because he knew not how. I did so with my assistants, with whom I act in the ordinary form, according to law. I attest.

Surveying judge:

D. Lucio Gomez, fiscal agent appointed in this survey, says that, having seen the condition of the expediente, it and from it according to its progress, it appears beneficial to the public treasury and of all the nation, the occupation and settlement of the place called San Pedro. Therefore, for the benefit of the nation itself and in order to settle, adjudge, and sell to the highest bidder, you will please publish for thirty consecutive days the appraisement made, accepting the bids, offers, and higher prices resulting, and reserving their rights for the day of final disposition, which shall take place at the capital of Arispe, in the temporary assemblage of the royal treasury board, presided over by the intendant governor of the province, who will set the day of auction and perform all the other requirements according to the universal practice according to law required.

Hon. governor intendente :

I send to your hands the proceedings of the surveys, examination, appraisement, and public auction, executed for the deserted place situated on the San Pedro, in favor of D. Jose Jesus Perez, so that you may do what is just. May God preserve your excellency many years.

Fronteras, 26th of June of 1821.

MIGUEL TERAN.

282 Hon. Governor Intendente Don Antonio Cordero, Arispe,
9 of July of 1821, to the fiscal attorney, Cordero. Scrawl.

Hon. intendente :

The fiscal attorney of this intendency says that these proceedings of survey, appraisement, information of competency, and publication of four sitios of public land for raising-cattle comprised in the location called San Pedro, situated in the jurisdiction of the presidio of Fronteras, appraised in the sum of one hundred and ninety dollars, at the rate of sixty — for each of the first three and of ten dollars for the rest, and surveyed in favor of its claimant, Don Jose Jesus Perez, resident of this city, are in conformity in every particular with the royal and superior instruction- that regulate such matters. This is supposing and taking into consideration the declarations stated in the petition of the interested party, as that land is subject to the hostilities of the Apache enemies vexing that frontier, while the settlement of it is very desirable and advantageous to the settlement of the same.

The fiscal attorney of the public treasury requests, if it so pleases you, to issue order for the citation of parties and proceed to make the three corresponding auctions asking for bidders for the said surveyed land, to be knocked down in the last of them to the highest bidder who may appear, making it known to this one to pay to the treasury the value for which may be sold said four sitios, the half per cent. dues, and the 18 per cent. for exchange, 2 per cent. demanded as a general charge, and three dollars for the officials attached to the quartermaster general of the army; and after this expediente has been examined and approved by the provincial board, adding the proper certificates as to the above payments, to report the same to the superior treasury department for the disposition that may be proper. This is my opinion, which I had not expressed till now, as the expediente had been misplaced, but 283 nevertheless you may do as you think best.

Arispe, June 25 of 1822.

FRANCISCO PEREZ. [SCRAWL.]

Arispe, July 3 of 1822.—As suggested by the fiscal attorney to this intendency in the foregoing answer, let the three public auctions take place for the lands named San Pedro, described in these proceedings with the prior notification to the agent of the interested party, Don Jose M. Serrano. The hon. intendente of the province so decreed, ordered, and signed it, with the assistant witnesses, in default of the secretary.

Forthwith being present Don Jose Ma. Serrano, he was notified of the opinion of the fiscal attorney and the act of approval that precedes, and, being informed, he signed it with the hon. intendent and his assistant witnesses.

1st Auction.

In the city of Arispe, on the 3d day of the month of July of one thousand eight hundred and twenty-two, assembled at this capital the board of auction, the ho. intendent as president and the members composing it, in order to be put into effect the first auction of the lands described in this expediente. They caused with the beating of drums the assemblage at the office of this intendency of many people, and in their presence the crier, Loreto Salcido, was ordered to make publication, as in fact he did so, in a high and clear voice, saying:

There is going to be auction by this board of auction — four sitios of public land for raising cattle, comprised in the location called San Pedro, situated in the precinct of Fronteras, surveyed in favor of Don Jose Jesus Perez, of this city, and appraised in the sum of one hundred and ninety dollars, at the rate of sixty — 284 each one of the first and of ten dollars for the rest. Whoever wants to bid for the said public land let him come to do so before this board, where will be accepted whatever he makes, with the understanding that on the third and last auction, to take place the day after tomorrow, the property will be knocked down to the best and highest bidder.

And there being no bidder, it was set down in the proceeding, which were signed by the president and other members of the board of auction.

2d Auction.

In the same city, on the 4th day of the same month and year aforesaid, they proceeded to celebrate the second auction of this expediente in the same terms as the first and foregoing one, with the only difference of saying to the public that tomorrow the sale would be finished.

But there being no bidder, this was noted down, which was signed by the president and the members of the board of auction.

3d Auction.

At the city of Arispe, on the fifth day of the month of July of one thousand eight hundred and twenty-two, assembled as a board of auction at this capital the hon. intendente as president and the other members that compose it for the purpose of making the third and last auction of the lands referred to in these proceedings, which with the beating of drums and by the voice of the crier, many people were assembled at the office of this intendente, in the presence of whom it was ordered that Loreto Salcido should make a call, and in fact he did so, equal in every particular as at the previous auction, with the only difference that he announced to the public that today the sale would be made to the best and highest bidder.

285 That having been done, appeared D. Jose Ma. Serrano, as the agent of D. Jose Jesus Perez, offering again the appraised value of the land, and, being already the hour of prayer of twelve o'clock meridian, the crier said at last: One, two, three; going, going, going; good, good, may it do good to D'n Jose Jesus Perez.

In this manner was this proceeding finished, the four sitios of public land concerned in this expediente being solemnly sold in favor of the interested party for the sum of one hundred and ninety dollars, in witness whereof it was noted down, which was signed by the agent, Don Jose Ma. Serrano, with the president and the members of the board of auction.

NOTE.—On the same day, month, and year the expediente, with the aforesaid certificate, was delivered to the agent. Scrawl.

Hon. intendente:

Don Jose Ma. Serrano, as agent for D. Jesus Perez, of this city, appeared before you and says: I make prompt return of this expediente and of the certified testimony of the lands known as San Pedro, which were handed to me. On doing so I express myself satisfied with every act up to the public auction, as everything has been done according to the regulations and superior orders concerning the matters and thing comprised in said testimony, and I only have to request you to order the prompt conclusion and termination of this expediente, so that, the approbation of the superior board being obtained, the proper title of grant and confirmation of—

286 (Admit to composition meant that the King waived all shortcomings in the proceedings and accepted them on their face as true.—“Translator.”) the four sitios contained in the said land may be issued, being ready to appoint in Mexico an agent duly empowered to take care of the business in that court.

Wherefore I request and beg of you to order as I petition, because in this my principal will receive favor and gift. I swear not to proceed with malice, &c.

JOSE MA. SERRANO. [SCRAWL.]

Acted upon at sight, in the city of Arispe, on the sixth day of the month of July of one thousand eight hundred and twenty-two.

The hon. intendente ad interim of the province of Sonora and Sinaloa, minister and treasurer, D. Ygnacio de Bustamante y Valasco, having seen these proceedings of survey, appraisal, publications, auctions and sale of the lands of San Pedro, surveyed for raising of cattle and horses, in favor of Don Jose Jesus Perez, neighbor of this city, and located in the precinct of Fronteras, the answer made by his agent, Don Jose Maria Serrano, in the foregoing writing, with everything else appearing and proper to see, said that declaring as he does declare the said proceedings sufficiently in form and in accord with the regulations prescribed by the superior orders now in force on such matters, and admitting as he does immediately admit to settlement with the imperial treasury the said parcel of the royal lands by Don Jose Jesus Perez, he should order and he does order that his agent be notified to pay into this treasury the sum of two hundred and eight dollars and one grain, in this form: One hundred and ninety dollars as the value for which were sold to said interested party four sitios contained in the surveyed land; eleven dollars and one real eight grains, as the half per cent. import and the 18 per cent. for exchange; three dollars six reals and five grains, corresponding to the 2 per cent. imposed as a general tax, and three dollars as dues belonging to the old extinct office; and this sum having been paid, adding for it the proper certificate to this expediente, report should be made of the same to the 287 superior board of the treasury for its approbation or the determination that may be proper.

The hon. intendente by this act so provided, ordered and signed, with assistant witnesses in default of clerk.

Having examined the expediente for lands which you accompany with your note of the 25th of this ending month, comprising four sitios surveyed at the locality named down the San Pedro river in favor of Don Jose Jesus Perez, I return it to you so that you may issue the title to Don Rafael Elias, as it belongs to him by the exchange made of it to him by Don Ygnacio Perez, of this city.

God and liberty.

Arispe, October 31st of 1832.

YGN'O DE BUSTAMANTE. [SCRAWL.]

LUCIO RODRIGUEZ,

1st Officer. [SCRAWL.]

Treasurer general of the State.

The foregoing documents having been annexed to the original expediente, this was concluded with all the requisites and formalities established by the laws remaining in the custody of the archives of this treasury general as a perpetual witness thereof.

291 Wherefore in the exercise of the powers conceded on me by the laws by these presents and in the name of the sovereign State of Sonora I grant title to four sitios of land for raising cattle and horses comprised in the location aforesaid at San Pedro; in the jurisdiction of the presidio of Santa Cruz, in favor of the citizen Rafael Elias, to whom I grant, give, and adjudicate said lands by way of sale and with the quality, firmness, and stability established by the laws for himself, his sons, heirs, and successors, with all its ingresses and egresses, uses, customs, timber, forests, pastures, waters, springs, pools, and other things belonging to it, with the very precise and exact condition that they must settle and occupy said lands without leaving them unprotected, deserted, or unsettled for any time, with the understanding that if such would happen for the period of three years consecutively and there should be any person to petition for them, in such event, with the prior justification of the fact, they shall be declared public land and may be granted anew to the highest and best bidder, excepting, as it is just it should, those cases in which the abandonment took place by reason of the notorious invasion of the enemy, and only for the period of such happenings, reminding the citizen Rafael Elias, as he is reminded, that he must confine himself to the limits of the land, its belongings, boundaries, and monuments, specified in the foregoing proceedings of survey, observing and exactly obeying art. 30 of law No. 30 of May 20 of 1825, which provides for the maintenance on the boundaries — monuments of stone and mortar, under the penalty of twenty-five dollars which they will incur in default for the benefit of the common, in which case the same to be constructed at the expense of the interested party by the local justice.

292 And I order and command the judges, courts, and authorities of the locality, the present and the future of this capital, that on behalf of the well and prompt administration of justice and in compliance with the laws on the subject that they do not allow the said interested party nor his successors to be in any manner perturbed, disquieted, nor molested in the free use of the property, dominion, and possession of the aforesaid four sitios of land comprised in the named location of San Pedro; on the contrary, they should watch and constantly take care, with the greatest vigilance and activity, that they be protected and maintained always in the quiet and pacific possession to which they are entitled in law, so that in that manner they may freely sell, exchange, give, transfer, grant, and mortgage said lands at their will and free option as owner- and absolute proprietors.

In which terms I issued the present title in due form granted in favor of the citizen Rafael Elias, his sons, heirs, and successors, delivering it to them for their protection, with the prior annotation made of it in the proper book.

Given in this capital of Arispe on the 8th day of the month of May of one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, authorized and signed by me and sealed with the seal of this treasury general, before the undersigned witnesses of my assistance, in default of clerk, which there is not.

(DEFENDANT'S EX. A 2.)

I, Nicolas Maria Gaxiola, treasurer general of the State of the West, certify that at the session of the board of sales held in this office of the treasury on the 18th of the present month there were sold four sitios of land for breeding cattle and horses, surveyed by the constitutional alcalde of the presidio of Santa Cruz, Pablo Fraijo, at the place called San Juan de las Boquillas y Nogales, situate in the jurisdiction of said presidio, in favor of Citizen Captain Ignacio Elias Gonzalez and Nepomucino Felix, residents of Arizpe, whose agent, Tiburcio Gomez, paid into this treasury two hundred and forty dollars, at which said four sitios were appraised as appears from the entry of the 21st of the present month.

And inasmuch as the corresponding title cannot now be issued until the honorable congress determines the question propounded by the supreme government of the State in regard to the issue of these documents, I give the present, which in the meantime will secure their property, and authenticate and sign the same with attending witnesses in the absence of a notary, in the capital at Alamos, on the 25th of April, 1828.

(GOVERNMENT EXHIBIT "B.")

Extract from Emory's Report.

Mr. Emory stated his entire satisfaction with what had been done by Mr. Salazar and gave his assent thereto except with regard to the monument at San Pedro river. He desired to call in Mr. Weyss, who was with Mr. Von Hippel when the monument was erected on the San Pedro. His own recollection was that a very substantial monument had been erected at the San Pedro by the United States commission.

Mr. Weyss was brought before the commissioners and stated that a monument of dressed stone, with the usual inscription, was erected on the parallel $31^{\circ} 20'$ three thousand eight hundred and twenty-five feet west of the San Pedro river. The maps and views were exhibited showing the exact locality of this monument. Mr. Emory stated if the Indians had destroyed that monument it was all very well; but if it was still standing there might be some discrepancy, amounting, possibly, to $1''$ of arc, or one hundred feet between the latitude of the monument erected by Mr. Salazar and that erected under his orders. If so, it might hereafter, when the country was settled, produce confusion.

Mr. Salazar stated that in case both existed he would take the monument erected by Mr. Von Hippel as the true boundary. Assented to by Major Emory.

316 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, 88 :

In the Court of Private Land Claims.

JUAN PEDRO CAMOU, Claiming the "San Rafael del Valle Grant," Plaintiff,	} No. 3.
vs.
THE UNITED STATES, Defendant.

Opinion of the Court, Delivered by Associate Justice Fuller.

It appears by the titles papers that on the 12th day of March, 1827, Rafael Elias petitioned the treasurer general of the State of Sonora, he being in need of land for live stock, to grant to him the lands he denounced, to wit, the public lands adjoining the ranch of San Pedro, in the jurisdiction of the city of Santa Cruz.

On July 1st, 1827, the treasurer general of said State, Nicholas Maria Gajiola, instructed the justice of the peace of the city of Santa Cruz to proceed to the survey and appraisalment and publication for thirty consecutive days of all the lands sought to be denounced and to cite the coterminous proprietors.

On the 20th day of August, 1827, the survey was completed and signed. He then proceeded to the appraisement of the land, which was appraised at the price of $240.00, at the rate of $60.00 per each sitio, because that had running water.

These were published from August 30th, 1827, to September 28th of the same year, and transmitted to the general treasurer of Sonora, and they were, on the 7th day of September, 1828, forwarded to the attorney general for the treasury of Sonora for his opinion, which was given on the 9th day of February, stating, substantially, that although irregularities existed, yet, if there was no prejudice to third parties, the informalities might be overlooked; the same having been agreed to on the 16th of April, 1828.

Three offers of sale were made, on the 16th, 17th, and 18th days of April, 1828, called for bidders, and no one appeared to bid 317 against Elias, the same was struck off and sold to him for the price and sum of $240.00, the appraisalment.

Then follows the endorsement of the receipt of the money. This seems to have been all that was done at that time.

It appears from the copy introduced in evidence that on the 27th day of December, 1832, over three and a half years after the payment of the money, an application seems to have been made to Jose Maria Mendoza, treasurer general of Sonora, and he seems to have issued the title. Although the United States of Mexico questioned the authority of Mendoza to complete a title of this kind, and although the treasurer general, Gajiola, who seems to have been the party granting the original petition and receiving the money, yet he did not issue the title. The reason for this is not explained.

This grant was not made by the order or authority of the supreme government, nor was the consent of the supreme government ever given thereto.

By act of Congress approved March 3rd, 1891, this court is directed to settle and determine the validity of titles according to the law of nations, the treaties between the United States and Mexico, and the laws and ordinances of the government of Mexico.

The question for our determination in this case is, Did the State of Sonora have the power, under the laws of the government of Mexico, to make a grant of the land in controversy?

These lands lie altogether in the Territory of Arizona (within the boundaries of the former Mexican State of Sonora) and were purchased by the United States from Mexico by the treaty known as the Gadsden treaty or purchase, concluded December 30th, 1853, and ratified June 30th, 1854.

Shortly after Mexico, by successive revolutions, became independent of Spain some of the State-formed under the constitution first adopted claimed that the by the provision of the act of Congress of August 4th, 1824, the States had the right to dispose of the vacant and unappropriated lands lying and being within their own borders

(with certain exceptions); notably were such claims made by 318 the States of Coahuila and Texas and of Sonora and Sinaloa; and it is also true that the general government did not admit such claims, but, on the contrary, claimed and exercised authority to alone dispose of said land as public domain.

This controversy between some of the States and the general government went on for many years, and the acts of Congress on this subject are numerous and sometimes apparently conflicting, but, according to the opinion of the court of the law which governs this case, it is needless to pursue that subject further; it is sufficient to say, as we have, that such controversy existed and was vigorously maintained by both parties.

Under the constitution of 1836 the States were abolished and Sonora became a department, subject in all respects to the jurisdiction of the national government, both of its officer- and its rights. It no longer had any legal entity as a sovereign State.

On the 28th of September, 1841, this constitution was abrogated by revolution, headed by Santa Ana, and in its stead a centralized and dictatorial form of government was established under the plan of Tacubaya, wherein the chief executive possessed the supreme power of the government.

In 1846 this government was superseded and the constitution of 1824 practically re-established. This continued under 1847, when another revolution was precipitated and successfully carried out under the plan of Jalisco, and under which plan Santa Ana, at the time of the Gadsden treaty, was the supreme executive, exercising supreme authority by virtue of said plan, and by virtue of the fact that the constitution of 1824, re-established in 1846, had been abrogated and another constitution was in process of formation under Santa Ana's government. Under this plan he had supreme power.

Pending the negotiations by Mr. Gadsden a law or decree was promulgated by Santa Ana, as the lawful and supreme head of the 319 government, declaring the status of the public lands of the country; that was the decree of November 25th, 1853.

Hall's Mexican Law, page 166.

All laws promulgated by Santa Ana during this regime were repealed by the succeeding government in 1854, but immediately after the repeal, under the direction of Alvarez, his successor, this law or November 25th, 1853, was specially declared to be in force, and that it should remain in force (decree of President Alvarez, December 3rd, 1855); so that the government for which we purchased decided the question and the succeeding government gave the same decision, and this last decree was left in full force by the decree of President Comonfort of October 16th, 1856.

Hall's Mexican Law, page 169.

So that although Santa Ana may have been dictator, yet the status of the public lands had been declared by the supreme power of the government pending the treaty, and the government that succeeded him also declared the status of the public lands to be the same. The treaty was concluded on December 30th, 1853, and ratified June 30th, 1854. Therefore, before the treaty was signed and pending the negotiations, the sovereign and treaty-making power declared by law the title to all the vacant lands to belong to the nation, and declared that the States never had any authority or right to sell or otherwise dispose of the same. This declaration forms a part of the contract of the sale to another sovereignty.

The treaty-making power, just prior to the purchase, having construed and passed upon the right of the States to the public lands, and having declared that their claims theretofore asserted were without merit and void, we are bound to accept the construction of their own laws and the laws existing thereunder by the government from which we obtained the property.

No principle is better established than where one State or government is called upon to construe the laws of another State or country they will accept the construction of the latter.

320 Therefore the decree of Santa Ana of November 25th, 1853, and the decree declaring it to be the law again in 1854 is conclusive upon the rights of parties claiming under State grants, and especially is this true when the courts had no jurisdiction over such matters, but the construction of the same was left to the political branch of the government.

One sovereignty making a treaty will never go back of the declarations of the other sovereignty and the party to the treaty to determine the relative status of the subdivisions thereof to the national government, nor whether by such treaty and declaration it has damaged any of its citizens. That is a matter to be settled among themselves.

Wheaton's International Law, sections 31 and 32.

"The sovereign or ruler of the State is considered in international law as representing in his persons its sovereign dignity. It matters not whether he is a monarch or president—whether he is de facto or de jure head of the nation (if he has been duly recognized as such)—custom has invested his person with certain international rights as representative of his State.”

Halleck's International Law, page 62.

“A composite-State or supreme federal government results from a grant of supreme federal powers to the government of the union, with the consequent limitations imposed upon the separate governments of the several compact States. Each separate State may retain its own legislature and its distinct laws and administration and its separate sovereignty may still subsist internally in respect to its co-ordinate States and in respect to the supreme federal government in questions of power not expressly granted to it, but in all external relations its sovereignty is completely merged and destroyed.”

Halleck's International Law, page 47.

Attorney General Black, in an opinion delivered to the President on November 9th, 1859, said, in speaking of the rights of claimants to lands, as follows:

“The Mexican claimant was bound by the affirmations 321 made by his government, and should look it and not the United States for redress for the injury, if any, which was inflicted.”

And indeed we find that in October, 1856, the Mexican government, in recognition of this principle of international law, made provisions for persons who had been damaged by the decree of President Santa Ana by declaring that “Antonio Lopez de Santa Ana had his ministers who took part in this approval and promulgations are responsible with their property, and the governors of the departments are likewise responsible with this property, for the damages they have caused in the execution of the provisions over public lands, having exceeded their limits laid down un- the several laws.”

Compiled Laws, vol. VIII, page 269, No. 4811.

So we conclude, the Mexican government having declared through the treaty-making power, pending the negotiations of this treaty in form of a law, that the State of Sonora never owned the public lands and never had any right to dispose of them. The United States received it with this declaration and is relieved of the responsibility of inquiring into the relative status of the State of Sonora and the national government, or as to whether the national government has violated any of its obligations to one of its subdivisions created by itself.

The Bobocomri grant is of the same date and made by the same officials as the San Rafael del Valle grant and is disposed of in the same way.

There is this difference, however, in the two cases: It was shown on the trial of this latter case that it was void for uncertainty in the description of the property; that the boundaries were such that no grant could be located.

Translations of the decrees of President Santa Ana, the decree of President Alvarez, and the decree of President Comonfort will be attached to this opinion as part thereof.

The grant in this case is void and the claim under it is rejected. A decree may be drawn accordingly.

THOMAS C. FULLER,
Associate Justice, for the Court.

Sept. 5, 1894.

322 Annuls sales of lands made by the States, etc.; Antonio Lopez de Santa Ana, etc.

Art. 1. It is declared the public lands (terrenos) as the exclusive property of the nation never could have been alienated, under any title, by virtue of decrees, orders, and enactments of the legislatures, governments, or local authorities of the States and Territories of the Republic.

2. Consequently, it is also declared that the sales, cessions, or any other class of alienations of said public lands (terrenos) that have been made without the express order and approval of the general powers, in the manner prescribed by the laws, are null and of no value or effect.

3. The officials, authorities, and employees upon whom devolve the execution of this decree shall proceed as soon as they receive it to recover and take possession, in the name of the nation, of the lands comprehended in the provisions of article 1, and that may be in the possession of corporations or private individuals, whatever may be their prerogatives or position.

4. The judicial, civil, or administrative authorities shall admit no claims of any kind nor petitions whose purpose is to obtain indemnifications from the public treasury for the damages the unlawful holders or owners may allege under the provisions of the preceding article; and they shall preserve their right only against the persons from whom they have the lands (terrenos) they are now compelled to return.

(Decree of November 25th, 1853. C. L., vol. —, p. 776, No. 4118.)

323 Annuls sales of lands made by the States, departments, etc.; Antonio Lopez de Santa Ana, etc.

Art 1. The titles of all the alienations of public lands (terrenos) made in the territory of the Republic from September, 1821, till date, whether by the general authorities or by those of the extinguished States and departments, shall be submitted to the revisions of the supreme government, without which they shall have no value and shall constitute no right of property.

* * * * *

5. The alienations of public lands (terrenos), of whatever nature they may be, that have been made by the authorities and officials of the departments without the knowledge or approval of the general government during the epoch when the central system was in force in the Republic are void.

6. Those made by said authorities in the epoch of the extinguished federation are likewise void, provided they were not made for the purpose of extending and promoting colonization, which was the purpose proposed by the law of August 18th, 1824.

7. Grants or sales of lands (terrenos) made to private individuals, companies, or corporations under the express condition of colonizing them, and the holders of which have not complied therewith in the terms stipulated, are declared to be of no value.

8. The alienations made by the States or departments and declared void by the three preceding articles may, nevertheless, subsist if the holders of the lands (terrenos) obtain the consent of the supreme government and pay into the public treasury what it considers proper to exact as the value of the lands (terrenos), provided they apply for their ratification within the term designated in article 2, in which case alone there shall be no further proceedings to annoy or jeopardize them.

* * * * *

14. The law of November 25th, of last year, remains in force in so far as it is not in conflict with the present decree.

(Decree of July 7th, 1854. C. L., vol. —, p. 228, No. 4276)

324 Repeals Santa Ana decrees; Juan Alvarez, president ad interim, etc.

"Art. 1. The decrees of November 25th, 1853, and July 7th, 1854, which submitted to the revision and approval of the supreme government the grants or alienations of public lands (terrenos) made by the local governments of the States or departments and Territories of the Republic from September, 1821, to that date are repealed in all their parts.

2. Consequently all the titles issued during that period by the superior authorities of the States and Territories under the federal system by virtue of their lawful faculties or by those of the departments or Territories under the central system, with express authorization or consent of the supreme government for the acquisition of said lands (terrenos), all in conformity with the existing laws for the grant or alienation respectively, shall for all time be good and valid as well as those of any other property lawfully acquired, and in no case can they be subjected to new revision or ratification on the part of the government.

3. The alienation of public lands (terrenos) that have been made by the authorities of the States or departments and Territories without the requisites referred to in the preceding article, and in contravention of the provisions of article 4 of the law enacted by the general congress on the 18th of August, 1824, are void and of no value, and the holders of that class of lands (terrenos) are subject to the penalties established by the existing laws of the Republic for those who acquire property in an unlawful and fraudulent manner unless they promptly obtain the approval of the supreme government, to which they should apply therefor through the department of public works.

4. All titles of acquisition of public lands (terrenos) which under the law of July 7th, 1854, have been presented to the department of public works for their ratification under the provisions of articles 5 to 8 of said law shall be returned to their respective owners without requiring payment of any kind of them.

325 With regard to those in the case stated in article 3 proceedings shall be taken in the manner provided for in the same.

5. The grants or sales of public lands (terrenos) made by competent authority and under the laws in force in their case with the express obligation on the part of the new holders to colonize them in a given time without their having complied therewith in the manner stipulated, are for that reason alone void and of no value, and said lands (terrenos) shall again become the property of the nation."

Decree of December 3rd, 1855, C. L., vol. VII, p. 627, No. 4588.

Nullifies certain decrees of Santa Ana; Ignacio Comonfort, substitute president, etc.

"Art. 1. The decrees of November 25th, 1853, and July 7th, 1854, are void.

2. Antonio Lopez de Santa Ana and the ministers who took part in their approval and promulgation are responsible with their property for the damages they have caused.

3. The governors of the departments are likewise responsible with their property for the damages they have caused in the execution of the provisions of public lands (terrenos), having exceeded the limits laid down in the several laws."

 THE UNITED STATES. }

Dissenting Opinion.

Not being able to agree with the majority of the court in its conclusion in this case, and the questions involved being of importance as well as of interest, I have felt justified in recording my dissent from the conclusion of the majority of the court in the case.

The first question presented is, Did the State of Sonora at the time of the making the grant in this case have authority to make it as it was made?

On August 4th, 1824, the Federal Congress of Mexico passed a law generally known as the law for the classification of the revenues. This law somewhat minutely specified the revenues which thereafter should belong to the natives. These specifications are contained in the first nine articles. The 9th article is the only one providing for the revenue arising from land. This section in the original reads: "9. Has bienes nacionales, en los que se comprehenden los de la inquisicion y temporalidades y cualesquiera otros fincas rusticus y urbanus que pertenecen o' que pertenecieren en lo de adelante hacienda publica." This section is ordinarily translated: "9. National property, in which is included those from the inquisition and temporalities of the clergy or any other rural or urban property which belongs or shall hereafter belong to the public exchequer."

By an examination of the original Spanish it will be observed that the Spanish word which has been translated "property" in the expression "national property" is bienes, and that the Spanish word which has been translated "property" in the expression "any other rural or urban property" is fincas.

It will be conceded by any person familiar with the Spanish that neither of these words is ordinarily used to express the idea of vacant public lands or public domain. Bienes is a word ordinarily used to convey the idea of property in its general sense, which has been reduced to actual use, and may consist either of chattels or realty, but is never used to mean distinctively vacant public land, nor in that sense; so that if we meet with this word in a law or any kind of document or speech we would not be authorized to regard it as referring to the public domain unless from the context it affirmatively appears to have been used in that sense.

The word fincas signifies property; not property in a general sense, but a particular class of property, usually real property, which has at some time been reduced to private ownership and capable of producing a revenue by its use or leasing. It seems to me reasonable to say that both these words were used in the section under consideration in the same sense and in the sense in which they were used in ordinary speech, which would exclude the idea of public domain. Article II provided that the revenues not comprehended in the preceding articles should belong to the States.

In my opinion, therefore, the revenues to be derived from the disposal of the public domain within the States were intended to belong to the States respectively. This contention is strengthened by the following considerations:

The term "national property" in the article referred to is followed by a specification of the classes of property intended to be included.

The universal rule of construction is that where general words in a statute are either preceded or followed by particular words the general words will be construed to refer to the particular class or classes named in the particular words and their meaning limited accordingly. Construing article 9 by this rule, it follows that the only revenues from real property reserved to the federation therein was that from the inquisition and temporalities, which, as we well know, were improved properties, and any other town or country properly capable of producing a revenue by being used or leased.

The proceeding of the collection and disbursement of revenue is essentially an executive function, but under a republican constitutional form of government like that of Mexico the executive department could have no authority to collect revenue or dispose of the public domain for that purpose except such as was conferred by a law of the national congress. We may therefore naturally suppose that if it had been the purpose of the congress to reserve to the nation the revenues from the disposal of the public domain there would have been provision made to carry such purpose into practical operation by authorizing the executive department to dispose of it or by making it subject to the operations of the national treasury. Now, the only provision found in the law of August 4th, 1824, authorizing the disposal of real property belonging to the nation is article 10, which reads as translated: "The buildings, offices, and the lands attached thereto which belong or have belonged to the general revenues and those which have been mentioned by two or more of what were formerly provinces are at the disposal of the government of the federation." It will be observed that the class of real property described in this article and which the government was authorized to dispose of was of the exact same class which I have endeavored to show was reserved to the revenues of the federation in article 9. The significance of this provision is seen when considered in connection with the provisions of the law of August 18th, 1824, commonly known as the colonization law. It has never been questioned that the subject-matter of legislation of the latter law was the vacant public lands.

Article 3 provided that the congress of the States should provide for the colonization of the land within their respective limits, subject only to certain restrictions specified in the law itself.

Article 15 provided that the government should proceed to the colonization of the territories, subject to the same restrictions. The two sections taken together show conclusively that the States never empowered, by a system of colonization to be formulated by themselves, subject to the restrictions specified, to dispose of all the public domain within their respective limits, and that the executive department of the government was authorized by a system of colonization to be formulated by it, subject to the same restrictions, to dispose of the public domain within the limits of the territories and within the territories only.

On September 21st, 1824, a law was enacted providing for the collections and disbursement of the revenues of the federation. It authorized the executive to appoint in each State a commissary general of the different branches of the federal exchequer. Article 4 provided that this commissary should collect and disburse the proceeds from the revenues and the contingents of the States. Article 5 specified the revenues which he was authorized to collect, and, among the others, specified the revenues from the same class of lands which I have endeavored to show were reserved to the federation by the law of August 4th, 1824, and did not include any specification applicable to the public domain. It authorized this commissary to collect the "contingents of the States." These contingents were certain sums of money which were to be paid by the States to the federation as provided for in the law of August 4th, 1824. They were provided for as part of the same law with and are to be considered in the light of the provision granting to the States the revenue from the public domain, and it seems reasonable to conclude that the one was the consideration for the other. When we consider these three laws together and the fact that they were enacted by the same congress and within a few days of each other they appear to be parts of a comprehensive and harmonious system for the colonization and disposal of the public lands and of providing a revenue as an incident thereto, which system was that the vacant lands within the States should be disposed of and the revenue therefrom collected under the direction of the States respectively, in consideration of which the States were to pay to the federation the sums provided for in lieu of the revenue which the federation might obtain by the disposal of the vacant lands under its own direction for its own benefit; but whether my supposition as to the consideration for these contingents is correct or not, it seems to me incontrovertible that by this legislation the States were fully empowered to convey a good title to any or all the vacant public land within their limits.

In this connection it should be said that it is immaterial whether the legal title to these lands passed from the federation to the State. The federation could retain the fee and at the same time authorize the State to convey a good title, and this is my opinion as to what was in fact done.

Conceding to the States the right to the revenue or proceeds of the sales of the public lands by implication canceled all the power necessary or appropriate to make the right effectual, and as revenue could only be obtained by sales of the land, the power to make such sales passed with and as an incident of the right to obtain the revenue.

On April 6th, 1830, the congress of the federation enacted a law, in article 3 of which it was provided: "The government shall have power to appoint one or more commissioners to visit the colonies of the frontier States, to contract with their legislatures for the purchase in the name of the federation of the lands they may consider suitable and sufficient for the establishment of colonies of Mexicans and of other nations."

And by article 4 it was provided: "The executive shall have the power to take the lands he may consider suitable for fortifications and arsenals and for new colonies, and shall give the States credit for their value on the account they owe the federation."

These provisions have reference to vacant public lands, and show that the federation recognized the fact that the States had a pecuniary interest in the lands of the public domain, and that these lands could not be taken from the States without their consent and the allowance of their value therefor.

In all these Mexican statutes, it should be understood, the word "government" is used to denote the executive department, and the words government and executive are interchangeable.

On January 26th, 1831, a law was enacted by the congress of the federation establishing a general department of the revenue, under whose control should be all branches of the exchequer administered for the federation, except the mail and the mint.

Article 13 provided: "The proceeds from national property (bienes nacionales) shall be collected by commissaries under the immediate direction of the general department."

On July 7th, 1831, there were issued regulations for carrying into effect the provisions of the foregoing law of January 26th, 1831. It divided the operations of the treasury into three branches and specified the particular revenues to be collected by each. In the first branch was placed "national property (bienes), in which is included, under article 9 of the law of August 4th, 1824, that of the inquisition and temporalities and all other country or town property (fincas) belonging to the federation." There is no other provision or regulation for revenue from any other class of real estate, thus showing that proceeds derived from the vacant public domain did not pertain to the revenue of the federation.

On May 20th, 1825, the State of Sonora enacted a law for the colonization and disposition of the vacant public lands within its limits. It provided for raising revenue by means of the disposal by sale of the public lands, and further provided that no one could obtain any part of these public lands who did not show that he required the land for his actual use and occupancy. The constitution of the federation required that copies of all laws enacted by the States should be certified to the congress of the federation, which was given power to repeal or nullify any objectionable law so enacted by a State.

We are compelled to indulge the presumption that this requirement of the federal constitution was complied with, and that the federation had full notice of this law of Sonora. This law was never at any time repealed or nullified by the congress of the federation. These circumstances afford the most convincing proof of a practical construction given by the federation to its own laws of August 4th and August 18th, 1824, and that such construction was to the effect that the States were empowered to convey title to the public lands. It was during the time when the law of August 4th, 1824, and the law of August 18th, 1824, of the federation, and the law of May 20th, 1825, of the State of Sonora, were in force that the grant of land in question in this case was made.

In the light of the legislation I have recited I can come to no other conclusion than that the grant when made was good and valid. There has been a contention that the law of May 20th, 1825, of Sonora, was invalid for the reason that it was not a law for the colonization, but a law for the sale of the public lands.

The next question is as to whether the right of property which the original grantee obtained in the land was taken from him by the decree of Santa Anna issued November, 1853.

This decree was issued by Santa Anna as president of the Republic of Mexico. It reads:

"Article I. It is declared that the public lands, as the exclusive property of the nation, never could have been alienated under any title by virtue of decrees and enactments of the legislatures, governments, or local authorities of the States and Territories of the Republic.

"2. Consequently it is declared that the sales, cessions, or any other class of alienations of said public lands that have been made without the express order and approval of the general powers, in the manner prescribed by the laws, are null and of no value or effect."

This decree was not issued under the authority of any law of the congress of the Republic or of the constitution, but depends for its validity, in so far as it attempts to deprive the grantees of the rights of property vested in them by the sales in question, upon whatever power Santa Anna possessed as president of the Republic.

Santa Anna was president of the Republic; the powers and functions he exercised as such president were delegated powers. The president was the executive of the nation, not its law-maker nor its judiciary.

In Mexico the lives and property rights of the citizens were as inviolate as they are in the United States. There never was delegated to the executive the power to deprive any citizen of his property. We cannot assume that Santa Anna had such power from the bare fact that he undertook to exercise it, but before we act on such an assumption it should be made to plainly and clearly appear.

As is well known, the structure of the Mexican nation was based upon the declarations of principles contained in the plan of Iguala.

By article 12 of that instrument it was declared: "All the inhabitants without other distinction than their merits and virtues are citizens with the right to choose their own locations."

Article 13. "Their persons and property shall be respected and protected."

On October 4, 1824, a permanent constitution of the nation was adopted in which it was declared: "Article 147. Confiscation of property is forever prohibited. Article 148. Every judgment by special commission and every retractive law is forever prohibited."

This constitution was re-adopted August 22, 1846.

These show the fundamental principles as to rights of property on which civil government in Mexico was deemed to be based.

Santa Anna was elected chief executive of the Republic in pursuance of what are known as the plan of Guadalajara and plan of Jalisco, finally adopted February 6, 1853.

The first declaration contained in the plan of Guadalajara is: "The Mexican nation is one alone and undivisible, constituted under the popular representative system."

This declaration seems to me to exclude the idea that the chief executive could have other than delegated powers.

Autocratic power is inconsistent with and repugnant to the idea of a popular representative system.

Article 2 of the plan of Jalisco provided "that the executive power which shall be elected in conformity with this agreement until the new political constitution yet to be formed shall be promulgated shall have the necessary faculties for the re-establishment of social order, to organize the public administration, to form the national treasury, and to expedite the functions of the judicial department, introducing into the same necessary reforms without interfering with its independence."

These are the powers delegated. They were all executive in character.

He was not given legislative power, and the very declaration recognizes the existence of a separate judiciary which was to be wholly independent. He was not delegated the power to determine what laws of the nation were or were not constitutional or what laws of the States should or should not be repealed.

There is not a word or a line indicating that his powers were not limited by the fundamental principles of the rights of property on which the nation was constructed.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that the decree of November 25, 1853, could not and did not have the effect to deprive the grantees of the right of property in the land which was vested by the grant, and that this right of property in the land existed as completely at the time of the taking effect of the treaty of cession as it did prior to the issuance of Santa Anna's decree.

It is supposed that Santa Anna was authorized to determine whether as a matter of law the grants of land made by the States were valid as against the general government, but no law of the nation can be found conferring upon him any such function. Under the Mexican system the national congress was the judge of the constitutionality of the laws it enacted. But Santa Anna was only chief executive and not the congress, and no law is to be found conferring upon him the functions of the congress in this respect, and, as I have before remarked, his assuming to exercise the power was not of itself sufficient to create the power nor sufficient evidence of the existence of the power.

Therefore his declaration that the law of Sonora under which the grant was made was null was not binding upon the grantees, nor did it have the effect of a judicial determination against them. There can be no such thing as a judicial determination without a hearing, even in much-maligned Mexico.

The next and most serious question in the case arises upon the contention, first, that by the treaty of cession the United States has recognized the authority of Santa Anna to determine the status of all property within the ceded territory at the time of the treaty, and that his determination, being so recognized, is binding.

And, second, that the declaration of Santa Anna that all grants of land made by the State of Sonora were null operated as an inducement to the treaty and therefore became binding in favor of the United States.

A treaty like the one in question has two distinct phases. In the first place, it operates as a contract between the parties to it, and as such is to be construed like contracts between individuals. In the second place, it operates as a law or statute affecting the citizen and binding his person and property in the same manner as any other law.

A treaty affects the property rights of the citizen as a law and because it is a law, and as the supreme law of the land.

As a contract between the two nations, those matters which operated as an inducement to its execution may perhaps be properly considered as entering into it and binding upon the parties as contractors, although not written into its terms.

But as a law affecting his rights of property, the citizen is only affected by what is expressed in the treaty. A citizen's right of property may be taken from him by a treaty as the supreme law of the land, but it is the terms of the treaty and the terms of the treaty alone which has this effect, and not some extrinsic ulterior fact operating upon one of the contracting parties as an inducement to entering into it.

The point I wish to make is that for the treaty to be held to have recognized Santa Anna as having authority to determine and declare the status of the property ceded, as to being public or private, it must have been expressed in the treaty itself. In order that the declaration of Santa Anna that all grants of land made by the State of Sonora were void be held to be confirmed by virtue of the treaty, a provision to that effect must have been made a part of the treaty itself. How can the citizen know what is made part of a law except what he can see has been actually incorporated into it?

I do not know that this precise question has been directly decided by the Supreme Court, but there are a few cases illustrating to an extent the proposition I am discussing.

It is generally held, and by the Supreme Court of the United States, that a treaty takes effect from its execution, and that ratification relates back to the date of signing.

The case of Haver vs. Yaker, 9 Wall., 32, however, holds that this is true only in so far as the treaty operates as a contract, and that in so far as it operates as a law affecting the personal rights of the citizen it takes effect only from the date of ratification. The idea expressed is that a citizen cannot be affected in his personal rights by a treaty any further than he can know what it is.

In the case of U. S. vs. Yorba, 1 Wall., 412, a question arose on the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo. In the negotiation of that treaty a declaration was made on behalf of Mexico that no grants of land had been made in the territories after the 13th day of May, 1846. The United States resisted a confirmation of a claim on a grant made after that date. The court says that, even had the treaty been concluded in reliance upon the truth of the declaration, that fact could not affect the rights of parties who, subsequent to the date specified, obtained grants of land from the governors of California while their authority and jurisdiction continued, and that the rights of the citizens to their property depends upon the authority of the officer to make the grant at the time it was made and not upon the subsequent declaration of a commissioner to negotiate the treaty on the subject.

It is easy to see the reason of the principle announced by the court. The declaration was not made part of the treaty and did not become a part of the law of the treaty, and therefore not binding as a law upon the citizen as to his private property.

The case of Doe vs. Braden, 16 Howard, 635, is an interesting one as illustrating the point in question.

After the negotiation of the treaty between the United States and the King of Spain for the cession of Florida had been begun the King made certain grants to large tracts of land within the limits of the proposed cession.

After the treaty had been signed, but before the ratification, the fact came to the knowledge of the United States. Before the United States would ratify the treaty Mr. Adams, Secretary of State, insisted that a written declaration to the effect that the grants were thereby annulled should be made by the King and attached to and made part of the treaty, which was finally done.

The court held that by reason of the declaration of the King having been attached to and made part of the treaty it became a law binding upon the grantees of the land and as such law had the effect to annul the grants. A careful study of that case, it seems to me, shows that it is a recognized principle that the declarations of one of the contracting parties outside the treaty, although made and operating as an inducement to the treaty, cannot affect the private rights of individuals unless they are incorporated with and made part of the treaty itself.

It was not the declaration of the King of Spain which had the effect to annul the Alagon grant, but it was the treaty entered into by the United States Government, and which became the supreme law of the land, that annulled the grant.

The negotiation of the treaty of cession by the United States with Santa Anna was a recognition of his authority to make it and of his authority to cede by means of the treaty all that the Republic of Mexico owned within the ceded territory; but it was not an application of what the nation did own within those limits. It was a recognition of his authority to make all the stipulations and provisions which were contained in the treaty, and if the treaty had contained a clause declaring all grants of land made by Sonora to be void, it would have been a recognition of his authority to insert such a clause, and the treaty with such a clause inserted would have invalidated all such grants; but this would not have been a recognition of the power of Santa Anna to do what he attempted by his decree of November 25, 1853. The effect of the treaty would have in no way depended upon that decree. The grants would have been null because the treaty so declared, and not because Santa Anna had so declared as an inducement to the treaty. In other words, the recognition of Santa Anna as the treaty-making authority was not a recognition of the power of Santa Anna to do what he attempted by his decree of November 25th, 1853. The effect of the treaty would in no way have depended upon that decree. The grants would have been null because the treaty so declared, and not because Santa Anna had so declared as an inducement to the treaty. In other words, the recognition of Santa Anna as the treaty-making authority was not a recognition of the existence of any other power claimed or exercised by him or of his power to affect the private rights of individuals in any other way than by means of provisions inserted in the treaty itself. The treaty-making authority of the United States is the President and the Senate. Suppose the President should issue a decree to the effect that all patents issued on desert-land entries in Arizona were without lawful authority and void, and that his decree should be ratified by a resolution of the United States Senate, we would all say the proceeding was wholly void and did not deprive the patentees of their property in the land. The fact that the President and the Senate constituted the treaty-making power does not show that they have any other power or can affect private rights in any other way than by means of the express terms of a treaty; but suppose that a month or any other period after making such decree by the President a treaty should be made by the President and ratified by the Senate ceding the State of Arizona to Mexico, in which no mention should be made of the validity or invalidity of desert-land entries, would we say that fact altered the legal effect of the prior decree of the President declaring them void? Certainly not, and yet if the treaty they made contained a clause nullifying all such entries or declaring them to be void we would all say the entries were rendered null, not by reason of the prior decree of the President but by reason of the clause contained in the treaty. It is certainly true that the treaty-making power of a country has the power to declare the status of all the property it cedes by treaty to another country, but it is equally true that the only way in which such declarations of status can be made to effect private rights is by means of the treaty itself. The declaration must be the declaration of the treaty in order to affect private rights. In the case of the Gadsden treaty there was a specification of the class of grants of land within the ceded territory which would not be recognized. If it had been the intention of the United States to confirm by the treaty Santa Anna's decree of confiscation and to nullify all grants of land made by Sonora, that sense of fairness recognized by those of the slightest moral instinct would have required it to say so in manly terms. The treaty contains no hint that State grants are to be regarded as invalid; on the contrary, by its silence on this subject such grants are permitted to stand upon their own merits as to validity. Santa Anna's decree is left to be tested by his authority to make it. If valid by its own force, then grantees under State grants had no property in the lands granted to be protected by the treaty. If void, then the grantees had a property in the lands granted notwithstanding the decree which is protected by the treaty.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that the grant in this case was valid when made; that it was not affected by Santa Anna's decree, and that the right of property originally vested under it is protected by the treaty, and I am authorized to say that Associate Justice Stone concurs with me in this opinion.

JUAN PEDRO CAMOU,
Appellant,

vs.

THE UNITED STATES.

San Rafael del Valle Grant.

MOTION TO ADVANCE.

The appellant by his attorney of record moves the Court to advance this cause for hearing, and presents the following as a brief statement of the matter involved, with the reasons for the application :

This is an appeal from the Court of Private Land Claims on the part of the claimant of the San Rafael del Valle land grant, in Arizona Territory. The grant was issued by the State of Sonora, one of the States of the Mexican Republic, and was claimed to be a complete title in fee by metes and bounds. The court below, two judges out of the five dissenting, rejected the grant on solely one question of law, viz., that the decree of Santa Anna of November 25, 1853, made this grant and all other grants issued by the State of Sonora null and void. This decision thus affects a large part of the whole amount of land embraced within the Gadsden purchase and claimed under Mexican titles, and as there are other grants similar to this one now pending before the Court of Private Land Claims, it seems a matter of general importance that so far-reaching a question should be passed on by this Court as early as practicable, so that the other cases pending may be decided according to the law as announced by this Court, as it is believed that a decision by this Court will prevent the necessity of multiplying appeals. Especially does this seem appropriate in view of the uncertainty arising from the fact that the lower court was so nearly evenly divided in its opinion.

In submitting the motion to advance the case involving the Los Nogales de Elias grant, appealed from the Court of Private Land Claims, which motion this Court granted, counsel quoted the following statement and recommendation from page 24 of the report for the year 1894 of Hon. Louis C. Hughes, Governor of Arizona, to the Secretary of the Interior:

"There is no one thing which is more devoutly prayed for by the settlers in the regions of these private land claims than an early, final settlement of title, and when it is considered that an area of more than 6,000,000 acres comprises the sum total of these claims, the interest manifested by our people may in a measure be realized. Until a final determination of title is had, the settlement and development of these vast areas of land must remain as at present, unoccupied and unproductive.

"I would therefore recommend, in the interest of claimants, homeseekers, and the Territory, an early hearing of all these cases which are or may be appealed to the Supreme Court."

The lands claimed under this and similar grants are not less than 75,000 acres, all of which is reserved from any settlement or entry under the land laws of the United States pending the final decision of the question involved. These lands so claimed are the best agricultural lands in the Gadsden purchase, and the prosperity of a large part of Pima and Cochise Counties, in Arizona Territory, depends on the settlement of the question involved in this case. No one of the many hundreds of persons on these grants can acquire any title to the home or farm occupied by him till it is determined by a decision of this Court whether these lands are the property of the United States or are owned by the grant claimants.

The Court of Private Land Claims expires by limitation on December 31, 1897, and if this cause awaits its regular order on the docket of this Court it may not be reached until after the expiration of the court below, which, if such should be the case, will thus not have the benefit, as to the other similar cases pending before it, of the views of this Court.

It is more than forty-one years since the lands embraced within the Gadsden purchase were acquired by the United States, and after having waited so long for a settlement of his title claimant respectfully requests, under all the circumstances, that his case be advanced in this Court.

JUAN PEDRO CAMOU, APPELLANT,

v.

THE UNITED STATES.

APPEAL FROM THE COURT OF PRIVATE LAND CLAIMS.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE, POINTS AND AUTHORITIES, BRIEF AND ARGUMENT FOR APPELLANT.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

This case was instituted by the filing by appellant under the provisions of the act of March 3, 1891, of the petition and amended petition set out at pages 1-3 and 6-9 of the record. This petition alleged that petitioner, Camou, was the owner in fee of the tract of land known as the San Rafael del Valle grant, situated in the County of Cochise, Territory of Arizona, in the San Pedro valley, on both sides of the San Pedro river, between the range of mountains known as the Huachuca and the range known as the Mule mountains; that petitioner became the owner of said land by purchase and claims title to same through various mesne conveyances from the original grantee thereof, one Rafael Elias, who duly acquired his ownership and derived his title thereto by grant and conveyance from the duly constituted and authorized authorities of the State of Sonora, Mexico, under and by the authorization and sanction of the laws of the State of Sonora and of the Republic of Mexico. That the title to said lands and premises so derived and acquired as aforesaid was complete and perfect at the date when the United States acquired sovereignty in the Territory of Arizona, within which said lands are situate. That said grant was made and a patent issued therefor to said Rafael Elias under and by virtue of article 11 of the sovereign decree No. 70 of the general congress of the Republic of Mexico of the 4th of August, 1824, and the said patent was issued to said Rafael Elias on the 25th day of December, 1832, by José Maria Mendoza, treasurer general of the State of Sonora, in accordance with the above decree and under and by virtue of law No. 30 of the 20th of May, 1825, of the State of Sonora and Sinaloa (the constituent congress of the free, independent and sovereign State of the West), regulating the system of selling the public lands. That the said grant was upon the condition that the lands be kept occupied; that the grantees duly entered upon the possession of said lands and kept same occupied; that no breach of the conditions of said grant was ever claimed by the Republic of Mexico or the State of Sonora; that said grant had been duly located and duly recorded in the archives of Mexico prior to the 25th day of September, referred to in article VI. of the Gadsden treaty; that the grantors and predecessors in interest of petitioners, who were the owners of said grant at the time of the adoption of the treaty of Gaudalupe Hidalgo and of the Gadsden treaty were Mexicans, citizens of the Republic of Mexico; that the said lands and premises have remained in the uninterrupted and peaceable possession of petitioner and his grantors and predecessors in interest; that the grant in question, according to the survey and map thereof by George J. Roskruge, Esq., June 1, 1891, contains 20,034.62 acres; that certain persons, who were named, were in possession of portions of said grant, but that such possession was without the permission of petitioner, and without any right whatever.

The petition further alleged that pursuant to the acts of Congress the U. S. Surveyor General of Arizona examined into the validity of said grant and reported favorably thereon, and recommended the same to Congress for confirmation, and the petition annexed as an exhibit the report of the Surveyor General. The petition prayed that the validity of the claim and title be inquired into by the court.

The record does not show that any answer was filed on behalf of the United States.

At the trial the petitioner called as a witness Rufus C. Hopkins, who testified (rec. p. 29) that under the act of Congress of July 5, 1870, he was delegated and appointed by the Department of the Interior to proceed to the capital of the Mexican State of Sonora and examine the archives to be found there, and there make transcripts and minutes of all title papers and proceedings therein relating to grants of lands within the Territory of Arizona and report their condition as to proper form, validity, etc.; that he had executed the duty entrusted to him; that he was at that time familiar with the Spanish language; that among the Mexican archives he found the original expediente of the San Rafael del Valle grant, which was on stamped paper, and that he found an entry in the book of Toma de Razon, on which he made a copy. Witness further testified that his recollection was that he found the papers genuine, and that he so reported at the time; that the San Rafael del Valle grant conformed in the method of making the same to the manner which was in operation at the time of its date; that he had become very familiar with the signature of José Maria Mendoza.

Witness was shown the titulo of said grant and asked to state whether the signature on it was or was not the genuine signature of Mendoza, and replied that he thought it was the genuine signature.

The titulo was thereupon offered in evidence.

On cross examination witness testified as to the manner of making grants, and on re-direct examination that he thought there was nothing about this grant, from his investigation, to excite his suspicion at all.

A certified copy of the report made by Mr. Hopkins to the government of the United States was offered in evidence, and there was offered, also, a translation of the titulo and of the certificate to the record in the book of Toma de Razon, at Hermosillo, and copies and translations of certain deeds and instruments showing deraignment of title.

Witnesses were called who testified to the location of the landmarks and natural objects called for in the title papers, and certain maps identifying the location of the grant were introduced also. As to the monuments and possession, opposing evidence was offered by the United States.

The grant was rejected by a divided court. Three of the judges held that it was void because the decree of Santa Anna, dated November 25, 1853. The other two judges dissented, filing a separate opinion, in favor of confirming the grant. The effect of the decree of Santa Anna was the sole point decided.

Petitioner was allowed an appeal and duly prosecuted same to this Court.

SPECIFICATION OF ERROR.

The court erred in holding this grant void because of Santa Anna's decree.

POINTS AND AUTHORITIES.

I.

This grant is not one of those comprehended in the decree of Santa Anna, for the reason that it was made with the express mandate and sanction of the general powers of the Mexican republic in the form prescribed by the laws.

See said decree, Nueva Coleccion Leyes y Decretos Mexicanos, vol. 2, pp. 939.

See report of Special Agent R. C. Hopkins, rec. pp. 12-27; also in The Public Domain, pp. 1125-1134.

II.

The decree of Santa Anna did not affect grants embraced in the territory acquired by the Gadsden purchase, because it was made after September 25, 1853, when the negotiations for the Gadsden treaty began.

See decree as above.

III.

Under the law of Mexico said decree was of no binding obligation until it was duly promulgated or published, and it cannot affect grants within the territory acquired by the Gadsden treaty, because it cannot be presumed to have been promulgated in Sonora until after the signing of the treaty.

ARGUMENT.

This grant was rejected, as above stated, by a divided court, two out of the five judges dissenting. The sole ground for its rejection was that it was supposed to be invalid because of the decree of Santa Anna of date November 25, 1853. As to this decree appellant submits two propositions:

1. This grant does not fall within the operations of that decree.

2. If it did, the decree does not affect it, because the decree itself was without authority.

The first of these propositions is a short and simple one. Very much has been said and can be said as to the powers of Santa Anna, but conceding for the sake of the argument at this stage that he had authority to make the decree, it is confidently submitted that the decree does not either in its terms or its intent affect this grant. On this short ground that this grant does not come within the decree, we shall first try to show that this grant should be confirmed.

The first and second articles of that decree declare that:

“The vacant lands (terrenos valdios) being the exclusive property of the nation, could never have been alienated by any title whatever, by virtue of decrees, orders and dispositions of the legislatures, governments, or authorities of the states or territories of the republic; wherefore such sales, cessions, and alienations as may have been made of the vacant lands, without the express order and sanction of the general powers in the form prescribed by law, are declared null and void.”

Articles 3 and 4 provide for the resumption of all such public lands so alienated by the states or territories without the authority of the Supreme government, and deprives the grantees of all rights of reclamation in the premises as against the republic. (See The Public Domain, p. 1129 for translation of first and second articles of this decree; Hall, p. 166).

As this decree declares null and void only such alienations of the vacant lands as were made "without the express order and sanction of the general powers in the form prescribed by law," it is quite clear that if this grant can be shown to have been made with the express order and sanction of such powers it does not fall within the decree. To determine whether it was made with such sanction it will be necessary to consider the relation which the state of Sonora bore at the time of making this grant to the general government, and to examine the legislation on this subject of the Mexican republic and the State of Sonora.

The starting-point of the separation of New Spain from Old Spain may be regarded as the proclamation of the Plan of Iguala (February 14, 1821) and its consummation by the signature of the Treaty of Cordova (August 24, 1821). These two acts constituted the Empire or Kingdom of New Spain. Independence was achieved September 27, 1821. The first Congress met November 7, 1823, and framed a constitution which went into effect October 4, 1824. The Acta Constitutiva by decree of January 31, 1824, created the states of the Federation, among which was the State of the West, "Estado de Occidente," composed of the provinces of Sonora and Sinaloa. Sonora was afterwards made a separate state by law of October 13, 1830. (Compiled laws of Mexico, Vol. 2, page 291, No. 875.)

On August 4, 1824, was passed the decree entitled "Classification of Rents," containing the following provisions among others:

“Articles 1-9. Belong to the general rents (revenues) of the Federation * * the national property, in which are comprehended that of the inquisition and temporalities and any other rustic or urban estates which belong or shall hereafter belong to the public treasury.

Art. 11. The rents (revenues) which are not comprehended in the previous articles belong to the states. (Nueva Coleccion, vol. 2, p. 131; Reynolds, p. 118).

The same Congress passed the decree of August 18, 1824, entitled “On Colonization,” some of the provisions of which are as follows:

“The Supreme Executive Power provisionally appointed by the General Sovereign Constituent Congress, to all who shall see and understand these presents; know ye, that the said Congress has decreed as follows:

Art. 1. The Mexican nation offers to foreigners who come to establish themselves within its territory security for their persons and property; provided, however, they subject themselves to the laws of the country.

Art. 2. This law comprehends those lands of the nation not the property of individuals, corporations, or towns, which can be colonized.

Art. 3. For this purpose the legislatures of all the states will, as soon as possible, form colonization laws or regulations for their respective states, conforming themselves in all things to the constitutional act, general constitution, and the regulations established in this law.

Art. 10. The military who, in virtue of the offer made on the 27th of March, 1821, have a right to lands, shall be attended to by the states, in conformity with the diplomas which are issued to that effect by the Supreme Executive power.

Art. 11. If, in virtue of the decree alluded to in the last article, and taking into consideration the probabilities of life, the Supreme Executive power should deem it expedient to alienate any portion of land in favor of any officer, whether civil or military, of the Federation, it can do so from the vacant lands of the territories.

Art. 16. The government in conformity with the provisions established in this law will proceed to colonize the territories of the republic." (White's New Recopilacion, vol. i, p. 601; Reynolds, p. 121.)

This law was made effective by the rules and regulations for the colonization of the territories of the Republic of Mexico, November 21, 1828, the first article of which is as follows:

"It being stipulated in the sixteenth article of the General Law of Colonization of the 18th of August, 1824, that the Government, in conformity with the principles established in said law, shall proceed to the colonization of the territories of the Republic; and it being very desirable, in order to give to said article the most punctual and exact fulfillment, to dictate some general rules for facilitating its execution, his Excellency has seen fit to determine on the following articles:

1. The governors (Gefes politicos) of the territories are authorized (in compliance with the law of the General Congress of the 18th of August, 1824, and under the conditions herein specified), to grant vacant lands in their respective territories to such contractors (empresarios), families, or private persons, whether Mexicans or foreigners, who may ask of them, for the purpose of cultivating and inhabiting them." (Reynolds, p. 141.)

On May 20, 1825, the Constituent Congress of the State of the West passed law 30 for the sale of its lands. This law begins:

"No. 30. The Constituent Congress of the free, independent and sovereign State of the West has seen fit to decree the following provisional law for the purchase of the lands of the state," and sets out in detail the fees for the treasury of the state; the fees of surveyors; the fees for the last public offer, and contains general provisions in explanation of the law. (Reynolds, p. 129.)

Other decrees relative to the sale of its lands were passed by later legislatures of Sonora, which enactments are contained in the organic law of Sonora of July 11, 1834 (Reynolds, 186).

The historic facts as to sales of public lands in the State of Sonora are set out in the report of Special Agent R. C. Hopkins, at pages 11-27 of the record herein, and are printed in the Public Domain also (pp. 1125-1134). After the passage of the law of May 20, 1825, sales were uniformly made by the State of Sonora and by no other granting power, up to the time when Sonora became a Department. The power to make such grants was in every case stated in the title papers as the same, viz.:

“Inasmuch as article 11 of the general sovereign decree No. 70, dated August 4, 1824, conceded to the states the revenues which in said law the national government did not reserve to itself, one of them being that derived from the lands within their respective territories, which in consequence belong to them, for the disposition of which the honorable constitutive congress of the state that used to be joined of Sonora and Sinaloa enacted the law No. 30 of May 20th of 1825, as well as the decrees relative thereto passed by other succeeding legislatures,” etc.

As a matter of unquestioned history, for ten years after the law of May 20, 1825, Sonora habitually sold lands, using the form shown by this San Rafael del Valle grant, as just quoted, and claiming the lands as hers, and this was done without a word of protest from the general government.

As stated at the outset of this discussion, the decree of Santa Anna did not attempt to declare void all conveyances of lands made by the states. If the state had sold lands with the full knowledge and consent of the general government, such a sale was not brought in question by the decree. Even Santa Anna did not attempt to put the Mexican government in the position of having assented to sales and afterwards declaring them void.

We now submit that this grant comes within the exception of this decree. It is not one made “without the express order and sanction of the general powers in the forms prescribed by law," and therefore is not among those declared void. Such sales as this were in the forms prescribed by law, and were made under the express provisions of the law of the general government, and with its sanction and approval and consequent ratification. This is clear, as we think, from the following considerations:

Sonora in all her sales, such as this one, lays her claim to title to the lands in "article 11 of the sovereign decree No. 70 of the general congress of the union," of date August 4, 1824. The interpretation which the state gave to this article is, as shown, that it "concedes to the states the revenues which in said law the general government did not reserve for the federation itself, and one of such revenue being that derived from the lands within the respective borders of the states, such lands, in consequence, belonged to the states," etc.

The decree of August 4 classifies certain revenues which belong to the general revenues of the federation. The revenue from public lands is not mentioned as one. Article 11 then declares that "the revenues not included in the foregoing articles belong to the states."

How is this article to be interpreted, and what did it embrace?

If there is any doubt as to its meaning, one of the most pertinent questions that can be asked is, How did the parties themselves understand and construe the article at the time? In Topliff v. Topliff, 122 U. S. 121, the Court said that "in cases where the language used by the parties to a contract is indefinite and ambiguous and hence of doubtful construction, the practical interpretation of the parties themselves is entitled to great, if not controlling, influence. In an executory contract, where its execution necessarily involves a practical construction, if the minds of both parties concur, there can be no great danger in the adoption of it by the court as the true one." So, "in the case of a doubtful and ambiguous law, the contemporaneous construction of those who have been called to carry it into effect is entitled to great respect, and such construction ought not to be overruled without cogent reasons." Cooper Mfg. Co. v. Ferguson, 113 U. S. 727; Brown v. U. S. 113 U. S. 568.

It is evident that the practical construction given by the states of the Mexican Republic to the decree of August 4, 1824; was that one of the revenues reserved to the states was from the vacant lands, and this was construed to mean that "in consequence thereof such lands belonged to the states."

This exact form of language was used in all the grants made—and they were made in large numbers—by the State of Sonora between 1825 and 1835. On October 3, 1835, the states were abolished, the central system was introduced, and Sonora was turned into a Department. On August 22, 1846, the Departments were abolished and the states re-established. During the period of the central system, Sonora acted as a Department, and after the re-establishment of the states she again issued titles to lands on sales made as a state. This is shown by the San Ygnacio de la Canoa grant, confirmed by the Court of Private Land Claims. In that case the proceedings were instituted in 1821 and the land sold in that year, but final title in form was not issued till February 2, 1849. When the title was issued on that date by the proper official of the State of Sonora, it contained the same recital, viz., that inasmuch as "article 11 of the general sovereign decree dated August 4, 1824, conceded to the states the revenues which in said law the national government did not reserve to itself, one of them being those of the lands within their respective districts, which therefore belonged to them," etc.

The title paper in the grant now before the Court is dated December 25, 1832. From that date to February

2, 1849, is over 16 years. During all of these sixteen years, when the State of Sonora issued titles the written construction given by her to article 11 was invariably the same, namely, that by virtue of it the vacant lands in the state belonged to her.

Such was the contemporaneous and unvarying practical construction given to this article 11 by one of the parties to it. How was the same article regarded by the other party, the general Mexican government?

The answer to this is that the general government construed it in exactly the same way. This is shown too clearly to be disputed.

First: Section 8 of Article 161 of the Federal constitution of 1824 made it the duty of each Mexican state—

“To present annually to each one of the houses of the General Congress a minute and comprehensive report of the amounts that are received and paid out at the treasuries within their limits, together with a statement of the origin of the one and the other and touching the different branches of agriculture, commercial and manufacturing industries,” etc.

Under section 9 of Article 161 of the same constitution each of the states was obligated—

“To forward to the two chambers (of the Federal Government) and when they are in recess, to the Council of the Government, a certified copy of their constitutions, laws and decrees.”

In Clinton v. Engelbrecht, 13 Wall. 424, referring to a law of Utah, this Court said:

“In the first place, we observe that the law has received the implied sanction of Congress. It was adopted in 1859. It has been upon the statute book for more than twelve years. It must have been transmitted to Congress soon after it was enacted, for it was the duty of the Secretary of the Territory to transmit to that body copies of all laws on or before the first of the next December in each year. The simple disapproval by Congress at any time would have annulled it. It is no unreasonable inference, therefore, that it was approved by that body.”

Under the reason of this decision we submit that the fact that the constitution and law of Sonora of 1825 were not disapproved by the general government must be considered as an approval of them. The general government promptly annulled laws of the State of Sonora which were considered objectionable, and did this from the earliest days. For instance, the decree of the federal government of March 9, 1829, declares that the decree of the State of the West, No. 97, of December 20, 1828, relative to one D. Francisco Iriarte, is contrary to Article 157 of the federal constitution. (Vol. I, Leyes y decretos Mexicanos, p. 7.)

This is cited as one of the many instances showing both that the Mexican general government knew what was being done in the states and that it disapproved what it did not like. Therefore, its disapproval of certain laws is an approval of other laws as to which it was silent, and it follows that the laws of the State of Sonora providing for the sales of its lands received the sanction and approval of the general government.

Second: Moreover, on March 26, 1826, the Mexican congress passed a law requiring the commissaries general, who were the chief federal officers in each state, to transmit to the general government a collection of all the decrees, orders and regulations passed by the congress of each state (2 Galvan's Nueva Coleccion, p. 634). That the law of Sonora in which she claimed to her own lands was thus brought before the general government cannot be doubted.

This Court had before it in Ainsa v. U. S., 161 U. S. 208, the testimonio of the Los Nogales de Elias grant. That title paper was issued April 7, 1843, while the central system was in force and while Sonora was a Department. All the officials who acted were, as they styled themselves, Departmental officials and not officers of the State of Sonora. The grant was issued by the treasurer of the Department of Sonora in the name of the Mexican Nation. Its genuineness or record in the book of Toma de Razon was not called in question by the United States. The preamble or recital of authority in that grant is as follows:

“Whereas article 11 of the sovereign general decree No. 70 of the 4th (printed 10th by some error) of August, 1824, ceded to the old States the revenues which in said law the General Government did not reserve to itself, one of which is that from the lands (terrenos) in their respective districts, which therefore belong to them, and for the disposal of which the Honorable Constituent Congress of the state which was Sonora and Sinaloa united law No. 30 of the 20th of May, 1825, as did also the successive legislatures other decrees concerning them, which enactments have been retained in sections 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th of chapter 9 of the organic law of the treasury, No. 26, of the 11th of July, 1834,” etc.

We cite this as a direct and explicit statement by the officials of the Mexican government adopting the construction which Sonora had put upon the law of August 4, 1824, that the vacant lands in the State belonged to her.

And this Nogales grant is not the only one containing such statements. The Agua Prieta grant is pending before the Court of Private Land Claims. Its genuineness and record in the book of Toma de Razon have not been called in question by the United States. Its title paper shows that application was made to the treasurer general of the State of Sonora on July 21, 1831. A survey was ordered and officials and witnesses appointed in the usual form, but the proceedings were delayed owing to the incursions of the Apache Indians. Final title was issued December 28, 1836, by the treasurer general of the Department of Sonora, based on the proceedings instituted under the state. The preamble is the same as the one just quoted from the Nogales grant.

These instances are cited as showing that the proceedings instituted under the states when the federal system was in force were continued and completed and final title issued by the Departments under the central system. It shows that the laws of the State of Sonora for selling her lands were known to the officials of the Mexican government, and what is all-important, that the officials of that government put on such laws the same construction as did the state, namely, that by virtue of article 11 of the law of August 4, 1824, the vacant lands belonged to the states.

Grants issued by the State of Sonora and by the Department of Sonora were recorded in the same book of Toma de Razon. The record in this case shows that the San Rafael del Valle grant was recorded on page 11 of that book. The Canoa grant, heretofore described as issued February 2, 1849, was recorded on page 75 of the same book. This is the only book of Toma de Razon subsequent to October 24, 1831, and all of the grants made by the State of Sonora and by the Department of Sonora which were recorded after October 24, 1831, were recorded in this book. As a matter of fact, large numbers of grants made by the State of Sonora prior to October 3, 1835, when the central system went into effect, are recorded in this book. The grants issued by the Department of Sonora under the central system follow in chronological order in the same book, and then the grants issued after August 22, 1846, when the State form of government was again resumed, are recorded in chronological order in the same book. All grants of lands in the territory sometimes called the state and at other times the Department of Sonora were recorded as made in this one book.

The expedientes or matrices of grants in the same territory, whether made by the state or Department of Sonora, are preserved in the archives of Mexico, at Hermosillo, where they remain to the present day.

The attention of the Court is called to this fact of the entries in the book of Toma de Razon as showing that the sales of lands by the State of Sonora and the laws under which they were made must have been known to the general Mexican government. In fact, it was a physical impossibility for the Departmental officers not to see these entries. When, under the Department, the book of Toma de Razon was opened for the record of a sale of land, there, staring the treasurer general of the Department in the face, were the entries of the numerous sales made by the treasurer general of the State of Sonora. The officers of the national government could not help seeing these entries if they tried. When the commissary general or any other official of the general government looked at this book or at the archives, there he found the expediente of sales made by the State of Sonora, all duly recorded in the book of Toma de Razon.

In view of the facts above set out, which are only a small part of the ones that could be cited, it is submitted that it is simply impossible to believe that the national Mexican government was ignorant of the fact that sales of lands were habitually made by the State of Sonora, or ignorant of the laws under which such sales were made.

In fact, the specific proof is contained in the record of this case that such grants as the one now under consideration were actually brought before the honorable Congress of Mexico. On page 199 of this record is the statement made by the treasurer general of the State of the West, under date of April 25, 1828, that title to a grant of land sold in April, 1828, "cannot now be issued until the honorable Congress (of Mexico) determines the question propounded by the supreme government of the State in regard to the issue of these documents."

To the writer of this brief it has always seemed a principle not to be shaken that our courts, in the language of this Court in Hornsby v. U. S., 10 Wall. 224, "cannot, without doing injustice to individuals, give to the Mexican laws a more narrow and strict construction than they received from the Mexican authorities who were entrusted with their execution." In the language of the Supreme Court of Texas in Hancock v. McKinney, 7 Tex. 384, at page 442: "The construction of their powers and of the laws which conferred them, adopted and acted upon by the authorities under the former governments of the country, must be respected until it be shown that they have clearly transcended their powers or have acted manifestly in contravention of law."

Applying to this case the principle which this Court has laid down in other cases, the question of the construction and effect of Santa Anna's decree can, it seems, be easily disposed of. The conclusions which seem to follow from the facts given above are these:

The decree of August 4, 1824, was passed by the general constituent congress in Mexico.

Article 11 of that decree provides that "the revenues not included in the foregoing articles belong to the states."

The meaning of this article as shown by the construction given to it by all the authorities, state, Departmental and national, is that the vacant lands belonged to the state.

This article, is therefore, an "express order" or express mandate of the general powers," conferring upon the states the right to dispose of the vacant lands within their borders.

Sales like the one under consideration were made with the "sanction of the general powers" by virtue of this article 11 and by virtue of the fact that such sales were actually sanctioned. For the general government to permit Sonora to make sales of lands year after year without disapproving such sales is a "sanction" of them.

This grant, therefore, is not within the letter or the intent of the Santa Anna decree.

This record shows (p. 108) that the sale of the lands was made on the advice of the attorney general of the State of Sonora, one Manuel de la Brena. This Court in Mitchell v. U. S., 9 Pet. 716, at page 742, had under consideration the validity of a sale which had been made under the advice of a Spanish attorney general, and held that as the grant was made on such advice the presumption was very strong, if not irresistible, that everything preceding it had been lawfully and rightfully done. It would certainly seem that a Mexican attorney general knew more of the law of his own country at the time than we could now know.

A good deal of confusion has been injected into the subject of the sales of lands made by the State of Sonora by confounding two laws which are entirely different. These laws, are, first, article 11, of August 4, 1824, which gave to the states the right to sell their lands, and, second, article 3 of the decree of August 18, 1824, which provides that for the purpose of colonizing lands with foreigners "the Congresses of the States shall enact, as soon as possible, laws or regulations for the colonization of their respective demarcations, in strict conformity with the Constitutive act, the general constitution and the rules established in this law." Reynolds, p. 121.

As a matter of fact, Sonora did not pass a colonization law till May 6, 1850. Such law referred distinctly to the colonization of foreigners, and is as different in its intent and provisions from the laws of Sonora of 1825 and 1834, which provided for the sales of land to Mexican citizens, as one thing could well be from another. This first colonization law of Sonora was promptly annulled by the Mexican nation on May 14, 1851, as unconstitutional. The fact that this objectionable colonization law was annulled, while no reference of disapproval of the laws of 1825 or 1834 was ever made shows that these laws were considered valid and effectual.

A short resumé may be of value, showing some of the constitutional and statutory expressions of the claim of Sonora to own her lands.

1. The constitution of Sonora (State of the West) declares (article 47) that the right of selling lands (tierras) belongs to the state. This constitution bears date May 11, 1825.

2. Law No. 30, of May 20, 1825, of the constituent congress of the State of the West provides that the congress "has seen fit to decree the following provisional law for the purchase of the lands of the state."

3. Decree of Sonora of May 30, 1834, setting time to obtain titles.

4. Organic law of the treasury of Sonora of July 11, 1834, stating (article 53, sec. 2, Reynolds, p. 187) "the revenues and fees established in the state are . . . revenue from the composition and grant of lands," and providing, article 57, for the sale of lands, which were to be registered "in the name of the state." Article 60 is "The treasurer (of the state) as the immediate chief of the revenues, shall make the sales and issue the titles."

In the work above referred to, compiled by Mr. Reynolds, it is stated, p. 34:

"By the law of April 25, 1835, the frontier and litoral states were prohibited from selling the vacant lands within their boundaries without the previous approval of the general government. Attention is called to this law."

When attention is directed to the law itself, it will be seen, as we submit, that its terms in no wise bear out the construction put upon it by Mr. Reynolds. The language of the law is (Reynolds, p. 193):

"Article 1. The decree of the legislature of Coahuila and Texas of March 14 of the present year is, in its articles 1 and 2, contrary to the law of August 18, 1824; consequently the alienations made by virtue of said decree are null and of no value.

2. In the exercise of the powers the general government reserved to itself in Article 7 of said law of August 18, 1824, the border and litoral states are prohibited from alienating their public lands for colonization thereon, until the rules they shall observe in doing so are established.

3. If any of them desire to alienate any part of their public lands, they shall not have power to do so without the approval of the general government, which, in every case, shall be preferred if it sees fit to take them, and shall give the states the proper indemnity.

4. The general government can, under articles 3 and 4 of the law of April 6, 1830, by virtue of its preference right, purchase of the State of Coahuila and Texas the four hundred sitios it says it is under the necessity of selling.

This seems to be a pointed and unequivocal statement and admission that the states owned the lands in their borders.

Article 3 of the decree of April 6, 1830, is that

“The government shall have power to appoint one or more commissioners to visit the colonies of the frontier states, to contract with their legislatures for the purchase, in the name of the Federation, of the lands they may consider suitable and sufficient for the establishment of colonies of Mexican and of other nations, to enter into such arrangements with the colonies already established as they may deem proper for the security of the Republic, to see to the exact compliance with the contracts upon the entry of new colonists, and to examine as to how far those already entered into have been complied with.

4. The executive shall have the power to take the lands he may consider suitable for fortifications and arsenals, and for new colonies, and shall give the states credit for their value on the accounts they owe the Federation.”

It is submitted that the resources of the Spanish or English language would be inadequate to convey any more fully the statement that the lands belonged to the states, and that they could not be taken even by the general government without payment to the states therefor.

The decree of April 25, 1835, does not, as stated in Mr. Reynolds' work, prohibit the states from selling their lands without the previous approval of the general government. The decree states that "the border and litoral states are prohibited from alienating their public lands for colonization thereon" until the rules they shall observe in so doing are established.

The power in the general government to make this prohibition is stated to be "reserved to itself in article 7 of said law of August 18, 1824, which is

"Prior to the year 1840 the General Congress shall not prohibit the entry of foreigners to colonize, unless imperious circumstances force it to it with respect to the individuals of some particular nation."

But, as we have shown, the grant now under consideration was not a colonization sale or grant to foreigners, but a sale to Mexican citizens. It was not made under any provision of the law of August 18, 1824, but under the law of August 4, 1824. The decree of April 25, 1835, referred only to the law of August 18, 1824. It has no reference either in terms or intent to sales to Mexican citizens made under the law of August 4, 1824.

The further statement is made on page 35 of Mr. Reynolds' work that

"April 4th, 1837, the colonization law and all other land laws were repealed."

But a reference to the law itself shows at once, as is submitted, that it does not repeal all other land laws. The language of the law is that "the government * * shall not be compromised by the laws heretofore enacted on colonization, which enactments are all repealed, in so far as they conflict with this law, but the prohibition of article 11 of the law of April 6, 1830, shall remain in force."

The enactments repealed are those on colonization. The law is restricted to these. It makes no reference to sales to Mexican citizens under the law of August 4, 1824. Article 11 of the law of April 6, 1830, refers to "the exercise of the power which the general Congress reserved to itself in article 7 of the law of the 18th of August, 1824," by which "it is forbidden to colonize foreigners of adjacent countries in those states and territories of the Federation which adjoin their nations."

The federal government of Mexico by its Ministers of the Interior issued on May 25, 1838, the circular approved by the President of the Republic (3d vol. Comp. Laws of Mex., p. 557). This circular is indexed (p. 806 of said 3d volume) as "Leyes de las Estados. Están vigentes las que no están expresamente derogadas?" the translation of which is "Laws of the States. There are in force those which are not in direct terms annulled." The full text of the circular is as follows:

"It must be principally noted that there are in force all such laws as are not openly inconsistent with the prevailing system and unless they are found to have been expressly repealed by any other subsequent disposition, this rule also holding good in regard to those laws which were decreed (passed) in the very remote epochs, and under the different forms of government which the nation has had; and that, therefore, the courts and other authorities daily transact their various duties under the existence of the laws of the Cortes of Spain, of the laws of Partidas and Compilation, as long as this disposition is not repugnant, more or less, to the form of government in which they were sanctioned.

"This principle being established, there follow two natural consequences; the first is, that there ought to be considered as in force the laws of the old States, whenever these contain the requisites mentioned above, unless they are repugnant to the form of government under which they had their origin, or unless the supreme government has enacted any other, since their requirements cannot be superior (paramount) to the laws.

“The other consequence is, that if the orders of the government were the result of some of its constitutional attributes, or of some other subsequent law that authorized such or another act, then the laws of the States ought not to be considered as in force, not because they are repugnant to the requirements of the government, but because the law authorizes it to decree this or the other decree contrary to it, by the same right that any other decree is abolished by former legislation.

“From the foregoing it is the opinion of the commission that the advice of the government can be obtained, unless the council, with better judgment, resolves differently.

“Be pleased, your Excellency, to advise his Excellency and receive the documents which were transmitted.

And this being approved by the President, he has seen fit to order it to be communicated to the governors of the departments, so that they may take notice of this decision for the general good.”

In the case of Ainsa v. U. S., 161 U. S. 208, supra, where the grant was made by Departmental officers under the central system of government, the Court will notice that it is stated by the Departmental officials in 1841 that “decree No. 51 of the 12th of May, 1835, of the old state (Sonora) is still in force.”

This is another of the very many proofs that the laws of the State of Sonora were known to the general government, and had not been repealed by it, but, on the contrary, were expressly admitted to be in force.

And still later, in 1849, state ownership of the vacant lands in Sonora is expressly recognized by the federal government in the communication of August 30, 1849, from that government to the governor of the State of Sonora, as follows (Reynolds, p. 294):

“Most Excellent Sir: The Supreme Government is informed that on account of the disturbances in Upper California, especially in the gold placers, robbery and murders have increased, and that the hatred of Mexicans, Spaniards and Chilians has gone so far as to prevent their living there, and that they have been forcibly compelled to re-embark, and further information has been added to this which indicates that in that country there are no social guarantees.

This has attracted the attention of his Excellency, the President, and he therefore directs me to say to your Excellency that he expects you to do all that is possible to attract to yourself this population, in the understanding that public lands will be given to the emigrants on credit, and, that, if that State does not cede them gratuitously or if the emigrants cannot pay, it will be given them nevertheless, as the General Government obligates itself to indemnify said State in the manner to be determined at the proper time by the General Congress.

God and Liberty. Mexico, August 30th, 1849,

Lacunza."

As has been stated, Sonora did not pass a law for colonization, as opposed to the laws for the sales of lands to Mexican citizens, till May 6, 1850, and this law was annulled by the Mexican Nation on May 14, 1851. In citing this last-mentioned law, the work by Mr. Reynolds prefaces it with the statement that it "annulls decree of the State of Sonora declaring public lands belong to Sonora, and provides for colonizing the same." This declaration also is misleading. The law of Sonora was not declared unconstitutional because of the declaration of Sonora that the public lands belonged to her, because, as frequently stated therein, her ownership of such lands was always conceded in every way possible—by acquiescence and by express admission. The right claimant by the general government was not of title to the lands but the one of establishing basis for colonization, and the power of the general government is again stated to rest on article 2 of the law of April 25, 1835: "In the exercise of the power reserved to the general Congress in article 7 of said law of August 18, 1824, the frontier and litoral states are prohibited from alienating their vacant lands for colonizing until the regulations to be observed in carrying it out are established."

The other states, also, of the Mexican republic passed laws for the sales of their lands. The colonization law of the State of Coahuila and Texas, enacted in 1825, recites that—

"The governor provisionally appointed by the Sovereign Congress of this state to all who shall see these presents: know that the said Congress have decreed: Decree No. 16. The Constituent Congress of the free, independent and sovereign state of Coahuila and Texas, desiring by every possible means to augment the population of its territory; promote the cultivation of its fertile lands; the raising and multiplication of stock and the progress of the arts and commerce; and being governed by the Constitutional act, the Federal constitution and the basis established by the National decree of the general Congress, No. 72, have thought proper to decree the following law of colonization," etc.

The State of Tamaulipas enacted a similar law in 1826. (See Chambers v. Fisk, 22 Tex. 504, 529, 530.)

In passing on the question of the title of the State of Coahuila and Texas to her lands, the Supreme Court of Texas in Blount v. Webster, 176 Tex. 616, reviews the history and legislation of Mexico, and say, page 619, "By virtue and operation of this law (August 18, 1824) the public lands lying within the said states became severally and respectively the property of the states in which they lay."

The subject was considered even more fully in Chambers v. Fisk, 22 Tex. 504. In that case the court point out, at page 527, that the constitution of Texas, after asserting its independent sovereignty, except as to the powers delegated to the general government, assumes to claim that "all kinds of vacant property within its limits, and all intestate property without a legal successor, shall belong to the state (art. 15),” and that the congress of the state shall have power to “enact what is proper for the administration, preservation and alienation of the property of the state (art. 97);” and the court say: “Here is an open, express claim of right to the vacant domain in the state, with the full power of disposition. These provisions of the constitution of the state are not annulled or controverted in any way by the general government; nor was any law of the state assuming this right sought to be controverted by the federal authorities until April, 1835, after the weight of the supreme executive power and other inherent defects of its organization had given the government a direction, with an irresistible drift, towards centralism, which was carried to its entire consummation under the ‘plan of Toluca,’ in 1836, by the adoption of the ‘central constitution.’ Mayer, Mexico, 399; 1 White’s Recop. p. 626.” Concluding its opinion the court say: “We have arrived at these conclusions upon the main question at issue, because we have not been able or willing to repudiate the right of what was then our own state, Coahuila and Texas, to the ownership of her vacant domain and her right to dispose of it as attempted by her in this case in accordance with the rights assumed by her in her constitution and laws, virtually and plainly recognized by the federal authorities in 1830, and never sought to be controlled or prevented, except on reasons of federal policy, in reference to the introduction of colonists from the United States of the north: and then only in 1835, when the over-grown usurped power of the general government was on its march to the annihilation of the states.”

The same conclusion had been reached in Republic v. Thorn, 3 Tex. 499, where the court say, at page 509: “From a review of these laws on the subject of colonization, it will appear that extensive authority over the public lands generally was vested in the state; that she possessed the property in the soil and had alone the power by direct agency of appropriating lands to individuals; that this power was never assumed by the general government during the existence of the confederacy, but its exercise by the state could be, to some extent, paralyzed by virtue of faculties reserved in the general law of colonization, and that, in fact, after 1830, the operations of colonization were from that cause much embarrassed and retarded. But no attempt was made to effect an entire suspension of the power of the states over the public lands until the law of the 25th April, 1835, when, by an arbitrary perversion of the 7th article of the law of 1824, the congress assumed the power of prohibiting further sales of land for colonization until regulations should be made by which such colonization should be controlled."

This Court has announced the same holding. In Spencer v. Lapsley, 20 How. 264, decided at the December term, 1857, the Court say, at page 269: "The power of the governor of those states, Coahuila and Texas, to sell lands to Mexicans, not exceeding eleven leagues in quantity, is unquestionable." This language was used in reference to a sale made October 4, 1833, and of it the Court say: "The title emanated from the State of Coahuila and Texas a quarter of a century ago, when Texas was a wilderness," and "a power in the colonial governor or political head of Texas to make grants is conceded in its utmost extent (page 275)."

So many cases have been passed on by the Supreme Court of Texas and this Court where titles emanated from the State of Coahuila and Texas and were held good, that it would be tiresome to enumerate them all. White et al. v. Burnley, 20 How. 235, is a case where this Court upheld the validity of a grant made by the Mexican State of Texas on April 11, 1835.

What has been held as to the State of Coahuila and Texas will apply, of course, with equal force to the State of Sonora. When that state passed the law of May 20, 1825, for the regulation of the purchase of the lands of the state, it was an open, express claim of right to such lands, with the full power of disposition, and up to the time the grant under consideration was issued was in no way annulled or controverted by the general government of Mexico.

“The express order and sanction” of the decree of Santa Anna refer to the time when the grants covered by the decree were made, and not to a subsequent time; that is, if a grant at the time it was made was made with this “express order and sanction,” there is no intention of annulling it by reason of anything occurring afterwards.

This Court in the Arguelo case, 18 How. 529, supra, speaking of the policy of Mexico with regard to the sales of lands to their own citizens, said:

“While a judicious policy might forbid the settlement of large bodies of foreigners on the boundaries and sea-coast, we cannot impute to them (the supreme government of Mexico) the weakness or folly of confining their native citizens to the interior, and thus leaving their sea-coast a wilderness without population. On the contrary, the same considerations of policy which excluded foreigners would encourage the settlement of natives within those bounds. The statute books of Mexico abound in acts offering every inducement to Mexican families to settle on the frontiers.”

It is a notorious historical fact that at the time of the execution of this grant Sonora was devastated by the Apache Indians. It was to the highest interests of the Mexican government that those marauders should be kept in check. For this purpose it was necessary to sell lands to Mexican citizens. The fact that the general government passed no laws for such sales shows that this power was committed to the states. Unless this view be taken, we have to suppose that Mexico did not herself propose to sell lands on the frontier or permit the state to do so, and this at a time when the preservation of the country depended on lands being sold and settled. This would indeed be imputing to Mexico "weakness and folly."

Any further evidence that Sonora claimed to own her vacant lands and that the general government laid no claim to them may seem only cumulative, and there are some other facts so clearly showing how the vacant lands were regarded that we hope they may receive the further attention of the Court.

In 1870 the Mexican government officially published the "Memoria de Hacienda y Credito Publico," a history of the treasury department of the nation, going back before the revolution of 1821. On page 62 is given a table showing the revenues prior to the revolution. One of them is from the "ventas, compras y confirmaciones de tierras," or proceeds from the sales of lands. On page 80 is given a table prepared and submitted to the general government in 1825. It is an estimate of the various revenues which the government might be expected to receive, and shows the sources from which the revenues would be derived. The table is as follows:

"Extracto de los valores, gastos y líquido de las rentas generales correspondientes á la Federacion por los soberanos decretos números 70 y 81.

RAMOS.

Derechos de importacion y exportacion.

Idem de internacion.

Renta del tabaco, incluyendo en la columnilla de gastos la compra y fletes.

Renta de pólvora.

Alcabala que paga el tabaco en los países de su cosecha.

Renta de corres.

Renta de lotería.

Renta de salinas.

Las de los territorios de la Federacion.

Bienes nacionales; fincas rústicas y urbanas del fondo piadoso de Californias, de temporalidades y de inquisición.

Rentas decimales en las ocho catedrales de la nación.

Idem de la mitra de México.

Idem de la dignidad de tesorero.

Contingente de los Estados.

Avería

Casa de moneda.

Peaje.

Créditos activos; deudores á la renta de salinas, de cuyo cobro hay esperanzas.

Préstamo extranjero."

There is not the slightest intimation here that the Mexican government claimed any revenue from public lands, "tierras." As will be seen from page 2 of the dissenting opinion of Judge Sluss herein, "bienes nacionales" and "fincas rústicas urbanas" have no reference to the public domain.

We have thus the declarations of the State of Sonora and of the Mexican government, made at the time. Sonora in her constitution, article 47, as heretofore quoted, claimed the revenue from the "confirmacion de tierras," that is, the right to sell the public lands and retain the proceeds. Mexico in summarizing all her prospective revenues makes no mention of sales of lands. The careful and complete enumeration of certain revenues is the exclusion of others, and it would seem that nothing could be clearer than that the national government made no claim in any manner to the vacant lands within the states.

III.

Under the former law of Mexico it is submitted, as stated by this Court in Gonzales v. Ross, 120 U. S., 605, 610, that the laws were of no binding obligation until after they were duly promulgated. It will be seen from the original text of the decree of Santa Anna, (Nueva Coleccion Leyes y Decretos Mexicanos, vol. 2, p, 939), that although it is dated November 25, 1853, it was not ordered to be promulgated until December 2 of the same year. This Court held in Gonzales v. Ross, supra, that it was not probable that an act of a Mexican State Congress passed at the city of Monclova, March 26, 1834, was promulgated at Dolores, a point about 200 miles distant, prior to the 18th of the following April, 23 days. The Gadsden treaty was signed December 30, 28 days after the decree of Santa Anna was ordered to be promulgated. As the State of Sonora was more than 1000 miles distant at its nearest point from the City of Mexico, it cannot be presumed that Santa Anna's decree had been promulgated there at the date of the signing of the treaty, and therefore it had not taken effect there.

Moreover, we submit that this decree cannot effect the treaty because it was issued after September 25, 1853, when the negotiations for the treaty began.

IV.

The language and construction of article VI of the Gadsden treaty cannot, as we submit, be taken in any way will invalidate this or similar grants. The language of that article is "or will any grants made previously (to September 25, 1853) be respected or be considered as obligatory which have not been located and duly recorded in the archives of Mexico." By the universal principle of construction the expression of one thing is the exclusion of others. The expression of what grants were to be considered invalid, namely, those which have not been located and duly recorded, excludes the idea that any others were to be considered invalid; that is to say, all other grants were to be considered valid, and this article of the treaty conveys exactly the same meaning as though the wording were "and all grants made previously (to September 25, 1853,) will be respected and be considered obligatory which have been located and duly recorded in the archives of México." Does this mean "all grants made by the Mexican republic?" Certainly not. There is no qualification or restriction as to the authority or granting power, and no such restriction can be implied. The treaty says, in its legal interpretation, "all grants will be respected," provided they bear date prior to September 25, 1853, and provided they had been located and duly recorded, and as a matter of course, the grants made by the State of Sonora, like the one now under consideration, would be included.

The position of the United States as to the supposed invalidity of this grant because of want of title in the State of Sonora can be advocated only by making article VI. of the treaty read, in effect, nor will any grants made by the State of Sonora and not approved by the Mexican republic be considered valid." But, as above shown, this qualification cannot be imported into the treaty. As to this, the language of this Court in Newhall v. Sanger, 92 U. S., 761, is sufficient authority. In that case this Court construed a statute which provided that "lands claimed" under any foreign grant or title, in California, were to be reserved from preëmption or sale. It was contended that this meant "lawfully" claimed, but the Court repudiated this construction and held that the statute meant "actually" claimed, and that the word "lawful" could not be imported into it to change its meaning.

So, we submit, the sixth article of the treaty cannot be changed by first inserting, in effect, the word "lawful," and then claiming that no grants were lawful which had been made by the State of Sonora. The words "any grants" cover all grants, whether made by the State of Sonora or not. If grants made by the State of Sonora were not to be respected, then the sixth article of the treaty is almost entirely superfluous, for these were almost all the grants there were.

The treaty must stand as it is. "The court will not alter, amend, or add to any treaty by inserting any clause, small or great, any more than in a law." (The Amiable Isabella, 6 Wheat. 1.)

"Where a treaty admits of two constructions, one restrictive as to the rights that may be claimed under it and the other liberal, the latter is to be preferred. Such is the settled rule." (Hauenstein v. Lynham, 100 U. S. 483.) Under this rule, article VI. of the treaty must be construed so as to uphold and not to invalidate the rights claimed by Mexican grantees.

The answer to the claim of the United States on this point of supposed want of title in the grantor is this, as it seems to us: The claim of the Mexican republic that the states did not own the lands within their limits, and, therefore, could not have made valid sales of them, was known at the time of the treaty to both the Mexican and the United States authorities. If neither nation proposed to recognize the grants made by Sonora, this fact would have appeared in some form in the treaty. As it does not appear, it is plain that if the Mexican republic had any claim to such grants, she waived her claim by this sixth article. In the same way, if the United States had any claim that the lands covered by these grants made by the State of Sonora had never been legally sold, and that the title to the same was in the Republic of Mexico and would therefore pass to the United States by the treaty, such claim was clearly waived by this sixth article, which undertakes to respect all grants prior to a certain date, provided only that they had been located and duly recorded.

Counsel base this line of reasoning on the decision of the Court in U. S. v. Clarke, 8 Pet. 436, 463. There, in construing the treaty of February 22, 1819, the Court say: "While Florida remained a province of Spain, the right of his Catholic Majesty, acting in person or by his officers, to distribute lands according to his pleasure, was unquestioned. That he was in the constant exercise of this power was well known. If the United States were not content to receive the territory charged with the titles thus created, they ought to have made, and they would have made, such exceptions as they deemed necessary. They have made these exceptions. They have stipulated that all grants made since the 24th of January, 1818, shall be null and void. It is understood that this stipulation was intended to embrace three large grants made by the king, which comprehended nearly all the crown lands in East Florida. However this may be, it shows that the subject was in the minds of the negotiators, and that the apprehended mischief was guarded against as far as the parties could agree. The American government was content with the security which this stipulation afforded, and cannot now demand further and additional grounds. The United States were satisfied, and had reason to be satisfied, with the provision excluding grants made subsequent to the 24th of January, 1818, when the fraud on that provision was prevented by the terms of the ratification of the treaty.

This reasoning seems to apply to the present case. The United States were satisfied with the provision excluding grants made after September 25, 1853, and grants made before that time which had not been located and duly recorded, and they cannot now exclude grants made by the State of Sonora. As a matter of fact, almost every grant in the territory ceded by the Gadsden purchase was made by the State of Sonora, and to reject these will be to make the provisions of the treaty almost entirely nugatory.

V AND VI.

The argument in the dissenting opinion herein is so clear on the point that the decree of Santa Anna was null ab initio, that no attempt will be made to add to Judge Sluss's opinion.

LOCATION AND EXTENT OF THE GRANT.

The petition of the applicant is set out in full at page 105 of the record. It is for "the public lands adjacent to the ranch of San Pedro." The "said public lands" were taken up and claimed. The words used in the original are "terreno baldio," the usual phrase for unappropriated public lands. No quantity is mentioned as applied for. The tract asked for was stated to be "adjacent to the ranch of San Pedro, as far as the place called Tres Alamos." The decree was for the survey, appraisement and auctions for 30 consecutive days "of the lands indicated in the foregoing petition." The alcalde summoned "the interested party and the adjacent owners" "in order to proceed with the survey of the lands petitioned for," and a survey was concluded, "resulting therefrom four sitios for raising cattle and horses in favor of the aforesaid citizen Rafael Elias, with which he was satisfied, and took possession of the land so segregated, being informed that at the proper time he had to mark all its limits with monuments of stone and mortar, as is by law provided." The alcalde then "proceeded to the appraisement of the land (del terreno)," and the four sitios to which the proceedings referred were auctioned off and title issued thereto.

The amount actually included within the survey somewhat exceeds the exact quantity of four sitios. This was the case not only in all the Mexican surveys but also in all the early surveys in the United States. Owing to lack of mathematical skill and the want of proper surveying instruments, and owing, also, to the roughness of the country and the lack of care when land had little value, the fixed, natural landmarks designated in the field notes of the survey of this and other grants contain more than the estimated or stated quantity. The familiar rule applies that the metes and bounds control.

This grant cannot be considered one by quantity, or a floating grant, because it was located with reference to a central point, and its southern boundary was taken as the northern boundary of the San Pedro ranch, which lay to the south (rec. p. 107).

Moreover, the record explicitly states (p. 107) that immediately after the survey the grantee "took possession of the land so segregated" by the survey. This juridicial possession determined the bounds of the tract sold. The survey was made by the constitutional alcalde, after summoning the interested party and the adjacent owners, one of whom, as the record shows, was on the ground exhibiting his title papers and pointing out his monument, and the delivery of possession was made on the ground immediately after the survey, as just stated, and was attested by the magistrate. This fixed the limit of the tract surveyed, possessed and afterwards sold. The possession of the whole of the surveyed tract was taken August 21, 1827, more than two-thirds of a century ago, and more than 26 years before the treaty. There is nothing to show that this possession was ever disturbed or the title called in question. On the contrary, the grant was made the subject of sale between Mexican citizens in 1862, and was judicially investigated as to the deraignment of title, as appears on pages 113-125 of the record. This shows that it was then admitted to be valid, and the presumptions arising from the delivery and continuance of possession are strengthened by the good faith of these conveyances.

It is submitted that the decree of the lower court should be reversed, and a decree entered by this Court confirming the grant to the landmarks called for in the original survey, which are designated by the map offered in evidence by the claimant herein.

ROCHESTER FORD,

Of counsel for appellant.

IN SENATE

REPORT

OF THE

COMMISSIONERS OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE

TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

IN RESPONSE TO A RESOLUTION PASSED BY THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

APRIL 1871

WASHINGTON: GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE: 1871.

IN THE Supreme Court of the United States.

OCTOBER TERM, 1897.

No. 28.

JUAN PEDRO CAMOU, APPELLANT,

vs.

THE UNITED STATES.

APPEAL FROM THE COURT OF PRIVATE LAND CLAIMS.

REPLY BRIEF OF APPELLANT.

Counsel for the Government says in the last paragraph of his brief that this grant should be rejected "on the broader ground that it has not been lawfully and regularly derived from the government of Spain and Mexico or from any of the States of the Republic of Mexico having lawful authority to make grants of lands." This is the main objection. The one of supposed non-location of the grant seems not to be of much importance, as the grant itself states that after the survey and before the sale the grantee "took possession of the land so segregated" by the survey, "being informed that at the proper time he had to mark all its limits with monuments of stone and mortar, as is by law provided."

As to the authority of the State to make this grant, we respectfully call the notice of the Court to some laws and evidence not contained in our main brief.

On May 9, 1825, the congress or legislature of the State of Sonora passed a resolution set out in the following document :

Translation of Document in the Archives of the Government of Sonora, at Hermosillo, Sonora.

"OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF THE STATE CONGRESS.

"MOST EXCELLENT SIR: Based upon the law concerning the classification of federal revenues, and upon subsequent data, the honorable congress in article 47 of the decree No. 23 declares that the right to issue confirmations of lands is one of the revenues of the State. The regulation of that branch was a consequence of this declaration. While this regulation was under advisement, the observations arrived which the commissary general makes in his letter of the 26th of the past month, and which Your Excellency had the kindness to transmit to us together with another letter of the 21st of the same month. They refer to those presented under date of December 13, in which said chief officer expresses doubts as to whom the proceeds of the sale belong, and about which he consulted from that time forward the general government. The decision for which he asks has not yet come, and the honorable congress has waited three months for it, a sufficient time for it to have arrived. This silence alone, without there being any need for other reasons, which might here be alleged, confirm the opinion and convey the conviction that the said right of confirming land titles belongs to the State and the harm which might result to the State in the present depletion of its treasury, by keeping this branch in a state of paralysis, was another motive towards the issuance of the said declaration.

"Done in today's session of the honorable congress and so communicated to Your Excellency, in order that you may transmit this resolution to the aforementioned commissary general, who shall at the same time be notified that, if after the usual procedure in such cases, it should be declared that the branch of public lands did not form a part of the State revenues, the national treasury is to be reimbursed in the amounts collected by the treasury of the State. By this order your letter of the 27th of last April is now answered. May God have you in his keeping many years.

"FUERTO, May 9, 1825.

"TOMAS ESCALANTE, Deputy Secretary.

Here is proof that some time earlier than May 9, 1825, Sonora was claiming to own the vacant lands in her limits, basing this claim on article 11 of the law of August 4, 1824. This is the source of her authority, as habitually claimed by her officers and acquiesced in by the Mexican nation for the succeeding twenty-eight years.

The document shows, moreover, that this claim of ownership was specifically brought for a decision before the general government of Mexico.

As the Sonora legislature pointedly observed, the prolonged silence of the General Government amounted to a sanction of such claim.

There are other documents fully as strong as the foregoing. We submit the following from the official records at Hermosillo:

It is to be observed that the interested party, Don Jose Antonio Garcia, at the time of making said payment, of which a receipt was given him for his protection, stated that the cause of the delay was caused only by employing a man who did not comply with his duty in time, although he had been employed ever since the year 1825. Here the commissary general, who had in 1825 communicated to the General Government, of which he was a chief officer, the assertion of the claim of Sonora, six years afterwards declares in express terms the law to be that such claim is valid. After the law of the classification of revenues went into effect the General Government, which theretofore had been taking the revenues from sales of public lands, conceded that further revenues from such lands belonged to Sonora, and in fact the General Government ceased collecting such revenues, and the State sold lands as the Federation had done before this law went into effect.

The statement does not seem too strong that it would not be possible to find a clearer exposition of the meaning of the law of August 4, 1824.

The report made by the Government agents of the condition of the archives or records of land grants in Arizona and similar grants in Mexico affords the most ample proof, both that the actions of the State officials were known to the Federal officers and that such actions were regarded as lawful. For instance, one case out of many is the following:

"102. Canada del Valle de Sonora.

"The original expediente is in the archives. The proceedings begin February 21, 1830, with petition of Francisco Duran to Treasurer General Gaxiola. Payment made March 31, 1830.

"Nothing further done until January 20, 1837, when Duran petitioned the treasurer general for title.

"An endorsement over the signature of Treasurer General Milla states that final title was issued April 21, 1837.

"The book of Toma de Razon for 1837 is in the archives, and contains an entry of this title on page 2 of leaf 44."

Here it appears that the lands were sold by the State officials and payment made to such State authorities on March 31, 1830. Afterwards application for final title was made to the treasurer general at the time when Sonora was a department and the treasurer general was a federal officer, under the obligation to report to the General Government. A fee was due on the issue of this final title which went to the revenues of the department. A fuller recognition than this by the General Government of the validity of the sale made by the State could not well be suggested.

It is submitted that the proof is irresistible that State grants made at the time of the one in this case were made with the "express order and sanction of the general powers." The express order is found in article 11 of the law of August 4, 1824, and the sanction is shown by direct approval, as well as by the acquiescence of the government with full knowledge of all the facts. Such grants are therefore not embraced within the Santa Anna decree.

Counsel states in his brief that no "so-called attorney general of the Mexican nation ever pronounced one of these titles good and valid."

It is submitted that the government's own report shows otherwise. For instance, in grant No. 107 the proceedings begin with petition to State Treasurer General Mendoza April 1, 1835. Reference to attorney general, March 8, 1837. Payment, May 17, 1837, and final title issued on same day. On March 8, 1837, Sonora was a department and the attorney general was a Mexican (Federal) attorney general under the central system, and he, as such officer of the General Government, must have approved the prior proceedings or the sale would not have been made. Mendoza, who acted as an officer of the department in signing the endorsement that final title was issued, had previously been a State official. He was an officer of the highest standing, having served under the several forms of government from prior to the revolution to 1840 (Official Report, p. 95). He presumably would know his own laws, as he was at one time promotor fiscal or attorney general. He never questioned the validity of the actions of the State. On the contrary, he gave such proceedings his express sanction.

The official report of the government shows (pp. 83, 87) that on February 23, 1839, Mendoza, who was then superior chief of the treasury, sent to his superior officer a communication which was laid before the President in person. This communication shows both that the laws of the old State of Sonora were known, because they were specifically enumerated, and also that the department was selling lands as the State had done. No reference is made to any colonization laws.

The record in this case shows, at page 199, that the honorable congress of the Mexican nation had been communicated with regarding these very grants. We submit this as actual knowledge on the part of the general powers.

Location of this Grant.

The record of the survey shows (Rec., p. 107) that the west center monument "ended upon the same valley fronting the Huachuca mountains." The map shows that these mountains run northeast and southwest, and are almost wholly in the United States, only the very smallest part extending across the international boundary line into Mexico. The center of the west line of the grant is therefore forever fixed in the United States. The center monument of the east line "ended upon the valley and fronting the Mule mountains, "which mountains (see testimony of Flipper, Rec., p. 73) do not cross the boundary line into Mexico." This monument is therefore also unquestionably located in the United States, and the central or initial point of the grant is in a straight line between the west center and the east center monuments, and therefore located beyond question of removal. We submit that the whole tract is identified too clearly to admit of valid criticism. The petition, as shown, was not for a specific quantity, but for a tract, and the tract was surveyed and the grantee took possession of the land so segregated by the survey. The excess over four sitios is only slight in view of the crude means of surveying and the roughness of the country.

At page 104 of the official report of the Government is quoted the law of Sonora of May 12, 1835, which provides that those are holders in good faith (art. 2) "who, under the boundaries set out in their proceedings of survey, occupy any overplus of lands, to which they are always entitled, even when the overplus is shown, without other obligation than to pay for the excess according to the quality of the land and at the price that governed when it was surveyed and appraised."

The delivery of official or juridical possession of the lands so segregated by this survey is conclusive of the boundaries and extent of the tract granted under the well-settled rules applicable to delivery of juridical possession as set out in the many cases in which that question has been passed on by this Court. In addition to the fact that the boundaries are thus settled by this official delivery of possession, it appears from the law just quoted that these grantees are to be regarded as holders in good faith. Having taken actual possession, such possession would be presumed to continue, and under the laws of Mexico in ten years the grantees would by prescription have acquired title to the whole of the tract, even if all of it had not been originally sold to them. By the laws of Spain prescription for the period of ten years has the same effect as twenty years by the common law (Mitchell vs. U. S., 9 Pet., 761). "A title with fixed boundaries, though containing more than the grants call for, may be sustained by prescription against the sovereign" (Hall, section 56). The plan of Iguala and the treaty of Cordova provided that the junta should govern in conformity with the existing laws in everything not opposed to the plan of Iguala, which itself declared that the new government should be a moderate monarchy in substantial conformity to the Spanish constitution. The circular issued on the 25th of May, 1838, by the Minister of the Interior of the Mexican Nation and approved by the President (found in 3rd vol., Compiled Laws of Mexico, p. 557) provides the following exposition of the laws of Mexico:

"It must be principally noted that there are in force all such laws as are not openly inconsistent with the prevailing system, and unless they are found to have been expressly repealed by any other subsequent disposition, this rule also holding good in regard to those laws which were decreed (passed) in the very remote epochs and under the different forms of government which the nation has had, and that therefore the courts and other authorities daily transact their various duties under the existence of the laws of the Cortes of Spain, of the laws of Partidas and Compilation, as long as this disposition is not repugnant, more or less, to the form of government in which they were sanctioned."

There is nothing in the Spanish law of prescription inconsistent with the new form which the government assumed after the revolution, and as the law of prescription was never repealed in terms, or even by the remotest implication, it is submitted that it clearly remained in force after the revolution. It follows, therefore, that not only would a grantee acquire by prescription title to all the land within the metes and bounds of his grant, but also that a holder in good faith under a title emanating from the State of Sonora would in ten years acquire title to the land as against the General Mexican government. In this view of the case these grantees acquired vested rights long before the Santa Anna decree, and it is not claimed that even Santa Anna could by his edict go to the extent of divesting vested rights.

Mr Flipper, who testified for the Government in this case as in all the others, went over this grant "in a carriage" (Rec., p. 76); "had no tape or chain" (ibid.); "did not make any measurements" (ibid.); "estimated the distances" (Rec., p. 77); testifies "that is my estimate; I do not say that absolutely" (Rec., p. 78); was estimating the distance "by the distance the horses could go" (Rec., p. 80); his statements as to the map were on "his estimate" (Rec., p. 81).

Respectfully submitted.

In the Supreme Court of the United States.

OCTOBER TERM, 1897.

JUAN PEDRO CAMOU, APPELLANT,	} No. 28.
v.
THE UNITED STATES.

APPEAL FROM THE COURT OF PRIVATE LAND CLAIMS.

STATEMENT, ABSTRACT, AND BRIEF.

On the 3d of December, 1891, JUAN PEDRO CAMOU, claiming to be the owner in fee of the private land claim situated in the county of Cochise and territory of Arizona, commonly known as the SAN RAFAEL DEL VALLE GRANT, filed his petition for the confirmation of the same, alleging it to contain a little over twenty thousand acres.

On the 21st day of February, 1893, plaintiff filed an amended petition, upon which the cause was tried. (R., 6-9.)

There does not appear to be an answer on behalf of the government in the record. As my recollection now serves me, the answer of the government was merely a general denial of the allegations of the petition, and under the act of March 3, 1891, the court was bound to investigate the matter whether or not any answer had been filed on behalf of the United States, and treating the answer of the United States as a general denial the case was tried.

In the amended petition it is alleged that the petitioner is the owner in fee of the tract of land in the county of Cochise, in the territory of Arizona, in the San Pedro Valley, on both sides of the river, between the range of mountains known as the Huachuca mountains and the range known as the Mule mountains, the southern boundary line being about six miles north of the southern boundary of the territory of Arizona, its northern boundary about ten miles southwesterly from the city of Tombstone and about three miles southerly from the old town of Charleston.

Then follows the description of the grant as contained in the survey made by Mr. Roskruge.

Plaintiff claims the land by purchase under divers mesne conveyances from the original grantee, and alleges that at the date of the acquisition of said territory by the United States said title was complete and perfect.

That the grant was made and patent issued therefor to Rafael Elias under and by virtue of article 11 of the sovereign decree No. 70 of the general congress of the republic of Mexico of the 4th of August, 1824, and said patent was issued to said Rafael Elias on the 25th of December, 1832, by José Maria Mendoza, treasurer-general of the state of Sonora, in accordance with the above decree and law No. 30 of the 20th of May, 1825, of the state of Sonora and Sinaloa, regulating the system of selling the public lands.

That the condition imposed upon the grantee and his successors was that they should keep, settle, and protect said lands, without their being deserted or abandoned for any time, and in case total abandonment took place for three consecutive years, and anyone petitioned for them, upon the fact being proven, they would be declared public lands and regranted in favor of the highest bidder, except when the abandonment be occasioned by the notorious invasion of the public enemies.

It is alleged that the grantors and predecessors in interest of the petitioner, upon issuance of the patent, duly entered into the possession of said granted premises, settled and occupied the same according to said conditions.

That no breach of the conditions of said grant was ever claimed by the republic of Mexico; that said grant had been duly located and recorded in the archives of Mexico, prior to the 25th day of September, referred to in article VI of the Gadsden treaty; that the grantors and predecessors in interest of the petitioner were the owners of said grant at the time of the adoption of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo and were citizens of the Mexican republic. That the grant in question, according to the survey and map made by George D. Roskrige on June 21, 1891, contains 20,034.62 acres, which map is filed as an exhibit in the case.

Several persons are named in the petition as being in possession of portions of said grant otherwise than by lease or permission of the petitioner.

It is further alleged that the claim had been presented to the surveyor-general of the territory of Arizona, pursuant to an act of congress, approved July 15, 1870, and Departmental Instructions of January 5, 1877; that under said authority the surveyor-general examined into the validity of said grant, authorized a survey thereof, reported thereon favorably, and recommended the confirmation of said grant by congress. The petitioner prays that the validity of the grant may be inquired into by the court. (R., 6-9.)

This claim is based upon a certified copy of a testimonio (Spanish, see R., 96—translation, see R., 104) offered in evidence by the plaintiff, from which it appears that Joaquin Elias, on behalf of Don Rafael Elias, presented his petition to the treasurer-general of the state of Sonora, stating that, needing land for stock purposes, he asked for the public lands adjacent to the ranch of San Pedro, within the jurisdiction of Santa Cruz, as far as the place called Tres Alamos, binding himself to make good to the nation the duties which belong to it, and whatever else might be just to acquire the title deeds and a confirmation thereof. This petition is dated at Arizpe, March 12, 1827. (R., 105.)

On July 1, 1827, the treasurer-general, Nicolas Maria Gaxiola, issued an order directed to the alcalde of the police of Santa Cruz, empowering him, without prejudice to any third party who might have a better right, and previously summoning the adjacent owners, to proceed to survey, appraise, and offer at public sale for thirty consecutive days, the lands indicated in the foregoing petition, acting strictly in all things in accordance with the sovereign decree of the constituent congress of the state, No. 30, of May 20, 1825, and the regulations attached to it, and upon completing the proceedings he should transmit the same to the treasury, giving notice to the bidders that they may present themselves, either in person or by attorney, at the auction that would take place after the three public auctions provided by law. (R., 105.)

In obedience to said order, at the presidio of Santa Cruz, on August 20, 1827, Pablo Fraijo, constitutional alcalde of the police of the presidio of Santa Cruz, executed the act of obedience, wherein he states that he would go to the ranch of San Pedro in order to proceed with the survey of the lands petitioned for—that is, those that are petitioned for by the said Rafael Elias, whose survey must be made separately from those that have to be made for the other petitioners, whose entries are made jointly and appear in the copy of the writing with which these proceedings begin. (R., 106.)

[NOTE AND EXPLANATION.—It is proper to explain that the original petition under which were made this grant (San Rafael del Valle) and the grant in controversy in case No. 30, Robert Perrin v. United States (San Ygnacio del Babocómari), and also the San Juan de Las Boquillas y Nogales grant, which has not yet been tried by the Court of Private Land Claims, was a joint petition on behalf of Rafael Elias, Ygnacio Elias Gonzales, Nepomuceno Felix, and Ygnacio and Eulalia Elias for the “public lands adjacent to the ranch of San Pedro, within the jurisdiction of Santa Cruz, as far as the place called Tres Alamos." Attached to the expediente on file in the archives at Hermosillo in the San Ygnacio del Babocómari grant is the original petition signed by Joaquín Elias for all of these parties who are named in the petition. (See case No. 30. Robert Perrin v. United States, R., 63 [Spanish], and R., 72 [translation].).

The petition which appears in the expediente in this case (San Rafael del Valle grant) is but a copy of the original petition which appears in the expediente of the Babocómari case, and in this copy all of the names of the original petitioners are erased save the name of Rafael Elias, and the petition is signed by Joaquín Elias for him. The copy of the petition as it appears attached to the expediente in this case (San Rafael del Valle), in the archives at Hermosillo, is as follows, its exact appearance, with the erasures and interlineations, being shown:

NOTE BY PRINTER.—Words inclosed in brackets [] erased in original.

The petition attached to the expediente in the archives at Hermosillo in the Boquillas y Nogales case (above referred to) is a copy of the original petition of the parties jointly for the "public lands adjacent to the ranch of San Pedro, within the jurisdiction of Santa Cruz, as far as the place called Tres Alamos," and is the same as in this case (San Rafael del Valle) without the erasures and interlineations, in neither of which is the petition attached to the expediente original.

This note of explanation will probably give a better understanding of the recitals in the act of obedience of the alcalde, Pablo Fraijo. (R., 106.)]

The alcalde proceeded to appoint counters, tallymen, and chainmen, and they were citizens Manrico Niera, José Samaniego, Manuel Soto, and Camilo Arvisu, who were duly qualified, and after examining the interested party and the adjacent owners, the survey proceeded. (R., 106.)

The proceedings of survey state that at the place called San Rafael del Valle, on the 21st day of August, 1827, in order to begin the survey of the lands to be taken up by the citizen Rafael Elias a cord of fifty varas was prepared and poles tied at either end. The center point taken was at a place where "there are some small hills," and, taking the direction of the south, there were measured and counted two hundred cords, which ended at the limits of the San Pedro ranch, and the superintendent of said ranch being present, exhibited documents which showed that his survey extended up to that point, a monument of which standing there was taken as the boundary of one and the other of the interested parties.

After returning to the center monument, a northerly direction was taken, "measuring and counting two hundred cords, which ended upon a valley where there is a small calcareous knoll, where I ordered to be placed a heap of stones as a monument." (R., 107.)

Having again returned to the center, there were measured and counted toward the east fifty cords, "which ended upon a valley and fronting the Mule mountains, and where I put a heap of stones as a sign of a monument."

Having again returned to the center, there was measured toward the west fifty cords, which ended upon the same valley, fronting toward the Huachuca mountains, where there was put a heap of stones as a sign of a monument.

Having squared the measurements, there resulted four sitios for the raising of cattle and horses in favor of the aforesaid citizen, Rafael Elias, with which he was satisfied, and he took possession of the land so segregated, and was informed that at the proper time he was to mark his limits by monuments of stone and mortar, as provided by law. (R., 106-107.)

At the conclusion of the survey, the testimonio states that immediately thereafter the alcalde proceeded to the appraisement of the land through experts, who were Manuel Soto and Camilo Arvisu, who, having taken the oath in conformity with the superior regulations in the premises, adjudged the value of the four sitios to be two hundred and forty dollars, at the rate of sixty dollars each, because they had running water, and with this appraisement the alcalde put them up at auction, asking for bidders, for thirty consecutive days, from August 30 to September 28, 1827, and there being no bidders, the proceedings were closed. By order of the 30th of the same month, after summoning the interested party, the alcalde remitted the proceedings to the treasury-general, to be put up at auction, which by the decree of February 7, 1828, were placed before the fiscal attorney, whose opinion follows. (R., 107.)

The report of attorney-general Brena, dated February 7, 1828, states that there are extensive defects in the proceedings, but as they do not present any great obstacle he omits comment upon them, and says he "only finds it strange that no use was made of the compass in making the survey, as this instrument is indispensable to follow a route, so that to survey the land over again for want of this requisite is to enter into difficulties and greatly to injure the claimant, for which reason the fiscal attorney, there being no contestants that show any damage to third parties, is of the opinion that this fault be overlooked, and that the proceedings be continued to adjudication, according to the forms and requisites in use." (R., 108.)

The testimonio then states that the treasurer-general was satisfied with the foregoing report of the fiscal attorney, and by order of April 16 proceeded with the three public almonedas on the 16th, 17th, and 18th, asking for bidders, and there appearing none, the four sitios for raising cattle and horses at the place San Rafael del Valle were auctioned off in favor of Rafael Elias, as appears by the last almoneda which follows. (R., 108.)

The third almoneda recites that the board having convened, they proceeded to the last auction for the four sitios of land to which the prior proceedings referred, and there being no other bidder, the same was sold to Elias; further reciting, "in these terms these proceedings concluded, the four sitios of land for raising cattle and horses being publicly and solemnly auctioned off in favor of the interested party in the sum of two hundred and forty dollars, for which they were appraised," and the same is signed by the members of the board. (R., 108-109.)

A further recital is made that the attorney for Elias, Tiburcio Gomez, proceeded to pay into the treasury two hundred and forty dollars in which the four sitios at the place of San Rafael del Valle had been auctioned off as appears by the certificate which follows. (R., 109.)

The certificate of the treasurer-general states that he has entered in the book of the treasury for the current year, on folio 14, the charge for grant of lands, two hundred and forty dollars, paid by Don Tiburcio Gomez in the name of Don Rafael Elias, for the grant of four sitios of land for the raising of cattle and horses in the place named San Rafael del Valle, in the jurisdiction of the presidio of Santa Cruz, each sitio having been appraised at the rate of sixty dollars on account of having running water; and the same is signed by Gaxiola and Tiburcio Gomez. (R., 109.)

Then follows the certificate of the treasurer-general, Gaxiola, dated April 21, 1828, concluding the proceedings.

This concluded the proceedings for 1828, and so far as the testimonio is concerned, there is nothing appearing to show why title was not issued at that time.

Immediately following is the grant or patent by which the treasurer-general of the state of Sonora, on December 25, 1832, seeks to extend the title, stating that the proceedings were concluded with all the requisites and formalities provided by law and remained in the custody of the treasurer-general as a perpetual monument of title: Wherefore, in the exercise of the faculties conferred upon him by law, and in the name of the sovereign state of Sonora, he granted in due form of law the four sitios of land for the raising of cattle and horses comprised in the locality of San Rafael del Valle, situated in the jurisdiction of the presidio of Santa Cruz, in favor of the citizen, Rafael Elias, to whom he conceded, gave and adjudged the said land by way of sale, with the condition and permanency established by the law, for himself and his successors, with the injunction and condition that he must keep said sitios occupied and settled, without letting them be abandoned or deserted for any time, with the understanding that if they be abandoned for the period of three consecutive years, and there should be any person to petition for them, in such event, with previous proof made of the fact, they would be declared public lands and granted anew to the highest bidder, excepting in such cases where the abandonment is caused by the notorious invasion of the public enemies, admonishing said Elias and his successors that they must keep and confine themselves to the lands and limits as marked precisely in the foregoing proceedings of survey, and comply exactly with article 30 of law No. 30 of May 20, 1825, which imposes obligations to mark the metes and boundaries with monuments of stone and mortar. (R., 109-110.)

Indorsed thereon is the following memorandum: "A memorandum of this present title is entered in the proper book kept in the archives of the treasury-general."

This title was evidently issued under and in pursuance of the order of governor Bustamante, dated Arizpe, April 29, 1833, which is numbered 762 (R., 111), wherein he states that there was auctioned off on April 18 and December 24, 1828, the properties of San Rafael del Valle, San Juan de las Boquillas y Nogales, and San Ygnacio del Bavocómari, situated in the jurisdiction of Santa Cruz, to the citizen Rafael Elias, owner of the first of said properties; Captain Ygnacio Elias Gonzales and Nepomuceno Felix, of the second; and Ygnacio and Eulalia Elias, for the third; having shown that it was no fault of theirs that the treasurer-general of the state that was once united had not issued them their respective titles, and from which office they demanded them anterior to July 10, 1830, he would proceed to issue said titles in accordance to what is provided in decree No. 27, of August 11, 1827.

We deem it proper at this point to call attention to the fact that Gaxiola, the treasurer-general in 1828, failed to issue the title, giving his reasons therefor in his communication of April 25, 1828 (Defendant's Exhibit "A," R., 199), wherein he states that the corresponding title could not be issued until the honorable congress determined the question propounded by the supreme government of the state in regard to the issue of these documents.

It is admitted on behalf of the government that the expediente of this grant is on file in the archives at Hermosillo and is in the usual form; that although the grant was dated December 25, 1832, the toma de razon was not made nor the title delivered until May 8, 1833. (See certificate of toma de razon, R., 112.)

It will be noticed from the petition for the grant and the survey that the location of the San Pedro ranch is important and necessary. It has been contended by the government that the location of the San Pedro grant is entirely within the republic of Mexico, and that there is an excess (demasias) over the cabida legal between the north line of said grant and the international boundary line. It is also contended by the government that the center monument, called for in the survey of the San Rafael del Valle grant, can not be found.

The case of Robert Perrin v. United States, No. 27, for the confirmation of the San Ygnacio del Babocómari grant, is in all respects, with the exception of the grantee and the land granted, similar to this case. In the expediente of the Babocómari grant appears the original petition, of which the petition in this case is a copy, with the erasures and interlineations, as before stated. In the Babocómari case, however, the survey is alleged to have been made by an "expert surveyor," appointed by the alcalde. The contentions on behalf of the government as to matters of law and fact are identical in both cases, save the additional contention by the government in the Babocómari case that the grant is void for want of proper description, and on account of inability to locate the same. In both cases it is contended that the grants have never been located, as provided by the sixth article of the treaty of 1853.

R. C. HOPKINS testified on behalf of the plaintiffs, and his testimony may be included in an admission by the government that the expediente on file is in the usual form; that the signatures, so far as the government is able to determine, are genuine; that the toma de razon of the same exists in the proper book in the proper archives. (R., 29-35.)

The plaintiffs introduced in evidence a large number of documents showing the deraignment of title from the original grantee to Camou. (R., 35.)

GEORGE G. ROSKRUGE testified on behalf of the plaintiffs that he has resided in Arizona for twenty-two years and has been a surveyor by occupation for twenty years. Made a survey of the tract of land known as the San Rafael del Valle grant in May or June, 1891, at the request of Mr. Camou. There were with him John W. Taylor, Ed. Wood, Douglas Snyder, and a portion of the time Max Marx; also the son of counsel, Mr. Herring, and Mr. Camou part of the time. He had a translation of a certified copy of the expediente with him; went down the valley of the San Pedro river, covering a point from Charleston running south to San Pedro, in Mexico; went all over the valley and looked for what was described in the expediente as a hill or mountain in the center of the valley as a central point, which he failed to find; then went to the limy hill, where he finally found a monument on top and a post in it that had been set there and marked by Mr. Charles M. Allis, deputy United States surveyor, who made a survey of the grant for the United States government. This post which he found in the monument on the summit of the limy hill was the north center of the grant as called for in the expediente, and there was no other limy hill in the whole neighborhood. Witness states that he never saw anything located "differently" in his life. It looked like a lot of burnt lime, calcareous, or whatever it might be called. The whole top was covered with a limy formation, like cinders, and there were stones broken and fractured all around.

He ran from there north eighty-five degrees east six thousand two hundred and four feet to the summit of a hill where he found a monument. It was an old monument, which he took to be the monument of the grant, it being very near to what he would call at right angles to the center line of the grant coming up the valley.

He then came back to the limy hill and ran north eighty-one degrees west six thousand six hundred feet, where he found another monument of stone. It looked like an old monument, but it was not as high or as big as the one at the east.

Having found these two monuments, he next ran down the valley to find, if he could, from the papers he had, the north boundary of the ranch of San Pedro, which was called for in the expediente as being the southern boundary of the grant; chained down through the center of the valley; had a translation of the San Pedro grant and went to a monument that he supposed to be the center of the grant. That monument was a square-built monument, the best monument the witness had ever seen in Arizona except the boundary monuments. It was built of stones and had the appearance of being built by a mechanic and not thrown loosely together, but it was a regularly square-built monument. It was within the boundary of the United States. Witness then went to Ochoaville, where there were old ruins which he says answered the description called for in the expediente as going to the northeast; witness refers to the call in the San Pedro expediente. He found a lot of ruins on the bank of the San Pedro river and found an old monument of stones. Then he ran farther on toward the northeast and found two little hills. This old monument which he found at the San Pedro river he believes to be one of the monuments of the San Pedro grant as called for.

He then continued his line until he came to a place out from the valley which answered the description of the little hills, and they were the only little hills that he found in the whole valley that would answer the description. He then ran over and found a stone monument which is called for in the San Pedro expediente. Witness gives the caution here (R., 39): "I am running out the San Pedro expediente now from the center north-east." He then went to the Bachata cañon, a point in the San Pedro, and had no difficulty in finding this cañon, which is large and well defined. There he found a monument, but not having a certified copy of the expediente with him at that time, and having no one with him who could tell him that it was the Bachata cañon, he left and came back to Tucson and notified counsel that he wanted a certified copy of the expediente and would return with witnesses who could tell him whether that was the Bachata cañon and whether those were the points called for in the expediente. Witness subsequently returned to the valley to continue his survey, and there appeared before him as witnesses to the name Bachata applied to the cañon an old Mexican by the name of Gonzales and another by the name of Concepcion Elias.

Mr. Douglass accompanied him on the second trip. He stated he went to the monument so well built, the center of the San Pedro, and asked the Mexicans what monument it was, to which they replied that they did not know, but it had been there a long time, ever since they could remember. Witness pointed to the line monument and asked them what it was, and they said it was a line monument; that one of the Mexican witnesses was a soldier when that monument was built; the square monument was there several years before the line monument was built. Witness asked them to take him to the ruins, and at the ford—crossing below the ruins—Mr. Snyder and himself chained the distance up to the old ruins. Saw no other old ruins in the valley except these.

He asked if there were any other old ruins in the valley, and the Mexicans replied that there were none, only away down below Fairbanks. At the request of the witness the Mexicans took him to the ford and said that it was the old crossing; they could trace the old ruins all over the ground. There was a Texan living on the bank of the river, having been there a long time, but he does not remember his name. From there they went over to the little hills, which could be seen from there—they were stony hills. Witness then requested the Mexicans to take him to the brushy place mentioned in the expediente, and as it was all brush they could not find anything, but they were sure they were on the right track. Witness asked them to take him to the Bachata Cañon, and they took him to the place where he had been before and said that it was the Bachata cañon. That gave him good reason to believe that he had found the northeast corner of the San Pedro grant. In the cañon they found an old big monument of stones, and in looking near it they could trace out that it had originally been a monument, built up square; but the foundation was coming out, similar to the other one, but that it had fallen down.

Witness produced a photograph of what he calls the initial monument of the San Pedro. The witness also presented a photograph of the little limy or calcareous hill. (Exhibits 9 and 10.)

Witness presented and identified photograph of the monument found in the Bachata cañon, being the northeast monument of the San Pedro grant, which was marked Exhibit 11.

Exhibit 12 was a view looking down the Bachata Cañon from the northeast corner of the San Pedro grant.

Exhibit 13 was a second view of the initial monument of the San Pedro grant.

Exhibit 14 was a photograph of the monument at the northeast corner of the San Rafael del Valle grant.

Exhibit 15 was a photograph of the northwest corner monument of the San Rafael de Valle grant.

Having found the Bachata monument and cañon, he then ran due west to the center of the valley, right to the San Pedro river, and, finding nothing, projected the line further west and searched on the plain, but could not find a single thing. Witness put a post on the north line of the San Pedro grant, which was used as a base line, which was 13,100 feet from the monument in the Bachata cañon down to the San Pedro river. He then ran from the north center down to this point, which he marked as the south center. Witness ran other lines between these all around the fences in the grant.

Witness produced and identified a photograph of the San Pedro grant monument on the rocky hill in front of the Sierra de Huachuca, marked Exhibit 16.

Exhibit 17 was a photograph produced by him "of hills on the east side of the San Pedro river, Pyatt's house at the foot of the hill, 'the line terminating in the valley at the skirt of a hill (quoting from the expediente), at the distance therefrom of three cords, where I caused a corner monument to be placed;' it is looking southwest."

Exhibit 18 was a photograph produced and identified by the witness as of the "Sierra de Huachuca," from the monument on the rocky hill in front of the Huachuca mountains.

Exhibit 19 was a photograph "showing the Huachuca mountains in the rear."

Exhibit 20 was a photograph produced and identified by the witness as "View looking from the post S. R. G. No. 8 to old N. E. corner monument of San Rafael del Valle P. L. C. monument on hill in center."

Statements were taken from the Mexican witnesses who were there by one of the counsel. There were also present Douglass Snyder and Mr. Marks, but he does not remember the others. (These statements were offered in evidence, but as the government had the witnesses present they were excluded.)

Witness made a calculation of the area within the lines which he surveyed and described, and it amounted to 20,034.62 acres; also made a map from the data which he obtained by this survey. Witness identifies the map and says it is a correct delineation of what he saw and found upon the various points described by him. (Exhibit 21, R., 196.)

This is the testimony in chief of Mr. Roskrug, who is the same gentleman who testified in the Sonoita case and made the survey, and in making it paid no attention to distances and quantity called for, and but little attention to the directions, and he evidently made this survey in the same manner.

On cross-examination, he states that he had the expediente; he undertook to retrace the steps of the prior survey, but he did not undertake to make the measurement, because, as he says, he could not find the center.

monument; he hunted all over the country for it without finding it, and is unable to explain why he did not go to the north line of the San Pedro grant to start with, in order to measure back and find the center monument. Witness states that in hunting the north line of the San Pedro grant to find the south boundary of the San Rafael del Valle, he located the line in the United States, and is satisfied that it is inside; thinks that the center monument of the San Pedro grant is half a mile inside of the United States line—that is, what he believes to be the center monument. He went to what he supposed to be the initial monument of the San Pedro grant, and his survey of the San Rafael del Valle is based upon the fact that he located this initial monument of the San Pedro grant in the United States. Witness is unwilling to admit that his survey is wrong provided the initial monument of the San Pedro grant should turn out to be ten miles south of the international boundary line. Witness did not find any limestone hills located along the San Pedro, and did not see anything which looked like them. He went all over the country down to where the custom-house is; went clear down to Mexico on the San Pedro ranch, but did not find any limestone hills there.

On further cross-examination, going over the expediente with the witness, he states (R., 45-46):

Q. Now let us go over the expediente. It says in the presence of the interested party the measurement was begun at a place where there were several small hills.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you find that point?

A. That is the point I told you I did not find.

Q. You did not?

A. No, sir.

Q. Then, "continuing a south course, there were measured and counted two hundred cords, the line terminating at the line of the rancho of San Pedro;" did you find the rancho of San Pedro near that line?

A. I found the rancho of San Pedro away down in Mexico.

Q. Did you undertake to find whether there were some small hills north of that? You say you found the rancho San Pedro south of the line.

A. I found a ranch called San Pedro; yes, sir.

Q. And did you find any small hills north of that ranch?

A. I don't recollect of any small hills north of that ranch until I come up this side of the line, probably about a mile, and then there were some small hills.

Q. Would they have answered this call?

A. Well, it would have been a terrible stretch if they did.

Q. Wouldn't they come as near answering this call as a pile of stones answers your monuments out there?

A. No, sir.

Q. How far did you continue north before you located these hills?

A. Which do you refer to?

Q. I am speaking of the small hills at which the survey is located.

A. I never found any.

Q. There were some small hills north of the San Pedro ranch—as you found the ranch in Mexico—at the time.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. (Reading:) "And in his name was present the administrator of said rancho, with documents showing that his measurement extended to that point, etc. Returning to the center, the course was run to the north two hundred cords, which terminated in the same valley at a point where there is a small limy hill." Now, how far north from the San Pedro ranch do you locate this small limestone hill?

A. As near as I can tell, probably a good twenty-five miles from the San Pedro ranch.

Q. And that you take as the north center monument?

A. Yes, sir; that is what I take it for and believe it to be.

Q. Twenty-five miles north of the San Pedro ranch you found a little limestone hill (interrupted)——

By Mr. HERRING:

Q. Are you speaking of the ranch or the ranch house now?

A. I am talking about the San Pedro custom-house. That is the only San Pedro I know. That is eight or ten miles below the line; where Mr. Elias lives.

Witness states the little limestone hill is fifteen or twenty miles north of the international boundary line. He found a monument there, and at that point was twenty-five miles north from the ranch house of the San Pedro ranch. States that he hunted for the monument which the expediente says was fifty cords east from the center and terminating in the valley in front of the Mule mountains, but did not find it. He believes that he ran a line and it brought him somewhere on the mesa. The Mule mountains were eight or ten miles away and he did not find any pile of stones there. The west center monument which the expediente locates as fifty cords west of the center terminating in the same valley, in front of the cordillera of the Sierra de Huachuca, at which place a pile of stones was placed for a monument, he did not find, although they all hunted for it. He ran a line from the north center monument fifty cords west, but he did not find the monument.

As to the manner in which he made his survey, he says he came down the river and ran a line from the limy hill south on his plat, and taking the distance called for in the expediente, fifty cords, measuring them out, he drew his lines from the northeast and southeast down, showing what he believed to be the land covered by that expediente between the San Pedro and the limy hill, and that he paid no attention to the area designated in the expediente. Says he designated the first course that he laid off from the north center monument by platting and had no instrument. He ran down on Allis's course ten and a half miles and found the place for the monument and checked back on it, and from there he ran farther south, connecting with a flag that he left on the bank of the river, which he put there after running east from the Bachata cañon. He took as a basis for his survey the monument established by Mr. Allis with a pole in it, on the top of a hill.

Witness states that he established the subordinate points, but was unable to establish the initial point; he did not try to establish it, however, but looked all over the country for it and did not find it as described in the expediente. As a matter of fact, he states that he could not find any such initial monument as called for in the expediente in the valley of San Pedro and included within his survey; says the expediente is without any initial point so far as he is able to determine; at least, he could not find it. Witness attempted to find the little hills called for as the center monument, going up the San Pedro valley toward the ranch, and the only ones he could find were those called for in the San Pedro grant, the second course from the ford, and he supposed they were one of the monuments of the San Pedro ranch; says he could not tell anything along the whole valley that would answer the calls for the initial point; that he did not determine the north center monument by any measure, but just took it arbitrarily and went right to it, as he could not get a measurement from anywhere. He did not run the outside lines of the grant; he simply ran the end lines and then squared it. Says he believes the San Pedro grant is in Arizona; he knows where it is down below. Elias had leased a lot of land on this side of the line and Mrs. Elias told him the north line of the San Pedro grant was above Hereford. Taking the expediente, witness says if it were necessary for him to establish the initial point, he could not make the survey. (R., 36-55.)

IGNACIO BONILLAS testified on behalf of the petitioners that he was a mining engineer and surveyor and had been for eleven years in the state of Sonora and in the territory of Arizona. Knows the international boundary line as it runs between the Huachuca mountains on the west and the Mule mountains on the east, and he finds that the line runs through the southern extremity of the Huachuca mountains and does not touch the Mule mountains at all, leaving them to the north.

Being made the witness of the United States, he testified that he had made a survey of the San Pedro Palominas ranch, lying south of the line; that his survey was simply a resurvey of the survey made by Pedro Bamolera and he used his map and field notes, AND LOCATED THE RANCH SOUTH OF THE INTERNATIONAL BOUNDARY LINE. There was a surplus or demasias south of this line. Witness identifies a map made by himself and states that it is correct, showing the location of the San Pedro ranch as Mr. Bamolera gave it and according to the resurvey which he made of it.

Going down the San Pedro river, he states, there is a row of hills, which he would call lomas, along the river, but not all the way; they are located in different places, but not continuously; they come up to the international boundary line and they are along the San Pedro river, which runs up into Arizona. Witness's map (above referred to) is a correct location of his resurvey, and the lines were verified by himself. He states that he found some mistakes in the original survey and that was the reason he was appointed to make the resurvey; that THE SAN PEDRO GRANT AS LOCATED BY BAMOLERA, AND RELOCATED BY HIM, IS ENTIRELY WITHIN OLD MEXICO, AND THE MAP IS CORRECT. This map was offered in evidence by the government and will be found in the record. (P. 200.)

On cross-examination he states that he did not have the expediente of the San Pedro grant with him, and did not pretend to locate the calls of that grant, and does not know whether the map locates them as described in the expediente; he was appointed simply to run certain lines of and correct the survey previously made, and does not know whether the map in any respect locates the calls of the grant as expressed in the expediente, but says it is correct as to the distances and courses marked on it; has no recollection where and what the natural monument called for in the San Pedro grant is. Does not know of any other San Pedro grant in that vicinity on the San Pedro river. The original grant, or cabida legal, is supposed to be four leagues. Witness translates the term "cabida legal" to mean the area called for in the title papers of the grant. (R., 55-59.)

DOUGLASS SNYDER testified on behalf of the plaintiffs that he resided in Tucson, and in 1891 went with Roskrue to assist in the survey of the San Rafael del Valle grant. There were also there the parties known as Concepción Elias and Antonio Gonzales. They were attempting to locate either the south end of the San Rafael del Valle or the north end of the San Pedro grant. When the two Mexicans came they took them over to an old monument, partly fallen down, close to the boundary line, whereupon Roskrue asked them what that monument was, and they replied they did not know. He asked when it was put there, and he thinks Gonzales replied that he was a soldier at the time the boundary was established, and that monument was there long before that. Roskrue asked them to take them to the old ford, and they went a little beyond Ochoaville to the old ford, where they crossed the river and skirted along the small hills that lie to the east from the river, and finally arrived at what they called the Bachata cañon, and on the bank of it found quite a large monument, built of rock, which had the appearance of being built there a very long time, judging from the drift and vegetation banked around it. Witness says he has been out frequently before with surveying parties.

On cross-examination the witness states that he does not know how far this cañon is from the international boundary monument. After they crossed the river, they rode along on horseback in the brush for an hour and a half or two hours; that is as near as he could come to the distance. The old monument which was partially fallen down is probably a quarter of a mile from the international boundary line, which is in plain sight looking diagonally across the valley. The monument found in the Bachata cañon was a pile of stones. He has seen similar piles scattered over the country, but not many. Witness describes this monument as a large monument and he could not conceive why it was there. It was a good-sized monument and quite large. The stones were large at the bottom and smaller as you got to the top. At the bottom were big bowlders, probably eighteen inches in size. (R., 59-62.)

MAX MARKS testified on behalf of the plaintiffs that he lives in Sonora, but formerly lived at Tucson, in Arizona, and knows Roskruge and Douglass Snyder; was with Roskruge in 1892 on the survey and knows the country pretty well; lived for five years at the San Pedro custom-house; remembers the two Mexicans, Concepción Elias and Antonio Gonzales, being present.

When they came, the party went to what they believed to be the center initial monument of the San Pedro grant. From there they went down toward what was pointed out as the old ford, on the west bank of which, before they crossed, they found an old monument which the expediente of the San Pedro grant calls for. They crossed the river, and there were some small hills on the east side of it, and from there they went to a rocky hill where they found a monument of stones; and from there the Mexicans took them up to what was called the Bachata cañon, to which they had requested them to take them. Roskrige and the witness rode ahead and were down in the cañon, and riding up the south bank a little ways they found the monument. This was after the cañon had been pointed out to them by the Mexicans. The Bachata monument the witness describes as very large; it was not as high then as when new, having toppled over, but the base looked as well put up as when it was first placed there.

On cross-examination witness stated he went after these two Mexicans down in Sonora and found them at Santa Cruz, thirty miles away, and accounts for his securing them because he was around the Bachata cañon and a Mr. Green told him that he thought it was the Bachata cañon, but would not be sure of it; so he tried to find men who knew it was the Bachata cañon, and at San Pedro he was informed that he might find them at Santa Cruz, as there were old men there that used to live on the ranch; so he went after them and found these two men who could show him the Bachata cañon. They told him they knew exactly where it was, so he brought them up. They went to find the Bachata cañon because they were trying to establish the San Pedro grant, and it was one of the main points because it was a natural object. Witness was shown photographic Exhibit 13, and says he thinks it is the center monument of the San Pedro grant, but it is possible it may be the Bachata cañon, having only seen the picture but once before. That monument is in the United States; he could not tell the exact distance inside of the line, but from half a mile to a mile perhaps. (R., 62-64.)

CHRISTOPHER LAYTON testified on behalf of the defendants that he first came into the valley of the San Pedro in 1846, when a member of an expedition of five hundred men, independent of the officers. They came in through San Bernardino Pass, quite a distance above Contention, and went down the valley, leaving it about two miles below where the Babocómari stream comes in. Their expedition sometimes would cover a considerable stretch of territory, and there was no one living in the San Pedro valley at the time, and he never saw any signs of anyone. (R., 65.)

P. C. MERRILL testified on behalf of the defendants that he first came into the San Pedro valley in 1846, and since that time had been familiar with the valley from Benson to the international boundary line. Found no one living in the valley at the time he first came there. He came back to the valley again in 1877, and they made a halt at the Huachuca mountains, Gardiner's ranch, and found a company of United States soldiers and officers at what is now called Huachuca fort; from there they kept on south near the end of the Huachuca mountains, and he learned the names then. He came to a monument between the two republics which was very prominent and easily discovered. From information he had received from general Wasson he was very pointed in those matters. After coming to the monument he turned around and went down the valley as far as Tres Alamos, which is about four miles from the international boundary line. There was nobody living there at the time.

On cross-examination he states that the only person whom he met in going through the valley was a man by the name of Landers, who was not an actual settler any more than he was. This was in 1877. Knew a man by the name of J. H. Slaughter, who was sheriff of Cochise county, but he did not see his house or any other house in the valley in 1877, and to the best of his recollection there was no house in the San Pedro valley then. (R., 66-69.)

HENRY O. FLIPPER testified on behalf of the defendant that he was a civil engineer and employed at the time as special agent of the Department of Justice; that he was familiar with the Spanish language and had had eleven years' experience in surveying Spanish and Mexican grants in Mexico and in examining the archives and records of those grants; that he had examined the documents in the archives at Hermosillo, state of Sonora, Mexico, in relation to this grant; that the matrix or expediente is in the archives; that the expediente begins with a petition by Ygnacio Elias and Eulalia Elias, in company with Rafael Elias, captain Don Ygnacio Elias, and Nepomuceno Felix, signed by Joaquin Elias, Rafael

Elias, and Eulalia Elias; that the word "Ygnacio" is erased and "Rafael" written over it; that the Spanish words for "and Dona Eulalia Elias" and for "in company with D. Rafael Elias, captain Don Ygnacio Elias, and D. Nepomuceno Felix" have been crossed out; that in the signatures "Rafael" has been written on top of "Ygnacio" and "Eulalia Elias" crossed out; that this petition is a copy and not original; that the usual statement that the petition is admitted is omitted; that the order of Gaxiola appointing the surveyor is a copy, including the signature of Gaxiola; that the application, act of obedience, appointment of assistants, and the examination of the ground, survey and appraisement, the pregones (publications), order to approve ability to stock, etc., the declaration of witnesses, act of conclusion, and notification of Elias, are all in the same handwriting; that the signatures to the petition are all in the same handwriting, and that handwriting is the same as in the body of those writings; that the three almonedas (public offers of sale) are signed by treasurer-general Gaxiola, but not by the attorney-general, Manuel Brena; that there is a certificate of payment for two hundred and forty dollars, but nothing about the usual fees for title; that there is attached to the expediente a copy of the certificate read in the Babocómari case to the effect that the state government had consulted the supreme government and reply was awaited before the title would be issued; that an indorsement on the expediente stated that title was issued December 25, 1832, and that there was a toma de razon in the proper book, stating that title was issued to Rafael Elias Gonzales.

Mr. Flipper also testified that he had examined the large monument described by Mr. Roskruge; that it was a monument on the international boundary line, built in 1853 or 1854 by the American Boundary Commission; that he knows it was such because it was so marked when he was there in 1885; that the history of this monument is given in the report of Major Emory, and is that the American commission built it as on the line, and that when the Mexican commission arrived later it was unable to find this monument and built another about a quarter of a mile farther west; that he had retraced the line and knows where both of them are.

Witness further testified that he had investigated this grant on the ground, having a copy of the titulo and claimants' map; that he went to the north center monument, which is a post set in a pile of limestone on top of a small hill; that he went thence south down the valley hunting for the center or initial monument, but was unable to find it, as there was no place he could identify as being the place described in the expediente; that he went to the place marked on claimants' map as the south center monument, but could not find it; that he went all over the ground laid down on that map, but could find no monument or anything resembling one; that he took a man from Mr. Green's ranch there and went to the southwest corner, where there is a fence but no monument, the man saying the corner is supposed to be where the fence is, but there is none there nor anywhere in the vicinity; that he went to the southeast corner, but was unable to find anything marking that corner, although he ran out the full length of the south line from the corner of that fence; that the line he ran out was the south line as laid down on the Roskrug map; that he then returned to the north center monument on the small limy hill and went west to the northwest corner, where he found a stake which he knew to be a corner of the Wasson survey, unlike the one described on the Roskrug map; that he searched north, east, south, and west of that stake for the monument described on the map, but found nothing; that he then went to the northeast corner and there found a Wasson stake, but not the monument described on the map, although he made diligent search for it in all directions; that he investigated the valley with reference to small hills from the San Pedro ranch down; that where the north center monument is the valley narrows considerably and that this hill is on the eastern edge of the hills on the west side of the river; that the whole country there is a limestone formation, and some five or six miles south the mesa or table-land runs out into the valley again and forms two or three small hills there; that the word "hill" in the original is "loma," and all these are "lomas," and that the word "hill" does not exactly translate "loma;" that there are similar hills south of the line along the San Pedro river; that the center or initial point is described as being a small hill in the valley, and that there is no such hill anywhere in the valley between the table-lands on both sides; that he did not go to the Bachata cañon; did not examine the San Pedro grant at all; that the Huachuca mountains lie west of the river, are probably twenty or twenty-five miles long, run a little north or west from where the boundary line crosses them, and at the west end are probably ten or fifteen miles wide; that the Mule mountains are on the opposite side of the river and do not cross the boundary line, starting some three or four miles from it, the foothills running down to the line; that the east end of the Huachuca mountains cross the line, the line running over a spur of the mountain; that that range does not have the same general tendency as the river, up and down, but run from the river, diverge toward the west from south to north; that the river runs a little west of north; that the mountains diverge more than the river does, from their southern end toward the west; that he located the north center monument from the Wasson and Roskrue maps, and had no other means of locating it; that he could not find the initial point described in the expediente, although he made special search for it; that he could not take any of the subpoints and work back from one to the other and locate the initial point; that if the four hundred cords were run out from the north center monument they would not reach what is laid down on the Roskrue map as the north line of the San Pedro grant by at least ten miles; that if the four leagues were run out from the north line of the San Pedro grant, as laid down on this map, they would not reach the north center monument, and that he could not take the expediente and go and locate the initial point and survey this grant. (R., 69-74.)

On cross-examination, Mr. Flipper testified that he was accompanied in his investigation of this grant by Mr. Burnett and Mr. Haviland, and also by Mr. Herick and another man; that the monument described by him as the United States boundary monument had "W. H. E., U. S.," on the north side and the initials of the Mexican commissioner on the south side; that there are two such monuments, the south one being on the east side and the north one on the west side of the river, both built by the boundary commissions; that he did not go on the grant to survey it, but to find and identify the monuments if possible. (R., 74-82.)

On redirect examination, witness testified that in his travels over the country investigating land claims in Arizona he had never seen a monument built of stones and mortar by Mexican officials, and such monuments as he had seen are modern.

On recross-examination, he testified that his reason for believing the monuments to be modern rests on the appearance of the stones in the monument. When a stone lies on the ground the upper side acquires a color different from that of the under side, and when such stones are removed and placed in a monument the fact that they had recently been placed there is apparent from the color of that side that had laid next to the ground, and that by "modern" he means ten or fifteen years, and certainly not prior to 1853. (R., 83.)

MAX MARKS was recalled for the purpose of identifying the photograph of the initial monument of the San Pedro grant (R., 84), as also was Douglass Snyder (R., 86).

GEORGE J. ROSKRUGE was recalled on behalf of the plaintiff to further identify the photograph of what he designates as the initial monument of the San Pedro grant, and says there were no cuttings or markings on any of the stones of that monument. The remainder of his testimony is with reference to the location of the mountains and Major Emory's survey of the international boundary line and the controversy between him and the Mexican commissioner resulting in the change of the monument, which the United States contends accounts for the second monument which Roskruge and his conferees located as the north center monument of the San Pedro grant. (R., 87-92.)

THOMAS A. BORTON testified, on behalf of the plaintiff, that he resides at Tucson and has lived there since 1872; was employed in the surveyor-general's office in the years 1881 and 1882, and again in 1887. While so employed he was instructed to make the measurements in Cochise county for the boundary line. Witness had occasion to measure the distances between what is known as the town or location of Hereford, on the San Pedro river, and the boundary line, in January, 1887. The measurement was made by an odometer, and the distance between these two points was something over seven miles by the road.

On cross-examination, he states that he went there to locate the initial point of the San Pedro private land claim, BUT HE COULD NOT AND DID NOT LOCATE IT WITHIN THE UNITED STATES, and he had no authority to cross the line.

On redirect examination, he states, in answer to a question why he did not locate it, that he had a copy of the expediente there with him, but owing to the indefiniteness of the description of the calls of the grant it was impossible for him to locate the initial point where the claimants asserted it was in their petition for the preliminary survey and in the map filed by them showing the initial point; and it became necessary for the surveyor-general to send the witness to make an investigation to ascertain where the initial point was, and from this data he was unable to locate it. On recross-examination he states he was unable to locate it within the United States. (R., 92-93.)

Counsel for plaintiff then offered the documentary evidence as shown in the record.

This was all the testimony in the case.

BRIEF AND ARGUMENT.

This grant (San Rafael del Valle), the Babocómari grant (Perrin v. United States, No. 30), and the Boquillas y Nogales grant (a suit for the confirmation of which is now pending before the Court of Private Land Claims) were all made under the same petition for "the vacant tract of land adjoining the ranch of San Pedro, situated in the jurisdiction of the presidio of Santa Cruz, as far as the place of Tres Alamos." The dates at which the surveys and intermediate proceedings leading up to the grant were had are a few days apart, but in all respects they are substantially the same. The legal questions involved in the case relate purely and simply to the power of the states to dispose of the public lands within their respective demarcations, under authority from the national government.

I.

It will be noticed that the right to dispose of the vacant public lands is based upon the provisions of the law of August 4, 1824, classifying the revenues between the nation and states (Reynolds, 118). It has been contended that the states were originally the owners of the vacant public lands within their respective demarcations, as were the original thirteen colonies of this country, but I do not deem this proposition of sufficient importance to notice the same any further than I have done in the briefs and arguments in the case of United States v. Coe (Algodones grant), No. 8, on the present docket, for reargument. I have had occasion in that case to discuss the state grant question at length, and incidentally in the case of United States v. Maish et al. (Canoa grant), No. 297, on the present docket. I have contended that the law of August 4, 1824, classifying the revenues, had no application, directly or indirectly, to the vacant public lands of the nation, whether they were situated in the state or territories, but that the policy of the government was well-defined in the law of August 18, 1824, and to that law alone must the states look for their authority to intervene in any manner in the matter of the disposition of the vacant public lands.

I think that much of the confusion now appearing in determining the legality of the acts of officials of the state of Sonora in disposing of the vacant public lands under its laws of May 20, 1825 (ibid, 129), and July 11, 1834 (ibid, 186), arises out of the fact that by the third article of the colonization law of August 18, 1824

(ibid, 121), the states were authorized, under the control of the national government, to provide rules and regulations for the colonization of the vacant public lands of the nation within their respective demarcations, subject to the constitutive act, the constitution and the regulations provided under that law. The fact that the state of Sonora was permitted, without challenge by the national government, to dispose of the vacant public lands belonging to the nation within its boundaries for a number of years, can be reconciled upon the idea that the national government realized that the state had authority delegated to it to regulate the colonization of the same; not upon the idea that the absolute title to the same was in the state, nor that it could dispose of them without restriction or limitation. No state of the federation, so far as I have been able to discover, ever claimed the right to dispose of the vacant public lands of the nation except under the provisions of the third article of the colonization law referred to. It is true that in some of them in regulating the colonization of the lands they also incidentally provided for a compensation to be paid to the state for the lands, but in no instance was colonization defeated or compromised by revenue being made the principal consideration for their disposition.

So far as I am able to determine, it is now contended that the two laws of the state of Sonora, before referred to, of 1825 and 1834 (ibid., 129 and 186), were not intended to carry out the plan and purpose of the national government in delegating to the states the right to regulate the disposition of the vacant public lands by colonization. The national government realizing that the pretensions of the states, based upon the authority that had been granted them under the third article of the colonization law to regulate the disposition of the public lands, were growing serious and dangerous, and that the objects and purposes of that law were liable to be defeated, sought by the law of April 6, 1830 (ibid., 148), to peaceably withdraw from the states the powers it had delegated to them under said article. The attempt to do this resulted in the rebellion and secession of Texas, and subsequently in the rebellion of Sonora.

The secession of Texas never had for its cause, in whole or in part, a grievance against the national government originating out of the attempted withdrawal of any rights which it had obtained under the revenue law of August 4, 1824. Texas made good by force her claim to dispose of the public lands; Sonora was compelled to submit to the superior contentions of the national government, and under the constitution of 1836 (ibid., 203), she lost her autonomy as a state, and became one of the ordinary departments of the national government, subject to its absolute and unconditional control in all matters.

Subsequent to this constitution, it can hardly be contended that any state of the union had any right to dispose of the vacant public lands within its demarcations, either for revenue or for colonization, but the whole matter was withdrawn from them, and thereafter regulated and controlled by the national government, as I have attempted to show in my brief in the case of United States v. Maish et al., No. 30, on the present docket.

This grant was initiated in conjunction with two others, to-wit, the Babocómari and Boquillas y Nogales grants. Final title was not issued until May 8, 1833, at a time when it was evident that the extravagant pretensions of the states were to be tested by force of arms, and such men as José Maria Mendoza were not to be commended for their loyalty to the national government, as it appears by the various grants and documents to which this court's attention has been called that his actions and position politically were largely governed by the necessities of the times and his situation.

It is true that many titles have been made under the laws of the state of Sonora that apparently were not immediately questioned, but when we take into consideration the revolutionary condition of Mexico and the repeated changes in its form of government from 1835 to 1846 it is not surprising that little or no attention was paid to the condition of land titles in such a distant state as Sonora, which was one of the frontier states. The fact that revolutionary officials, holding offices both federal and state, were attempting to bind the national government in favor of the states by admissions is only to subject them to the condemnation of every observing lawyer and bring to their acts the censure which was subsequently imposed by the Mexican nation. This is particularly applicable to the acts of the revolutionary officials in Sonora.

It appears that, although being compelled to submit to the national constitution of 1836, a revolutionary declaration was made on December 26, 1837, and entered in the records of the state. It is as follows:

NOTE.—The grant title for lands which shall be issued hereafter from this date shall be signed and authenticated by the treasurer-general of the state, because the government of the department has declared to-day for federal institutions, the treasury-general, in consequence, being established in conformity with its own laws, and the office of superior chief of the treasury, created by general decree of the 17th of last April, being suppressed.

Arizpe, December 26, 1837.

(Signed)

TRELLES. (Rubric.)

See official report of special agents, etc., p. 69.

We have never been able to find a single instance where a grant similar to this, initiated and completed as a state grant, has ever been called to the attention of the national government and acted upon and confirmed by any official authorized to act for and bind the national government thereby.

The only instance that appears, so far as our investigations have gone, in which the national government by an officer located anywhere save in the state of Sonora made any declaration as to the validity of such titles as this is to be found in the declaration of Santa Ana of November 25, 1853. (Reynolds, 324.) No so-called attorney-general of the Mexican nation ever pronounced one of these titles good and valid, either as a matter of law or form, and it is not likely that an opinion as to the validity of one of these titles would have been promulgated by the legal adviser of the secretary of the treasury of the Mexican nation, to whom alone was given jurisdiction in the matter. The fact that all of such grants were required either prior or subsequent to the treaty to be presented for reinvestigation and validation shows conclusively that they were not recognized by the Mexican nation, as expressed and declared through its superior powers, as valid and subsisting complete titles, even though such men as José Maria Mendoza might have attempted to make the contrary appear by their admissions against the nation while acting as its officials.

Unless the court shall hold that the law of August 4, 1824, passed to the state an absolute title to the vacant public lands within their respective demarcations, these titles can not meet the requirements of the laws of the Mexican nation or the provisions of the act of March 3, 1891, creating the Court of Private Land Claims.

The necessity for the law of November 25, 1853 (Ibid., 324), as promulgated by Santa Ana, and those subsequent thereto in relation to this character of grants, was brought about by a disclosure of the extravagant pretensions of the officers who were professing to represent the national government in the state of Sonora, when, as a matter of fact, they were attempting to carry out the wishes and objects of a disloyal community in despoiling the nation of its property. The effect of these laws I have considered in the cases of United States v. Coe, No. 8 on the present docket, and United States v. Maish et al., No. 297, and I will not burden the attention of the court by an unnecessary reiteration of the views therein expressed.

The discussion of these same questions equally apply to the case of Perrin v. United States, No. 30 on the present docket, and in my brief in that case I shall only refer to this.

In concluding this subject, I contend that the grant in this case and the Babocómari grant are invalid for want of authority on the part of the states and officials acting under their laws to dispose of the public lands as they have attempted to do, and that such action has not been affirmed, ratified, or approved by any branch of the national government of Mexico possessing authority in the matter.

II.

It is contended on behalf of the government that this grant comes within the principle announced in the case of AINSA v. UNITED STATES (161 U.S., 208), in this, that it had not been located at the date of the treaty. It is not my intention to burden the court with a lengthy discussion of this proposition, and I only desire to call to their attention the fact, as before stated, that the petitions in this (San Rafael del Valle) grant, in the Babocómari grant, and the Boquillas y Nogales grant asked for the same land, the land from the ranch of San Pedro to the place of Tres Alamos; and under the state law it was necessary to limit the purchasers of land to a certain quantity (article 21, law of May 20, 1825, Reynolds, 130), taking into consideration their ability to stock and reduce the same to absolute dominion (article 24, ibid.), and in the surveys made it is not pretended that all of the land between the ranch of San Pedro and Tres Alamos was included within the outboundaries of these three grants by natural objects, as extravagantly claimed.

It was necessary to locate the north boundary of the San Pedro grant, and this has not been done, except possibly by the United States in the testimony of Mr. Bonillas (R., 56, 57); and by reference to the map offered in evidence by the United States, which Mr. Bonillas showed was correct (see R., 200), the north line of the San Pedro will be located (by scaling) about five miles south of the international boundary line.

The survey of the land of the San Rafael del Valle grant, according to the calls of the expediente, included within the exterior boundaries by natural objects and monuments (piles of stones) a greater area than sold or granted, and, as said by Mr. Chief Justice Fuller, in the opinion of the court in the Ainsa case (161 U. S., 208-221), "Grants which have not been located would seem manifestly to be grants of a specific quantity of land within exterior boundaries containing a larger quantity of land. This was a familiar class of Mexican grants."

The proceedings for the reclamation of the demasias, both under the Spanish and Mexican governments, together with the laws of the state of Sonora of May 20, 1825, and July 11, 1834 (Reynolds, 129, 186), fixed beyond controversy that no title could be passed against the government for anything except the cabida legal, which is translated by Mr. Bonillas as "the area called for in the title papers" (R., 59, line 22), and the Mexican government has reclaimed the excess in all grants, no matter when made, over and above the cabidu legal. The application of these laws and the decision of the court just referred to must result in the determination that the grant had not been located at the date of the treaty.

Whatever grounds for the rejection of this grant may be stated in the opinion of the majority of the court below, I respectfully contend that it should be rejected because it had not been located at the date of the treaty, and on the broader ground that it has not been "lawfully and regularly derived from the government of Spain or Mexico, or from any of the states of the republic of Mexico having lawful authority to make grants of land."

It is respectfully submitted that the judgment of the Court of Private Land Claims should be affirmed.

A valid grant was made in this case, which it was not within the power of a temporary dictator to destroy by an arbitrary declaration.

This government discharges its full duty under the Gadsden treaty, when it recognizes a grant as valid to the amount of the land paid for.

ON December 3, 1891, the appellant filed in the Court of Private Land Claims his petition praying to have confirmed to him a certain tract of land situate in the county of Cochise, in the Territory of Arizona, known and designated as the San Rafael del Valle grant. Subsequent proceedings resulted in a trial and a decree in behalf of the government, dismissing the petition and adjudging petitioner's claim and title invalid. The title papers show that on March 12, 1827, Rafael Elias made application to the treasurer general of the state of Sonora for the purchase of "public lands adjacent to the ranch of San Pedro, within the jurisdiction of Santa Cruz, as far as the place called Tres Alamos." On July 1 of that year the treasurer general directed that proceedings be had in accordance with law under the supervision of the alcalde of Santa Cruz. The proceedings appear to have been regular. The survey was of a tract reported by the surveyors to contain four sitios. The property was appraised at $60 a sitio, or $240 altogether. The fiscal attorney approved the proceedings and advised that they "be continued to adjudication according to the forms and requisites in use." At the third auction, on April 18, 1828, the property was struck off to Don Rafael Elias, the petitioner, for the sum of $240. On April 21, the petitioner paid this sum into the treasury. Nothing further was done until April 29, 1833, at which time the then treasurer general of the state of Sonora issued the expediente, or title papers. This expediente opens with this preamble:

Statement of the Case.

"Jose Maria Mendoza, treasurer general of the free, independent and sovereign state of Sonora, Greeting :

"Inasmuch as article 11 of the sovereign decree number 70 of the general congress of the union, dated August 4th of 1824, concedes to the states the revenues which in said law it did not reserve for the federation itself, and one of them being that derived from the lands within their respective territories, which in consequence belongs to them, for the disposition of which the honorable constitutive congress of the state that used to be joined of Sonora and Sinaloa enacted the law No. 30 of May 20th of 1825, as well as the decrees relative thereto passed by other succeeding legislatures, and the citizen Rafael Elias, a resident of this capital, having made due application on the 12th of March of 1827, at the treasury general that was then of the United States, for the lands named San Rafael del Valle, located in the jurisdiction of the presidio of Santa Cruz, which was allowed according to law on the date of July 1st of the same year, and the petition of entry, the order for the commission, and the act of accepting the charge being as follows, to wit ; " and after reciting the various steps in the sale closes with this granting clause :

"In which terms I issue the present title of grant in due form in favor of the citizen Rafael Elias, his heirs and successors, delivering it to them for their protection, previous memorandum of the same being entered in the proper book.

"Given at the capital of Arispe on the twenty-fifth day of the month of December of one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two.

"Attested and signed by me, sealed with the seal of the treasury general, before the undersigned witnesses of my assistance, with whom I act in default of clerk, there being none, according to law.

"JOSE MARIA MENDOZA.

"Assistant : LOUIS CARRANCO.

"Assistant : BARTOLO MIRANDA.

"[Seal of the Free State of Sonora, Treasury General.]"

Opinion of the Court.

The amount of land within the tract as now surveyed, according to the testimony, is 20,034.62 acres. The petition did not state the area applied for, but as has been seen the survey and appraisalment called the tract four sitios, or 17,353.85 acres.

Mr. Rochester Ford for appellant.

Mr. Special Attorney Reynolds for appellees. Mr. Solicitor General was on his brief.

MR. JUSTICE BREWER, after stating the case, delivered the opinion of the court.

This grant was made in the name of the state of Sonora and by the proper officer of that state, if it had power to make the grant. The first question, therefore, is as to the power of the state. We held in United States v. Coe, 170 U. S. 681, just decided, that from and after the adoption of the constitution of 1836 no such power was vested in the separate states. But that case called for no determination of the authority those states possessed prior thereto, and in respect to that matter no opinion was expressed. We have in this case, and that immediately following, Perrin v. United States, post, 292, elaborate discussions by counsel as to the title to the public lands within the limits of Mexico and the respective rights thereto of the general government and the separate states. On the one hand it is insisted that, as in the case of the thirteen colonies that formed the United States of America, the vacant lands were the property of the states; that as no express cession was made by any Mexican states to the general government the title to those lands remained in the states until at least the formation of the constitution of 1836, and that each state had therefore the absolute right to dispose of all within its own limits. On the other hand, it is said that, prior to the separation of Mexico from Spain, the lands were the property of the king of Spain, that the separation created a new national government which succeeded to all the rights of the prior sovereign, including therein the ownership of all vacant lands. We deem it unnecessary to review this discussion or attempt to settle the disputed question as to the location of the title. In this expediente the treasurer general refers to "Article XI of the sovereign decree number 70 of the general congress of the union," as conceding to the states the revenues derived from the sale of lands within their respective limits, and upon that and law number 30 of the congress of the state relies as the sources of his power to make the conveyance. The state having undoubtedly vested its authority in the treasurer general, the inquiry comes back to the effect of said Article XI.

Preliminary thereto we must notice these matters :

The constitutive act of the Mexican federation, adopted January 31, 1824, in Articles 5 and 6, declares :

"ART. 5. The nation adopts for the form of its government a popular representative and federal republic.

"ART. 6. Its integral parts are free, sovereign and independent states, in as far as regards exclusively its internal administration, according to the rules laid down in this act, and in the general constitution." 1 White's New Recopilacion, p. 375.

On October 4, 1824, a constitution was established. In it Article 49 reads :

"The laws or decrees, which emanate from the general congress, shall have for their object :

"1. To sustain the national independence, and to provide for the preservation and security of the nation in its exterior relations.

"2. To preserve the federal union of the states, and peace and public order in the interior of the confederation.

"3. To maintain the independence of the states among themselves, so far as respects their government according to the constitutive act and this constitution.

"4. To sustain the proportional equality of obligations and rights which the states possess in point of law." 1 White, p. 393.

And enumerating in Article 50 the powers possessed by the general congress, subdivision 31 reads :

"To dictate all laws and decrees, which may conduce to accomplish the objects spoken of in the forty-ninth article, without intermeddling with the interior administration of the states." 1 White, p. 395.

Opinion of the Court.

Article 137, defining the attributes of the supreme court, names among others:

"1. To take cognizance of disputes, which may arise between the different states of the union, whenever there arises litigation in relation to the same, requiring a formal decree, and that arising between a state and one or more of its inhabitants, or between individuals in relation to lands under concessions from different states, without prejudice to the right of the parties to claim the concession from the party which granted it." 1 White, 405.

It cannot of course be pretended that these provisions either operated to transfer the title to vacant public lands from the nation to the respective states or amount to a declaration that the title to such lands is vested in the states. All that can fairly be inferred from them is that the supremacy of the several states in matters of local interest was recognized, and further, that conflicting cessions of lands from different states might be expected and that the settlement of disputes respecting them should be by the supreme court of the nation. These inferences are by no means determinative of the question here presented, and yet it must be conceded that they at least point to some control by the states over vacant lands within their limits, and suggest the exercise by those states of the right to make concessions of those lands.

Two prominent laws of the Mexican nation are the colonization law of August 18, 1824, 1 White, 601; Reynolds, p. 121, and the law in respect to general and special revenues of August 4, 1824. Reynolds, p. 118. White's translation of Articles 1, 2, 3, 10, 11 and 16 of the colonization law, differing slightly from that given by Reynolds, is as follows:

"ART. 1. The Mexican nation offers to foreigners, who come to establish themselves within its territory, security for their persons and property; provided they subject themselves to the laws of the country.

"ART. 2. This law comprehends those lands of the nation, not the property of individuals, corporations or towns, which can be colonized.

Opinion of the Court.

"ART. 3. For this purpose the legislatures of all the states will, as soon as possible, form colonization laws or regulations for their respective states, conforming themselves in all things to the constitutional act, general constitution and the regulations established in this law."

"ART. 10. The military who, in virtue of the offer made on the 27th of March, 1821, have a right to lands, shall be attended to by the states, in conformity with the diplomas which are issued to that effect by the supreme executive power.

"ART. 11. If, in virtue of the decree alluded to in the last article, and taking into view the probabilities of life, the supreme executive power should deem it expedient to alienate any portion of land in favor of any officer, whether civil or military of the federation, it can do so from the vacant lands of the territories."

"ART. 16. The government in conformity with the provisions established in this law will proceed to colonize the territories of the republic."

It is not pretended that the grant in question was made under this colonization law, and we only refer to it as showing a recognition by the general government of some authority on the part of the states in reference to the vacant lands. It will be seen that while Article 2 speaks of "the lands of the nation," Article 3 directs the states to enact colonization laws in conformity to the general provisions of the constitution. So that the actual management of colonization affairs was put within the control of the states, subject, of course, to the superior dominion of the general government. Article 10 provides that military rights to lands, though created by the nation shall be attended to by the states, thus implying at least that, for convenience, administration of the vacant lands was entrusted to the states. Obviously the thought here was that there should not be two places in which the administration of the public lands should be carried on, and so in Article 11 it was provided that if in the judgment of the nation it was expedient to grant to a military or civil officer any public lands, it was to be made from vacant lands in the territories. And, finally, in Article 16, as though to separate the administration of the public lands in the states from those in the territories, it is distinctly declared that the national government will colonize the territories of the public. As heretofore said, all this, of course, amounts only to assigning to the states the administration of the vacant lands for purposes of colonization.

The other act to which we have referred, the one which is relied upon by the treasurer general as giving authority for this expediente, is that in reference to general and special revenues. It commences with the declaration that the following belong to the general revenues of the federation, and then in ten articles are named revenues derived from different sources, such as import and export duties, tobacco and powder, etc. The eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh articles are as follows, Reynolds, p. 118 :

"8. That from the territories of the federation.

"9. National property, in which is included that of the inquisition and temporal property of the clergy, or any other rural or urban property that belongs, or shall hereafter belong, to the public exchequer.

"10. The buildings, offices, and the lands attached thereto, which belong, or have belonged, to the general revenues and those that have been maintained by two or more of what were formerly provinces, are at the disposal of the government of the federation.

"11. The revenues not included in the foregoing articles belong to the states."

The eighth article gives to the national government all the revenues derived from the territories. Obviously the entire management of the affairs of the territories was reserved to the general government, and any revenue derived therefrom passed into the general treasury.

The ninth article is indefinite in that it fails to define what is national property. It assumes that certain things pass within the description of national property, and affirmatively includes within that description the property taken from the clergy. The language used is broad enough to include all public lands within the limits of the nation, and yet if it was intended to include such lands it would seem scarcely necessary to add the clause including those taken from the clergy. Certain is it that according to our methods of legislation, and our use of language, this article would not be considered as defining the property the revenues from which it assigns to the national government. The tenth article seems to have little significance in this connection, and refers obviously to public buildings and the grounds attached, and not to vacant public lands. While the eleventh article concedes to the states the revenues not included in the foregoing articles, it does not define those revenues, and depends for its scope upon the significance and force of the prior articles. If these articles were all that called for consideration it would be difficult to infer from them that the vacant public lands were given to the states for purposes of sale or for appropriation of the proceeds of such sales. But in the same statute is a provision that "the sum of $3,136,875, estimated as the deficit in the general expenses, shall be apportioned among the states of the federation," and following that is the apportionment. Other sections required delivery by the states every month of their part of the above apportionment and the final adjustment of the amount thereof between the government and the states. Of course this implies that within the limits of the state there were certain matters of revenue reserved, out of which the states were to collect the sums apportioned to them, and to return the same to the general treasury. Subsequent legislation throws light upon the meaning of this revenue law. Thus, on April 6, 1830, a decree was passed, the third article of which is as follows:

"The government shall have power to appoint one or more commissioners to visit the colonies of the frontier states, to contract with their legislatures for the purchase, in the name of the federation, of the lands they may consider suitable and sufficient for the establishment of colonies of Mexican and of other nations, to enter into such arrangements with the colonies already established as they may deem proper for the security of the republic, to see to the exact compliance with the contracts upon the entry of new colonists, and to examine as to how far those already entered into have been complied with.

"4. The executive shall have the power to take the lands he may consider suitable for fortifications and arsenals, and for new colonies, and shall give the states credit for their value on the accounts they owe the federation." Reynolds, p. 148.

The language of this decree is very significant, and clearly recognizes some title in the states, for why should commissioners be authorized to contract with the legislatures of the states for the purchase of lands which belonged to the nation? It also clearly recognizes the right of the states to sell these vacant lands and apply the proceeds in settlement of the demands made against them by the general apportionment of the revenue law of 1824. It declares that the executive may take the lands he considers suitable for fortifications, arsenals and for new colonies, and at the same time provides that he shall give the states credit on the amount they owe the confederation. But why should any credit be given if these lands so taken by the executive were the property of the nation and the states without authority to sell them or receive the proceeds of sales? If during all these years the lands were the property of the nation, were to be held and sold only by the nation, and the proceeds thereof to be accounted for directly to the nation, why should it be decreed that if the nation takes any part of them for arsenals and other public purposes, credit for the value thereof is to be entered upon the amounts due by the states to the nation? We find it difficult to escape the force of this decree of 1830. It indicates that although the language of the revenue decree of 1824 is indefinite, and does not in terms name vacant public lands, yet both the nation and the states understood that its effect was to grant authority to the states to sell such lands and appropriate the proceeds in settlement of the amounts charged against them by the nation. We see no other way in which to give reasonable force to the language of this decree of 1830, and it must be held to be a national interpretation of the revenue decree of 1824.

But we are not limited to this authoritative national exposition of the meaning of the revenue law of 1824. The testimony in the several cases of a similar nature now before us, including therein the reports of the officers of this government sent to examine the archives of Mexico, discloses that the state of Sonora, at least, assumed that the revenue act of 1824 authorized its disposal of the vacant public lands, and acting on that assumption did in a multitude of cases make sales thereof. In this connection it may be observed that the constitution of the state of Sonora, or State of the West, declares, article 47, that the right of selling lands belongs to the state. This constitution bears date May 11, 1825. Law No. 30 of that state, of May 20, 1825, the law referred to by the treasurer general in the expediente, recites that "the congress has seen fit to decree the following provisional law for the purchase of the lands of the state." Subsequent legislation of the state is in the same line.

Further, sections 8 and 9 of article 161 of the national constitution of 1824 made it the duty of each Mexican state —

"To present annually to each one of the houses of the general congress a minute and comprehensive report of the amounts that are received and paid out at the treasuries within their limits, together with a statement of the origin of the one and the other, and touching the different branches of agriculture, commercial and manufacturing industries," etc.

And also —

"To forward to the two chambers (of the federal government) and when they are in recess, to the council of the government, a certified copy of their constitutions, laws and decrees."

It may be assumed that these requirements of the national constitution were complied with, and that the constitutions, laws and decrees of the state and the proceedings had in reference to these several sales of land were reported to the congress of the nation. We find no act of that congress setting aside such legislation or sales. This is significant, and it is not inappropriate to refer to Clinton v. Englebrecht, 13 Wall. 434, 446, in which it was said :

"In the first place, we observe that the law has received the implied sanction of congress. It was adopted in 1859. It has been upon the statute book for more than twelve years. It must have been transmitted to congress soon after it was enacted, for it was the duty of the secretary of the territory to transmit to that body copies of all laws, on or before the first of the next December in each year. The simple disapproval by congress at any time would have annulled it. It is no unreasonable inference, therefore, that it was approved by that body."

We are not insensible of the fact that the provisions of the act of September 21, 1824, creating the office of commissary general, an act which we had occasion to consider in Ely's Administrator v. United States, ante, 220, seem to make against the idea of the administration of vacant lands by the states, and it is difficult to work out from all the statutes a consistent, continuous and harmonious rule. We must in each case endeavor to ascertain what the Mexican government recognized as valid, and when that is done the duty of respecting and enforcing the grant arises. Other matters are referred to by counsel in their briefs, but it would needlessly prolong this opinion to refer to them. Our conclusion is that at the time of these transactions the several states had authority to make sales of vacant public lands within their limits, and that such sales, unless annulled by the national government, must be considered as grants to be recognized by this Government under the terms of the treaty of 1853.

We pass, therefore, to a consideration of the effect of the decrees of Santa Anna. The lands in controversy were obtained from Mexico under what is known as the Gadsden treaty of 1853. This treaty was concluded on December 30, 1853, and ratified June 30, 1854. At the time of the treaty Santa Anna was supreme executive and virtually dictator in Mexico, and the treaty was negotiated with him. On November 25, 1853, only about a month before the signing of the Gadsden treaty, he published this decree :

Opinion of the Court.

"ART. 1. It is declared that the public lands, as the exclusive property of the nation, never could have been alienated under any title by virtue of decrees, orders and enactments of the legislatures, governments or local authorities of the states and territories of the republic.

"2. Consequently, it is also declared that the sales, cessions or any other class of alienations of said public lands that have been made without the express order and approval of the general powers, in the manner prescribed by the laws, are null and of no value or effect.

"3. The officials, authorities and employés upon whom devolve the execution of this decree, shall proceed as soon as they receive it to recover and take possession in the name of the nation, of the lands comprehended in the provisions of article 1, and that may be in the possession of corporations or private individuals, whatever may be their prerogatives or position.

"4. The judicial, civil or administrative authorities shall admit no claims of any kind nor petitions whose purpose is to obtain indemnification from the public treasury for the damages the unlawful holders or owners may allege under the provisions of the preceding article; and they shall preserve their right only against the persons from whom they have the lands they are now compelled to return." Reynolds, p. 324.

On July 5, 1854, he published another decree, which was even more specific, containing these provisions:

"ART. 1. The titles of all the alienations of public lands made in the territory of the republic from September, 1821, till date, whether by the general authorities or by those of the extinguished states and departments, shall be submitted to the revision of the supreme government, without which they shall have no value and shall constitute no right of property.

* * * * *

"5. The alienations of public lands, of whatever nature they be, that have been made by the authorities and officials of the departments without the knowledge and approval of the general government, during the epoch when the central system was in force in the republic, are void.

Opinion of the Court.

"6. Those made by said authorities in the epoch of the extinguished federation are likewise void; provided they were not made for the purpose of extending and promoting colonization, which was the purpose proposed by the law of August 18, 1824.

"7. Grants or sales of lands made to private individuals, companies, or corporations under the express condition of colonizing them, and the holders of which have not complied therewith in the terms stipulated, are declared to be of no value." Reynolds, p. 326.

Subsequently, on December 3, 1855, and after Santa Anna had been deposed and while Juan Alvarez was president ad interim, a decree containing the following provisions was entered:

"ART. 1. The decrees of November 25, 1853, and July 7, 1854, which submitted to the revision and approval of the supreme government the grants or alienations of public lands made by the local governments of the states or departments and territories of the republic from September, 1821, to that date, are repealed in all their parts.

"ART. 2. Consequently, all the titles issued during that period by the superior authorities of the states or territories under the federal system, by virtue of their lawful faculties, or by those of the departments or territories, under the central system, with express authorization or consent of the supreme government for the acquisition of said lands, all in conformity with the existing laws for the grant or alienation respectively, shall for all time be good and valid, as well as those of any other property lawfully acquired, and in no case can they be subjected to new revision or ratification on the part of the government." Reynolds, p. 329.

And again, on October 16, 1856, a decree was passed while Ignacio Comonfort was president, the first article of which is as follows:

"ART. 1. The decrees of November 25, 1853, and July 7, 1854, are void." Reynolds, p. 331.

The Court of Private Land Claims was divided. Three of the justices were of opinion that as this Government recognized Santa Anna in negotiating with and purchasing from him the territory within the Gadsden purchase, the courts must also recognize his declarations in respect to titles as authoritative, citing in support of these general propositions Wheaton's International Law, secs. 31 and 32, and Halleck's International Law, pages 47 and 62. Without questioning the general propositions laid down in these authorities, we are of opinion that too much weight was given to the decree of Santa Anna of November 25, 1853, the only one announced before the cession, and that that decree should not be considered as absolutely determinative of individual rights and titles.

While it is true that practically Santa Anna occupied for the time being the position of dictator, it must not be forgotten that Mexico, after its separation from Spain in 1821, was assuming to act as a republic subject to express constitutional limitations. While temporary departures are disclosed in her history, the dominant and continuous thought was of a popular government under a constitution which defined rights, duties and powers. In that aspect the spasmodic decrees made by dictators in the occasional interruptions of constitutional government should not be given conclusive weight in the determination of rights created during peaceful and regular eras. The divestiture of titles once legally vested is a judicial act. In governments subject to ordinary constitutional limitations a mere executive declaration disturbs no rights that have been vested, and simply presents in any given case to the judicial department the inquiry whether the rights claimed to have been vested were legally so vested. Undoubtedly this Government dealing with Mexico, and finding Santa Anna in control, rightfully dealt with him in a political way in the negotiation of a treaty and the purchase of territory, and the judicial department of this Government must recognize the action of its executive and political department as controlling. But when the courts are called upon to inquire as to personal rights existing in the ceded territory, a mere declaration by the temporary executive cannot be deemed absolutely and finally controlling. It is unnecessary to rest this case upon the fact disclosed that these decrees of Santa Anna were immediately thereafter revoked. It is not significant that the substance of them was thereafter reestablished. We are compelled to inquire whether prior to such decree there were rights vested, rights which the Mexican government recognized, and then determine whether those rights were by such decree absolutely destroyed.

Turning to the decree of November 25, 1853, the first and second articles are mere declarations of law. The third article directs the officials to proceed to the execution of the decree and to recover and take possession of the lands coming within the scope of the prior articles. It does not appear that any steps were taken by any officials to carry into execution this decree. Whether this particular grant came within the scope of the two declarations of law was a question to be considered and determined. On that question the grantee never was heard. There never was a judicial adjudication that his grant came within the scope of the first two articles. He was never dispossessed. His property was never taken possession of. It is going too far to hold that the mere declaration of a rule of law made by a temporary dictator, never enforced as against an individual grantee in possession of lands, is to be regarded as operative and determinative of the latter's rights.

As for the reasons heretofore mentioned, we are of opinion that a valid grant was made in this case, we think this arbitrary declaration by a temporary dictator was not potent to destroy the title. The decree of the Court of Private Land Claims must therefore be reversed. As shown by the statement of facts the survey of the land claimed in the petition is in excess of the four sitios granted and paid for. While the excess is not so great as in many cases, yet we think the rule laid down in Ely's Administrator v. United States, ante, 220, should control, and that this Government discharges its full duty under the treaty when it recognizes a grant as valid to the amount of land paid for.

The decree of the Court of Private Land Claims will be reversed, and the case remanded for further proceedings.
